ROOSEVELT AGREES TO SIGN MODIFIED BONUS PROVIDING BOND PAYMENT AND NO PENSIONS

FIRST GAME RITES TO BE PERFORMED BY TALMADGE, KEY

Mayor Will Throw Out First Ball to Louisa Robert, Atlanta Debutante, and Governor Will Be Season's First Batter.

4 BANDS TO LEAD PARADE TO PARK

Harry Kelley, Ace of Atlanta Staff, Will Take Mound Against Knoxville; Crackers Favorites

By JIMMY JONES.

When Abner Doubleday, a pioneering soul, took an idea from the old Indian game, lacrosse, and gave us the modern game of baseball back in 1839, he didn't know just what kind of a commotion he was going to create.

And what a shock it would be to the old gentleman if his spirit could gaze down on that mighty, continuous cavalcade which will wend its way out Ponce de Leon avenue this afternoon to the Atlanta ball park where the Crackers are opening the 1935 Southern league season in a game with the Knoxville Smokies, starting at 3:30 o'clock.

With fair, crisp weather in prospect and no hint of rain, that opening day bugaboo, in the atmosphere, Atlanta club officials are preparing for a capacity, overflow of 18,000 and a smashing of the old record of 17,201 established back in 1931.

They also hope to retain the league attendance trophy which Atlanta has won for the last three years.

Colorful Club Assembled.

There is every indication that all this is not impossible, with a ball club that packs more box office magnetism than any the city has seen since Bert Niehoff's pennant winner of 1925 caught such a hold on the popular fancy and with Harry Kelley, the ace of the Cracker staff, opposing Climax Blethen, one-time matinee idol of the fans here.

It should be a colorful opening, too, with a generous splash of Easter color provided by the ladies' gay dresses and natty new suit here and there.

Mayor Key will perform his accustomed function of tossing out the first ball and Miss Louisa Robert, comely president of the Atlanta debutantes and herself an outstanding athlete and nationally-known Olympic swimmer, will receive it.

TALMADGE WARNS CAPITOL 'PICNICS' WILL COME TO END

Governor Tells Carolinans To Get Their Share of Funds in Bitter 'Brain Trust' Denunciation.

MURPHY, N. C., April 15.—(AP)—Governor Talmadge today flung the charge "radicalism" back to Washington in a broadside on the national administration and predicted an end to the "picnic and follies up there" in a speech here today.

The governor addressed a crowd estimated at 4,000 Georgians and North Carolinans seeking early paving of the 15-mile road from Murphy to Blue Ridge, Ga.

Directing his remarks against spendings in Washington, he said "My friends, we are going to come out of this despair. Get your part of the money, because it is the last that will ever come your way from that source."

Speaking of good roads, he said: "Good roads serve a good purpose. With these exorbitant war-time freight rates you had better keep your good roads for big trucks, because they are the only competition the railroads have. I believe in equitable freight rates but not in rates that let the produce rot in the fields.

"The good roads problem will soon be solved in Washington. The other day they signed the bill for almost five billion dollars. I began figuring back. That is five dollars for every minute since the birth of Christ. I believe Georgia is entitled to about $90,000,000 and North Carolina to a

MINISTERS SCORE REV. H.E. M'BRAYER FOR REPEAL STAND

Group Approves Resolutions Criticizing Atlantan Favoring Local Option; Ouster Move Fails.

Resolutions "regretting and repudiating" the Rev. H. E. McBrayer, pastor of the Lakewood Heights Methodist church, for supporting repeal of state prohibition were adopted here Monday by the Atlanta Ministers' Association in executive session, after a move to unseat the minister as secretary of the association had failed to pass.

The Lakewood Heights pastor, who Saturday issued a statement declaring he believed local option would do more to support temperance than prohibition has done, was present at the meeting which criticized him but following the session he said he stood uncompromisingly for repeal and substitution therefor of local option.

Dr. McBrayer also declared Monday that "practically every member" of his congregation Sunday night congratulated him for his stand on the issue.

Said He Was Congratulated.

"Following the Sunday night service scores of the members of my congregation came up to me and congratulated me for the statement I issued Saturday," the minister said. "They told me to stand by my guns and they would stand with me. It all convinces me more and more that the majority of church people realize the dismal failure of our prohibition laws and are ready to substitute local option which will bring about some real temperance."

The resolutions adopted by the ministers' association were sponsored by

PROCESSING TAX OPENLY DEFIED

Would Go to Jail Rather Than Pay Levy, Says James A. Sinclair.

BOSTON, April 15.—(AP)—The first open defiance of the administration's cotton processing tax was voiced today by James Sinclair, president of the Fall River Cotton Manufacturers' Association, who said: "I am willing to go to jail for refusal to pay this tax myself."

Sinclair, who is also treasurer of the Charlton mills in Fall River, proposed that northern and southern manufacturers refuse to pay the tax "unless President Roosevelt shows an inclination to aid the textile industry."

"I am in a 'Boston tea party' mood," Sinclair declared.

"I am willing to go to jail for refusal to pay this tax myself," he asserted. "I can enjoy a rest in jail as well as anybody else."

Sinclair's openly stated defiance of the administration's processing tax was the first expressed by manufacturers who are fighting for removal of the tax, elimination of the north-south wage differential, establishment of higher tariff barriers and a solution for overproduction.

Northern manufacturers of cotton goods responded to a conference call of the policy committee of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers today to plan relief for the industry in New England its 100,000 employes and their families.

A conference with New England manufacturers called by Governor James M. Curley, of Massachusetts, was postponed, the governor's office announced.

Before the manufacturers met today Frank W. Dunham, chairman of the chamber of commerce committee on New England industrial conditions, expressed his indignation at Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace's visit to Atlanta, Ga. He said he was indignant over the secretary's visit to the south after he had declined to visit textile centers of New England at the committee's invitation "to get first-hand information on conditions here."

The first test case in this section on the constitutionality of the processing tax was scheduled to come before the present session of the United States circuit court of appeals.

Former United States Senator William M. Butler and James A. McDonough, receivers for the Hoosac Mills Corporation, operating mills in Taunton, New Bedford and North Adams, said they were seeking a finding against the collection of $81,694 in taxes levied by the Bureau of Internal Revenue for processing taxes assessed under the AAA.

Spectacular Mill Fire Causes $150,000 Loss

Four Departments of Warren Company Plant Destroyed—Head of Firm Blames Rotten Fire Hose for Extensive Damage.

Fire caused by flying sparks in the foundry destroyed four departments of the Warren Company, refrigerator manufacturers, at 905 Fair street, early last night, causing damage estimated at $150,000.

The blaze, the most spectacular in Atlanta in recent months, burned through the foundry, reconditioning plant, woodworking shop and dry kiln. The departments were housed in a one-story structure of brick and frame construction covering an area 80 feet by 180 feet.

V. P. Warren, president of the company, blamed the Atlanta fire department for much of the loss, charging that the department at first sent only one company to combat the blaze, and that rotten hose was used in fighting the fire. Breaks occurred in at least a dozen lines of hose, he claimed.

All the machinery in the woodworking department, costing thousands of dollars, was ruined by the fire; more than a hundred refrigerators in the reconditioning department were consumed; thousands of feet of valuable timber in the kiln were burned, and all the foundry equipment lost.

The glaze started shortly after 6 o'clock. James Bryant, a machinist employed by the company, was passing through the foundry and discovered that sparks had fallen on some oil tanks and had set the place afire.

The fire spread quickly to the woodworking department and the roof was ablaze by the time the first fire engine company reached the scene. A second alarm was sounded, calling additional companies, but by the time they arrived the four departments were doomed.

Flames from the burning building shot 40 feet into the air, sending off huge clouds of smoke. A crowd estimated at more than 5,000 persons gathered to watch the blaze, while hundreds of automobiles were parked on streets around the blazing structure.

The fire burned for more than two hours before it was finally brought under control by the firefighters. Only the fact that a fire screen separated the one-story structure from the main plant of the refrigerator company prevented the entire factory from being destroyed.

Mr. Warren estimated the loss to the factory at $150,000. It was not protected by insurance because the prevailing insurance rate was prohibi-

MOFFETT RESIGNS AS HOUSING CHIEF

Roosevelt Will Probably Accept to Permit Oil Executive's Orient Trip.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—James A. Moffett, federal housing administrator, today asked President Roosevelt to relieve him of his post in the near future.

In making this request, Moffett expressed the conviction that the housing program was fully under way and on a good, sound basis.

He explained to Mr. Roosevelt that he desired to leave in the near future for the orient. Taking the request under consideration, the president asked Moffett to talk with him again in a week or so. At that time a successor probably will be named.

Citing figures to show progress being made, Moffett said:

"I think the housing program is doing one of the finest jobs for the country and is firmly established."

Insurance has been granted on $750,000 in small loans, he reported, and loans totaling $1,261,000 have been granted under the mutual mortgage insurance system, with more than 30 per cent of it for new construction. Altogether insurance has been approved for $10,000,000 in low-cost housing.

Moffett is a former vice president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and later served with California oil companies.

He intends to return to his private business, but hopes to make the trip to the orient for pleasure.

Supreme Court Delays Farm Act Decision

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—The supreme court adjourned today for two weeks without passing on the constitutionality of the railway pension law or the Frazier-Lemke farm moratorium act.

WAR PROFITS PLAN IS HIT BY BARUCH

Senate Body Expects To Question Broker on Ship Building Transaction.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—A bitter attack by Bernard M. Baruch on the senate munitions committee plan for taking the profits out of war was placed before members of that group today but failed to move them.

The man chosen by President Wilson to head his war industries board suplemented his recent criticism of the committee plan by submitting a statement to the committee declaring it was intended to "abolish the present economic system in war" and was likely to bring defeat or communism.

His statement was given to Chairman Nye, republican, North Dakota, but before copies of it were distributed to other committee members, the North Dakotan was taken ill with a cold that kept him from today's sessions.

But while some of the members had not read Baruch's utterances, they were frank to disagree with his attack on the plan. Advised that Baruch considered the proposal for rigid taxation and industrial control unnecessary, Senator Pope, democrat, Idaho, a committee member, disagreed flatly by saying:

"I do."

To Answer Later.

John T. Flynn, economist who drafted the plan approved by the committee, was asked to answer Baruch later. It was indicated his reply would go into the record along with the financier's statement.

Flynn's proposals have won endorsement both of republican and democratic members. They planned to write them into the McSwain bill passed by the house, which contains many of Baruch's proposals for restricting war profits.

Meantime, the committee laid the groundwork for questioning Ben Smith, Wall Street operator, regarding transactions that brought control of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation into new hands on the eve

BRITAIN TO LOWER TAX ASSESSMENT, HIKE ARMAMENTS

Eighty Per Cent of Prosperity Recovered, Chamberlain Avers, Cutting Levies for Millions.

LONDON, April 15.—(AP)—Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, pulled his fourth balanced budget out of the counting house today, offering new relief to millions of small taxpayers despite increased military expenditures for 1935-36 of 10,500,000 pounds—(about $52,300,000).

The smiling chancellor proposed to the house of commons that the income tax be reduced in the lower brackets and announced the restoration of the final portion of pay cuts made in 1931. Even so he presented an estimated surplus for the year of 500,000 pounds—about $2,425,000.

"Our program of cheap money, tariffs, remission of taxes and balanced budgets," said the chancellor, "has made it possible for our country to recover 80 per cent of its prosperity. Given peace abroad and fair times at home we should make a further substantial advance in the coming fiscal year."

The chancellor's total estimated expenditures of 729,970,000 pounds (about $3,649,800,000) compares with 708,879,171 pounds for last year, while the total estimated revenue of 735,850,000 pounds ($3,677,830,000) was an appreciable jump over the last budget's 716,441,050 pounds.

Although Chamberlain on the basis of these figures—which were struck before the concessions were figured in—had a prospective surplus of 5,610,000 pounds, (about $28,030,000) he finally ended with the estimated 500,-

CITY WILL RECEIVE RENT HIKE ON FOX

New Lessee Is Seeking Movie House at Big Increase, White Says.

Announcement by Councilman John A. White that an offer to lease the Fox theater at a 50 per cent increased rental, or $250 a week, effective September 1, has been filed with the public buildings committee, of which he is chairman; debate over Mayor Key's proposal to operate city liquor stores and an attack on any further effort to obtain slum clearance projects for Atlanta featured yesterday's council session.

Although White declined to divulge the name of the firm seeking a new lease on the Fox theater, which is a part of the Shrine mosque properties the city is taking over for a new city auditorium, he asserted that a proposal is now on his desk providing for payment of $750 a week for the theater rights and a percentage of receipts, "which will push total theater receipts up to $1,000 a week."

The White statement came as he asked council to approve a business management of the properties by an eight-man board in order to make the venture a financial success.

Business Basis Urged.

"There is no doubt but that we will be able to pay money into the city treasury if we are allowed to run the Shrine properties on a business basis," White told council. "We have that $750 weekly offer now before us, but we think that even it is too low and we are not going to jump at it. What we want is the co-operation of this council. I want to take this opportunity also to put at rest several unfounded reports about the Shrine properties.

"One especially was that the properties on which the mosque are built is not owned, but that it is under lease. That is untrue. Yaarab temple paid $275,000 in cash for the land on which the properties are located. There are several other wild rumors afloat, none of which is true."

8-Man Board Approved.

Council agreed to allow the eight-man operation of the properties and voted to set up the board, composed of the five members of the municipal buildings committee of city council; the mayor, and one representative each to be named, respectively, by bond holders and those guaranteeing the $100,000 cash payment necessary to consummate the deal.

White told council that Lucas & Jenkins, operators of the Fox, will be notified to vacate the theater properties by September 1, to make way for a lessee who will pay more rent. He said Atlanta is coming into its own as an entertainment center, and that it will have shows better than any other city south of Washington.

TURKEY DEMANDS RIGHT TO FORTIFY AS LEAGUE DELAYS

Denmark Joins Poland in Defending Reich; England Said Ready To Act With Army.

(Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.)

GENEVA, April 15.—Turkey startled delegates to the extraordinary League council session on German disarmament tonight by demanding the right to refortify the Dardanelles in Asia Minor if other defeated nations are allowed to return to arms equality.

The declaration was one of a number of swiftly occurring incidents marking the initial council session which added to the uncertainty and uneasiness in Europe.

Others included:

1. Denmark and Poland frankly opposed France's demand for sharp criticism of Germany in a resolution attacking the reich's rearmament program.

2. Britain was reported ready to give France armed assistance if Germany violates the demilitarized Rhineland zone. An authoritative source put this interpretation on the Anglo-Italian reaffirmation of their guarantee of peace in western Europe under the Locarno treaty of 1925.

3. The council postponed action on Germany, devoting the initial session to arranging arbitration of the Italian-Abyssinian border dispute in East Africa.

4. The little entente and Balkan entente nations in southeastern Europe issued a communique tonight after secret conferences, guardedly approving the "Big Three" Stresa accords for unity of action against further unilateral denunciation of treaty obligations, thus censuring Germany's action.

Their communique "noted with satisfaction the effort just accomplished" at Stresa, and emphasized that these states "attach special importance to the imminent conclusion of treaties of mutual assistance in northeastern Europe.

These ententes include Roumania, Jugo-Slavia, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Greece and Turkey.

The startling Turkish assertion was voiced by the Turkish delegate, Tewfik Rushdi Aras, who also is chairman of the council. He told the French at luncheon that Turkey also is a vanquished nation, and hence has the same rearmament rights as Germany, Austria or Bulgaria.

French Optimistic.

The French remained optimistic to-

HARRISON TO GIVE COMPROMISE BILL TO SENATE TODAY

Certificates Would Be Redated to 1938; Two-Day Hearings Slated as Soon as Committee Finishes With NRA.

BELGRANO ASSAILS PLAN IN ATLANTA

Says 'It Is Just What Legion Has Feared' and Reasserts Demand for Immediate Payment.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(UP) President Roosevelt has agreed to compromise with congress on the soldier bonus issue and would sign a bill which Chairman Pat Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, of the senate finance committee, will introduce tomorrow, Harrison said tonight.

Harrison declined to discuss details of the measure, but it was reliably reported that its essential provisions would include:

1. Daring of the adjusted service certificates so they would mature in 1938 instead of 1945.

2. Issuance of federal negotiable bonds to veterans who desire to cash their certificates immediately.

3. A declaration of congressional policy that no pensions be provided for World War veterans.

In Atlanta, Frank N. Belgrano Jr., national commander of the American Legion, in an address before members of the organization there, said that a compromise on the bonus "is just what the Legion has feared." He asserted that the Legion is opposed to any measure which does not call for immediate payment and urged the Georgia members to ask their senators and representatives to support their stand on the issue.

Harrison said he hoped to begin hearings on the bill as soon as his committee concludes work on the revised NRA measure expected the latter part of the week. He indicated the hearings would last only two days.

The Harrison measure, it was reported, differs sharply from the Patman bonus bill passed overwhelmingly by the house. But it was said to represent the full extent to which President Roosevelt is willing to go in an effort to compose differences between the administration and congress.

The Patman bill calls for issuance

Governor Gives Kiss, Not Pardon to Girl

YOUNG HARRIS, Ga., April 15.—(AP)—A Young Harris college girl, restricted to the campus for an infraction of rules, got a kiss instead of the "clemency" she asked of Governor Talmadge today.

Returning from a highway meeting at Murphy, N. C., Governor Talmadge stopped here to address students of the college. Miss Alice Middleton, who has been restricted to the campus for the rest of the term, approached him with a request for clemency.

With a grin, the governor explained his powers stopped with matters that were handled in the court. Miss Middleton looked disappointed and someone suggested a kiss to soften the refusal.

The governor bestowed it.

1,000 Ohio Convicts Strike For More Liberal Paroles

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 15.—(AP)—A fourth of Ohio penitentiary's 4,240 convicts walked away from their machines in four prison workshops today in "passive" revolt against policies of the state parole board.

There was no violence.

Warden James C. Woodard, three months in office, tapped the institution's "grapevine" communication system tonight in a search for ringleaders of a "strike" for more paroles.

Refusing to permit outsiders to interview convicts, Woodard said he was "satisfied there will be no serious trouble."

A thousand working inmates laid down their tools and refused to work in the print shop, cotton mills, woolen mill and automobile license plate shops.

Unsuccessful in efforts to induce the convicts to return to their tasks, Woodard ordered them marched to their cells. "They went quietly and peacefully with no disturbance of any kind," he said.

Half the strikers were assembled in the prison chapel in the afternoon. There Woodard, who served as deputy warden until last January 26 and was known as a favorite of the inmates, addressed the strikers.

"I told them the best thing they could do would be to go back to work when the time comes in the morning," he said. "Most of them seemed willing to go back.

"I'll talk to the rest of them in the morning and if they don't go back we will determine then what action to take."

"Members of the board of paroles were in Mansfield to hear applications from prisoners in the reformatory there. Chairman L. S. Dugan declined to comment but Charles R. Sharp, of Ravenna, a member, asserted he knew of nothing the board had done that would be cause for a strike.

"I don't believe there have been an unusual number of cases continued and I know of nothing that would occasion the strike," Sharp said.

It was against the parole board, Woodard said, that the prisoners aimed their protests.

"The prisoners felt the board should take a more liberal attitude toward paroles," he explained.

Records at the board of paroles office show that in the last six months,

Brighten up with ALL-BRAN!

You've had days when you've felt discouraged and low. Nothing seemed to go right. Frequently these dreary days can be traced to common constipation, due to lack of "bulk" in your meals.

This ailment may cause headaches and loss of energy. Correct it by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory research shows Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and food-iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN resists digestion better than the fiber in fruits and vegetables. It is gentle—and often more effective. Isn't this natural food better than taking patent medicines—often harmful?

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal, in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Brighten days with ALL-BRAN! Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Louisiana Solons Gather In Another Mystery Session

BATON ROUGE, La., April 15.—(AP)—In another mystery stroke Senator Huey P. Long, boss of the state administration, had Governor O. K. Allen call the legislature into session today to pass laws to give his "dictatorship" authority over federal relief funds used in Louisiana and absolute supervision of city financing or applications to federal court for refinancing.

These two subjects appeared to highspot a 13-subject call issued today by the governor for convening of the legislators into extraordinary session at 10 o'clock tonight in Huey's skyscraper capitol.

In recent extraordinary sessions when Baton Rouge and Alexandria, anti-Long cities, fell before the "dictatorship," Long revealed one of the mysteries on the last day of one of the sessions when he said it was called to levy a tax on refined oil. The Standard Oil Company threatened to move part of his business out of the state and the issue was compromised with a rebate of all but 1 cent of the 5-cents-per-barrel tax providing the Standard Oil Company of Louisiana used more Louisiana crude.

National guardsmen, shouldering guns under martial law in East Baton Rouge parish since January when anti-Long leaders here rose in armed rebellion, guarded the capitol tonight as the legislators assembled.

The mystery of this session, the fifth extraordinary session in less than a year, lay in the latitude given under the call for enactment of practically any measure Long saw fit to ask a Long man to drop into the hopper.

By the handbill route Long today charged that the federal government would drop "$170,000,000" of relief funds from the $4,800,000,000 work-relief bill of the Roosevelt administration into Louisiana to fight his machin and the handbill admonished the voters to "take the money—vote as you please."

Florida Solons Refuse To Hear Huey on Wealth

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 15. (AP)—A resolution to have the Florida house of representatives invite Senator Huey P. Long, of Louisiana here to discuss his "share the wealth" idea was killed quickly and without discussion, today.

Introduced by Dixon, of Jackson, the resolutions drew laughs from members of the house. Under waiver of rules it moved through a third reading by a clerk, and then death overtook it.

Chairman Robineau, of the rules committee moved "indefinite postponement" for the resolution. That amounts to defeat, because it cannot again be brought up for consideration.

WET, DRY FORCES CENTER ON CITIES

Both Sides Lay Claim to Larger Towns, as Well as Country Areas.

By W. F. CALDWELL,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Counties containing the larger cities of the state have approximately 20 per cent of the 382,630 voters eligible for the prohibition referendum May 15 and in the last state primary they polled a little over 17 per cent of the total vote.

This and other facts were made known yesterday through the registration figures assembled by the Associated Press showing that approximately 382,630 voters can cast their ballots on the question of retention or repeal of the prohibition law. On the same day they also will vote affirmatively or negatively on the legalization of the manufacture and sale of beer and wine in Georgia.

In the state primary last fall 270,257 voters participated. The counties of Fulton, Chatham, Richmond, Bibb and Muscogee cast 46,556 of this total. These counties contain the cities of Atlanta, Savannah, Augusta, Macon and Columbus. They have together 72,910 voters eligible for the May 15 referendum.

Cities Claimed by Both.

Advocates of repeal and also of the retention of the prohibition law lay claim to the cities as well as the smaller towns and the rural vote.

Repealists point to the referendum in Atlanta in the democratic primary last year where the vote for repeal of the prohibition law was 9,454 for repeal to 3,802 against. They have emphasized that they expect to do better than this three-to-one margin in Atlanta in the coming referendum. Prohibitionists dispute their claim and say that the vote will be closer.

Prohibitionists claim DeKalb county as one of their strongholds. That county has an enrollment of 10,936 voters eligible for the May 15 referendum. In the state primary last year DeKalb polled 7,346 votes.

Bartow county has 3,150 voters eligible for the May 15 referendum. In the primary last summer Bartow polled 2,545 votes. Bartow is the home of Milton L. Fleetwood, who is directing the campaign for retention of the prohibition law. He is editor of the Cartersville Tribune-News and president of the State Press Association.

Grayson, Griffin are Leaders.

Spence M. Grayson, of Savannah, and Marvin Griffin, of Bainbridge, are heading the fight of the repeal forces. Both are members of the legislature.

Chatham county, the home of Grayson, last year polled 10,953 votes. It has 15,830 eligible to vote in the May 15 election.

Decatur, the home county of Griffin, polled 1,810 votes in the state primary and has 2,000 eligible for the May 15 referendum.

Grayson is an attorney. Griffin is editor of the Bainbridge Post-Searchlight.

Fulton county has the heaviest registration in the state, 31,850. Chatham follows with 15,830.

Active campaigns are under way by both sides and they have promised to carry the fight into every county between now and May 15. The vote is on a state-wide basis and therefore the heavily populated centers are in the minds of the strategists of the opposing armies.

Dr. C. O. Jones, former Anti-Saloon League leader, and Dr. W. A. Shelton. It could not be learned who sponsored the motion to unseat Dr. McBrayer as secretary of the organization but it was established that there was considerable argument for and against the motion which did not pass.

Resolutions Adopted.

The resolutions adopted at the session follow:

"We, the Methodist Preachers' Association of Atlanta, in regular session on this the 15th day of April, 1935, hereby express our deepest regret at the statement of Rev. H. E. McBrayer, pastor of Lakewood Heights Methodist church, that he favored repeal of Georgia's dry laws.

"That the preachers' meeting assembled on April 15 repudiates the statement of Rev. McBrayer, denies the allegations, reasserts its uncompromising warfare on the liquor business, and most heartily indorses the state bone dry law as the best means of promoting sobriety, temperance and high morality in the state, and protecting our people from the awful ravages of licensed liquor.

"That the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for a generation has declared by unanimous vote in its representative body, the general conference, its unfailing opposition to liquor in any form, and its adherence to the doctrines of prohibition. The fundamental law of the church contains this paragraph: 'Let all our preachers and members abstain from the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors to be used as a beverage, from signing petitions for their sale, from becoming bondsmen for any person as a condition for obtaining a license, from acting as a dispenser or voluntarily accepting an appointment or election as such under the laws of any state in which there is a dispensary law authorizing the sale of intoxicating liquors by the state, county or municipality, and from renting property to be used for such sale. If any member shall violate any of the provisions of this paragraph, he shall be deemed guilty of immorality.' And every member joining the Methodist church pledges himself to be subject to the discipline of the church, and perjures himself whenever he votes for liquor.

"We reaffirm our full co-operation with the Georgia Temperance League and every similar organization against the return of the legalized liquor traffic to our state and country.

"Every minister of the church is enthusiastically and wholeheartedly engaged in the preaching of the doctrine of temperance and advocating prohibition, believing in it with his whole heart, and the only exception we know of is Rev. Mr. McBrayer. We repudiate the stand he has taken and reaffirm our conviction that prohibition is the one way out, and call upon all of our people to vote to retain the bone dry law on May 15.

"(Signed)

McBrayer's Statement.

Dr. McBrayer's statement following adoption of the resolution follows:

"I stand for temperance by both precept and example but prohibition laws have failed to convince me that they are capable of promoting temperance among our people. From every direction we hear voices crying out against the intolerable intemperance into which our people have drifted. This accusation comes from our statesmen, public press and the ministers of the gospel from their pulpits. We have admitted that we are in an unprecedented era of intemperance and crime and yet all of this chaos has come to pass in a prohibition era. I am uncompromisingly convinced that the temperance for which my church stands can be promoted far more effectively under local option laws than it has been under prohibition laws."

Gainesville Group Protests.

A similar resolution criticizing the action of Dr. MacBrayer was adopted by the quarterly conference of the Gainesville district of the Methodist church, held at Flowery Branch, it was announced yesterday by Dr. John F. Yarbrough, the district presiding elder.

Dr. Yarbrough said he believed each of the 110 churches in the district would join in approving the resolution, which was sponsored by himself and by Dr. G. A. Pirkle, district secretary, and by Dr. D. A. Patterson, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church at Gainesville.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas The Atlanta Constitution of this date carried an article by the Rev. H. E. MacBrayer, pastor of the Lakewood Heights M. E. Church, South, Atlanta, in which he attempts to interpret the attitude of the entire church on the question of the repeal of the prohibition laws of Georgia.

"Therefore be it resolved, that we declare that Mr. MacBrayer does not correctly interpret our attitude on the very vital issue to be voted upon on May 15.

"We emphatically declare that we stand true to the history of Methodism since its organization and register our condemnation of, and opposition to, the liquor business whether it is handled legally or illegally.

"Be it further resolved that we deeply deplore the fact that a member of the North Georgia conference should express even as his own such sentiments as was accredited to Mr. MacBrayer in the article referred to."

Varying Views Expressed.

Different views on repeal were expressed by Marietta leaders Monday. Judge J. H. Hawkins, in charging the grand jury, declaring that repeal of prohibition will not stamp out bootlegging, while Martin Amorous, widely known businessman of that city and Atlanta, came out whole-heartedly for repeal.

In his charge to the grand jury, Judge Hawkins said:

"If you vote to bring back the legalized sale of whisky the question arises as to whom you wish to drink the whisky. Do you wish your wife, or your children, or your grandchildren to drink it? Do you want it for your doctor to drink, or your lawyer or for the officers of the law to drink? Do you wish your school teacher to have it or the merchant with whom you trade? Do you want the automobile drivers or your neighbors to drink it?

"Those states which have legalized the sale of whiskey have found out that bootleggers were not put out of business. So long as the United States, the state, the county, and the municipality get a tax on the lawful sale of whisky, the evils of bootlegging will exist."

Amorous Urges Repeal.

Mr. Amorous, in discussing the situation, declared that he felt that from a taxation point of view, if no other, the law ought to be wiped off the statute books.

"In Atlanta, where I have holdings, it has been stated that the dry law costs $1,500,000 a year to attempt to enforce," the Marietta leader declared. "Solicitor John S. McClelland has stated that in one year he prosecuted 5,860 prohibition law violators, while Walter Hendrix, former chairman of the county board, is authority for the statement that 40 per cent of the 1,200 prisoners on the Fulton county chain gangs are there for prohibition law violations and therefore cost the county many thousands of dollars a year."

Mr. Amorous added that enforcement over Georgia cost the state, the counties and the municipalities $5,000,000 a year.

"So, with no benefit to temperance among our people we are having great losses to our tax money, and meanwhile our schools are starving for the funds they need so badly," he stated. "If the churches will organize their members into total abstinence societies we will have real temperance and no need for prohibition laws."

000 pounds, mainly owing to loss in revenue involved in reducing the income tax and abolishing the tax on the cheapest theater seats and reducing it on others.

The increased heavy expenditure for the defense services was figured into the original balance striking and had no effect on the final surplus figure, he explained.

Exemptions Raised.

Chamberlain proposed that instead of the existing 175 pounds (about $875) of taxable income being charged at 2 shillings, 3 pence, (about 51 cents) per pound, that the first 135 pounds of taxable income should be charged at the rate of 1 shilling, 6 pence (about 36 cents).

In addition, the personal exemption of a married man would be raised from 150 pounds ($750) to 170 pounds ($850) and the exemption for each child after the first would be raised from 40 pounds to 50 pounds. Chamberlain estimated the cost of the income tax changes at 10,000,000 pounds (about $49,000,000) for the year.

"Nowhere else in the world," said Chamberlain, "can you find a parallel for the results achieved here."

War Debt Out.

His budget, balanced as it is, contains, however, no provision again this year for payment of the war debt now owed to the United States, listed in Chamberlain's official debt ledger at $4,368,000,000. But the tall, angular dry-humored chancellor acknowledged amid cheers the repayment last summer by the South African government the balance of its war debt, 7,500,000 pounds ($36,375,000).

The chancellor mentioned with some alarm a diminishing birth rate in England, in announcing his proposed increase of exemptions for children of income tax payers from 40 to 50 pounds for each child after the first.

"Unless something is done about this diminuntion of the birth rate," he said, "the time may not be far distant when this nation will not be able to send any emigrants to the Dominions."

"Taking the country as a whole," he said, "we can see that improvement has been solid, continuous and steady. Confidence is the mother of enterprise. Broadly speaking, we can see that we have recovered in this country 80 per cent of our prosperity.

"Our task now is to win back the remaining 20 per cent without losing the confidence we have already established."

BRITISH TAX STILL HIGHER THAN UNITED STATES LEVIES

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—Treasury officials, informed of prospective British income tax reductions in the lower brackets, commented today that Great Britain could make a hefty slash in its rates and they still would be considerably above present American rates.

There was keen interest, however, in the announcement that British reduction was planned because Britain's national finances would show a surplus in the coming fiscal year.

A comparison of present United States and British rates based on treasury estimates of the levies paid by a "married man with no dependents" whose entire income was "earned" shows:

Net Income.	U. S.	Great Britain.
$1,000	$0	$5.63
1,500	0	50.65
2,000	0	95.63
2,500	0	182.81
3,000	8	272.81
3,500	26	362.81
4,000	44	452.81
4,500	62	542.81
5,000	80	632.81
6,000	116	812.81
7,000	172	902.81
8,000	248	1,195.31
9,000	329	1,420.31
10,000	415	1,645.31
12,000	602	2,205.31

This table was calculated at a pound sterling valued $5. In Britain the exemption for a child is $200; in the United States $400.

Mother Seeks Return Of "Doorstep Baby"

TULSA, Okla., April 15.—(AP)—Tulsa police today were looking for a "doorstep baby."

Chief of Police Charles Carr received a letter signed by Mrs. Clara Iler, Miami, Fla., saying that she left her two-month-old child on the steps of the jail here while fleeing from police recently.

"I want my baby. Please tell me I can have him. If you are a daddy, you will know how I feel," the letter to the chief appealed.

BATTLE ANNIVERSARY AT CHANCELLORSVILLE

Governor Talmadge and members of his staff have been invited to attend the celebration of the seventy-second anniversary of the Battle of Chancellorsville, which will be held May 2 on the battlefield near Fredericksburg.

Georgia is one of the 28 states which had troops in the famous battle. Georgian troops included 32 regiments of infantry, six batteries of artillery and eight troops of cavalry. Although victorious, the Confederate army suffered irreparable loss, inasmuch as General Stonewall Jackson was killed in the engagement.

The celebration is sponsored by the Fredericksburg Battlefield Park Association and will be featured by various military maneuvers. Governors of surrounding states and their staffs have been invited.

THE RAILWAY CRISIS

CENTRAL OF GEORGIA

During the past month three more railroads have been added to the list of those defaulting upon their obligations. This brings the total of those in bankruptcy to 60,000 miles, or 25 per cent of the total mileage in the United States. Bonds in default aggregate more than a billion and a half dollars. These securities are widely held by investment concerns, insurance companies, educational institutions and individuals.

The spread of such conditions will bring grave consequences to the entire country. Congress has the power to avert pending disaster:

(1) by the prompt enactment of legislation placing all agencies of public transportation under the same system of regulation and control;

(2) by the defeat of legislation which will increase the cost of railway operation.

The general public has a stake in the welfare of the railroads because the railroads are large purchasers of materials and supplies, heavy taxpayers, and employers of many people. Crippled and bankrupt railroads will retard recovery. A sound transportation policy will make the railroads helpful factors in economic recovery and social progress.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

U. S. INVESTIGATOR ENTERS DUST AREA

Boiling Silt Continues Ravages as Erosion Step Is Taken.

By the Associated Press.

Vagrant winds blew traffic-stalling dust in southern Colorado Monday, tossed a mild threat of cold at fruit buds in Missouri and Kansas, fanned flames of an orphanage fire near St. Louis and hindered shipping on Lake Erie.

The dust storm situation drew federal attention with the sending of M. L. Wilson, assistant secretary of agriculture, on an inspection tour of southwestern Kansas. Accompanied by Governor Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, he headed into the area to gather facts for presentation to Secretary Wallace. His report "will be used in development of a long-time soil erosion project," he said.

At Washington, Wallace's department said the drouth situation in the western plains on April 1 was "even worse" than at the same time last year.

Train and highway traffic was at a standstill in southeastern Colorado yesterday. The dust storm there was a continuation of Sunday's in which the 5-year-old son of Elmer Collins, a rancher, was lost for four hours. Monday's duster blanketed southwestern Colorado, falling on the Rockies.

A dust storm also hampered traffic near Grantsville, Utah, and caused many parents to keep their children out of school.

Smudge pots were burned last night in the Missouri Ozarks to safeguard budding fruit trees against a predicted frost.

One hundred and sixteen children marched in orderly fashion from the burning Lutheran Orphans' home in St. Louis county. The flames, which broke out as the children were finishing morning prayers, spread rapidly before a 22-mile-an-hour wind and caused damage estimated at $150,000.

On Lake Erie, a 45-mile-an-hour gale confined heavy freighters to harbor.

Dust clouds still hung over the repeatedly hit Oklahoma panhandle yesterday. They were only the remnants, however, of Sunday's intense storm which one farmer stated created a darkness as deep as that of the cellar in which he sought refuge—fearinf a cyclone. Sunday's blow scattered members of a funeral cortege near Boise City, Okla.

Other dust yesterday rolled over Alpine, Texas, in the Big Bend region of the Lone Star state.

Dust winds abated in Minnesota.

Sir Charles Marston To Visit City; Bride Is Former Atlanta Resident

Sir Charles Marston, one of England's most famous industrialists, authors, archaeologists and Bible students, will be in Atlanta Thursday with his wife, the former Mrs. Mary Battey Bonney, whom he married early this month in New York.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. George Magruder Battey, of 34 Fifteenth street, N. E. Sir Charles and Lady Marston will visit here several days with her relatives.

While in Atlanta, Sir Charles is expected to give a lecture on his archaeological research work in Palestine.

For 10 years Sir Charles has directed extensive excavations in the Holy Land seeking scientific proof of the Bible stories and he has unearthed many relics which tend to prove the truth of the stories told in the Bible.

He has verified the religious beliefs of Christians throughout the world with his scientific proof, and he has brought comfort and certainty to their minds.

Sir Charles is one of the wealthiest men in England, and was knighted in 1926 by King George for his service to the country. He is the owner of the John Marston Works, manufacturers of motorcycles.

His wife formerly resided here and has many friends in Atlanta. They will stop at the Biltmore hotel during their visit. Sir Charles probably will go to Rome while here to see the home of his wife's grandfather, Dr. Robert Battey, the internationally known surgeon.

Many social affairs are being planned here for Sir Charles and Lady Marston.

The Englishman is author of a number of books, including "New Bible Evidences" and "New Knowledge About the Old Testament." He recently spoke over a New York radio station concerning his excavation work in Palestine, from where he returned last month.

Sir Charles and Lady Marston will remain in the United States several months before going to England to reside.

Iowa, where light rains fell in the east, reported only a small amount of silt—blown in from other states.

Wisconsin and the Chicago area had snow flurries.

Georgia Society Fetes State D.A.R. Delegates

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—Georgia delegates to the Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution were honored by the Georgia Society, of Washington, tonight at a brilliant ball and reception.

Among the delegates, numbering about 30, were Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge, of Athens, candidate for secretary general of the national society, and Mrs. H. Fay Gaffney, of Columbus, in the race for D. A. R. curator general.

Representative Ramspeck, Georgia Society president; Senators George and Russell, Mrs. George, members of the state's house group, and a great number of Washington's Georgia population greeted the Daughters, in one of the capital's fashionable hotels.

The program for intermission was a clog dance by Representative Whelchel.

About 300 Georgians, now employed with the "New Deal" here, are members of the state society.

9 Anti-Long Jurors Ejected by Militia

BATON ROUGE, La., April 15.—(AP)—Nine elected anti-Long police jurors of East Baton Rouge parish were ejected from the parish courthouse tonight by national guardsmen when they assembled for what one of the jurors called "an informal discussion."

The elected jurors, who are hostile to Senator Huey P. Long's political machine, were dispersed as they gathered in an ante-chamber to the regular meeting room of the police jury, the governing council of the parish.

The state supreme court recently granted the Long state administration an order prohibiting the nine elected police jurors from interfering in any way with the functioning of 13 jurors Long had appointed to outvote them and four elected jurors friendly to the state administration as the parish's governing officials.

Decision on Foulois Is Sought by Solons

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—A house military subcommittee decided in secret session today that the War Department should be prodded to a quick decision on whether Major General Benjamin D. Foulois is to be ousted as chief of the army air corps.

It voted to ask the full committee to request of Secretary Dern a report on the department's own investigation of charges against Foulois by the subcommittee. On these charges it based a recommendation that Foulois be removed.

MRS. RINGLING GIVES LAND FOR AGED ACTORS

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP)—Mrs Charles Ringling announced today that she had donated 20 acres from her estate at Sarasota, Fla., to the Circuit Saints' and Sinners' Society to be used as a home for retired circus performers.

Dexter Fellows, publicity man for the Ringland Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Combined Shows, said Samuel W. Gumpertz, general manager of the circus has promised to build the first 10 bungalows on the property to start the colony.

"They've got to accept the offer," Fellows said.

The property is located on Ringling boulevard, it was said, nafely a mile from the circus' winter quarters.

The Saints' and Sinners' Society, an organization formed to aid old circus performers, had suggested buying property in Richmond, Va., for the home, but the plan has been shelved tentatively.

SIX PHILADELPHIANS STRICKEN FROM BAR

PHILADELPHIA, April 15.—(AP)—In an unprecedented purge prosecuted by the local bar association, a state senator, a civil service commissioner and four other Philadelphia lawyers today were disbarred from the practice of law by the common pleas courts.

Collusion with racketeers and other unethical practices were charged. Two others were exonerated, but were admonished.

Investigation of the lawyers was prompted by Judge Horace Stern nearly a year ago when he wrote to Roland S. Morris, chancellor of the bar association, while sitting in a court dealing especially with arrests in the "numbers game" lottery.

On his exhortation that the bar "clean house," a special investigating committee was appointed and secret hearings were held last fall. Eight citations for "unprofessional conduct" resulted. Open hearings before five president judges of the common pleas court were held last month and consumed two weeks. All eight lawyers categorically denied the charges.

The senator disbarred is Samuel W. Salus, 63, a state legislator for 32 years and a lawyer for 40 years, whose conduct the court branded "represensible."

Herbert W. Salus, Philadelphia civil service commissioner, is the senator's younger brother. The "extraordinary feature" is that he "evidently regards his conduct as meritorious," the court said.

The others disbarred and the court's comment:

Albert P. Goldberg, employed by the Salus law office—"guilty of the grossest kind of professional misconduct."

Arthur S. Werblun—"sought to conceal his misdeeds by false and evasive testimony and by the destruction of account books of his firm."

Charles J. Green, former partner of Werblun—"equally culpable."

Bernard L. Lemisch—abbetted "a criminal conspiracy."

Discharged:

Fred Camgartner, former assemblyman—"displayed an abundant ignorance of things going on about him in his own office."

U. J. Brodsky, former associate of Lemisch—"deserves censure."

Three Held in Plot To Assassinate Il Duce

GENEVA, April 15—(UP)—French officials informed Geneva police today that they had arrested three anarchists at Marseilles on charges of having plotted to assassinate Premier Benito Mussolini at the Stresa conference last week.

The plotters subsequently planned to assassinate Foreign Minister Pierre Laval, of France, Foreign Minister Edouard Benes, of Czechoslovakia and Foreign Minister Nicholas Titulescu, of Rumania, during the present League council meeting at Geneva, police said.

MINORS' MARRIAGE IS RULED LEGAL BY MISS. TRIBUNAL

JACKSON, Miss., April 15.—(AP)—Regardless of its failure to receive religious sanction and to comply with the state's revised marriage statutes, marriage of a reputedly minor girl to a youth was upheld today by the Mississippi supreme court as a valid civic contract.

The decision was given in the case of Rosalie Lovett Hunt, 13, by her mother as next friend, against W. A. Hunt Jr., 19, by his guardian, and was an affirmation of the lower court's ruling in Lauderdale county.

The mother objected to the marriage on the grounds that her daughter, a member of the Roman Catholic church, had been married to a Protestant youth "without the sanction of the church," the church refused to recognize the marriage because the girl was under the age of 14.

Objection also was raised on the point that the clerk did not give five days' notice before issuing a license to minors and the objectors pointed out that one section of the state code "has raised the common-law age of capacity for marriage of females from 12 years to 14."

The supreme court held that a circuit clerk is not required to "know" the ages of parties applying for marriage licenses, but must "believe" that they are above the statutory age for marriage before issuing the license.

The high court held further that the fact that the couple was not of statutory age did not invalidate the marriage under civil law.

GEORGIA RELIEF FUND SITUATION UNCHANGED

Hopkins Continues Silent on State's Failure to Obtain April Allotment.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—The breach between Governor Talmadge, of Georgia, and National Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins today was in status quo as Hopkins continued silent on the state's failure to obtain an allotment for April relief which was being taken care of with money accumulated from past months.

Aubrey Williams, assistant to Hopkins, said Miss Gay B. Shepperson, Georgia administrator, had sufficient funds to run at least a week. There was no additional comment forthcoming as to what would happen when present funds are exhausted.

The FERA finance division said $300,000 had been forwarded on April 5 for the Pine Mountain homesteads and $200,000 on April 9 for general relief.

The administration said it had no record of $1,200,000 having been sent to the state for April relief.

In Atlanta, however, it was explained that checks which the governor was reported to have signed apparently were for funds already on hand.

Although the governor has no voice in the administration of relief in the state, all funds are set aside in an account known as the governor's fund.

From time to time checks are signed by the governor for withdrawal of funds from the governor's fund to reimburse the relief revolving fund.

It was explained this was a matter of bookkeeping and represents a transfer of money already alloted and not that new allotments have been received.

COURT WILL RULE ON NIRA LEGALITY

Final Decision Will Be Given on New York Poultry Case.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—Agreement by the supreme court to decide the constitutionality of NRA's vital labor provisions at this term, probably within the next six weeks, drew prompt demands today from senatorial critics of the Blue Eagle for congress to withhold extension of the recovery law until the court has acted.

Administration leaders, however, said the bill to extend and revise the NRA would be pushed ahead. They insisted it should be placed on the statute books before June 16 when the present act expires.

The high court agreed to review the Schechter poultry case, which the government has characterized as an ideal test of the law. It involves a fundamental issue in NRA—the authority to regulate minimum wages and maximum hours. May 2 was set for the hearing of arguments on the case based on lower court rulings concerning the Schechter Poultry Corporation, of Brooklyn.

Delay Sought.

Demands for congress to hold up enactment of new NRA legislation until after the supreme court has ruled came from Senators Hastings, republican, Delaware, and Clark, democrat, Missouri, who sought unsuccessfully last month to have the administration hold its precious test case, involving an Alabama lumber company, before the high court. The government, however, withdrew its appeal from an adverse decision of a lower court.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, also contended today that congress should not act finally on the new recovery law until after the supreme court decision, but added there was no reason why it should not push the measure along the first steps of its parliamentary path.

Clark, hard-fighting critic of the recovery law, said if the NRA bill came up in the senate before the court acted, he would move to extend the present law for six months so that congress would have time to deliberate on the new law after the high court's ruling.

Not Alter Course.

Chairman Harrison, of the senate finance committee, which is considering the new legislative proposals, said the court's action would not alter his course.

"We're not going to hold back because of the supreme court case," he said, "because we must get this out of the way by June 16."

Harrison said his committee would complete its hearings this week and go into executive session immediately to begin framing the new legislation.

The seemingly endless line of witnesses today continued to file past the finance committee, testifying both for and against the recovery law.

Compromise Seen.

Back stage negotiations also were under way to compromise conflicting senate views on the more controversial issues.

Senate critics of NRA were pleased at the supreme court development, though some of them asserted the case was not a test of the government's right to regulate intrastate commerce.

The Schechter poultry case came up to the high court from the second circuit court of appeals, which decided against the government on the wage and hour provisions of the law.

The appeals court upheld the government on a number of other points, but said it had no power under the constitution to regulate hours and wages.

Both the poultry company and the government asked the court to decide the case at the present term. Solicitor-General Reed said in the government's petition, "The issue as to the validity of such provisions is of vital concern to each of the many industries for which codes have been approved."

The defendants were indicted for paying an employe less than 50 cents an hour and working an employe longer than 60 hours a week in violation of the live poultry code which provided a minimum wage of 50 cents an hour and a maximum work week of 48 hours.

1,041 Sign Petition.

Key's liquor store petition had 1,041 signers yesterday when the office of J. Henson Tatum, city clerk, closed for the day. This was 809 short of the required 1,850 needed to force an election on the ordinance.

The council flurry developed when Councilman Howard C. McCutcheon, proponent of a move to abrogate the council ordinance forcing petitions to be signed in Tatum's office, called his repealing ordinance from the table and attempted vainly to pass it.

Success for the repealing move would have allowed sponsors of the rum store operation to circulate the petition and would have obviated the necessity for signers to visit the city hall.

"Whether you want an election on this matter or not, you are going to get it," McCutcheon told council. "Now a large majority of this council does not want an election, but when you get it and the people vote four to five to one for it, as they will, you all will be for it."

An appeal then was made to Savage to ascertain whether the repealing ordinance was legal, and he said in his opinion it was.

Two Attack Proposal.

Aldermen Frank H. Reynolds and I. Gloer Hailey then attacked the liquor store proposal.

"I think the ordinance requiring persons interested in initiating legislation to sign such petitions at the city hall is right," Alderman J. Charlie Murphy told council.

"If we repeal it, we let the bars down. I'll tell you now that even if that petition was signed by 50 per cent of the registered voters instead of the 10 per cent, which is required, I'd never vote for an election to be set on it. And I'd like to see the color of the judge's eyes who would mandamus this council to call any such illegal election.

"Personally, I do not believe we will ever have an election on this issue. I do not believe this council is yet ready to go into the bootlegging business. I do not think it is yet ready to order the police department to go into the hi-jacking business. Why should we change the law to favor those who want to vote on an illegal measure, such as this is?

"The law is not mandatory that we shall set an election and submit an illegal paper to the voters of Atlanta, and I do not propose to vote for it."

McCutcheon Wants Delay.

McCutcheon said he had not attempted to push the signing of the petition because he did not want Atlantans to vote on the same day that they vote on repeal of the state bone dry laws.

"I want it after repeal has been voted," he asserted.

Key, however, has announced he wants the vote on May 15.

McCutcheon failed to push his repealing vote over, and those wishing to sign must continue to do so in Tatum's office on the first floor of the city hall.

Soon after the session was opened, Councilman Alvin L. Richards, thirteenth ward, obtained the floor to assail any effort to get any more slum clearance projects for Atlanta.

"I do not think we should send to Washington any more to get federal money for any such projects," Richards told council. "We have two more here now than we need. (He referred to Techwood and University low cost slum clearance projects being constructed here by the federal government).

"I am not criticizing Alderman Gilliam (Ed A. Gilliam, who last week went to Washington in an effort to place Atlanta's claims early for federal aid from the $4,880,000,000 fund and among which were four additional slum clearance areas) for his activities," he said.

"He has done a good job, and if anyone is sent to Washington for any purpose I think we should send him. But that is my feeling about slum clearance."

Participation Limited.

Gilliam filed a report with council in which he said that Atlanta's participation in governmental expenditures will be limited because of the necessity to issue general obligation bonds to secure any funds advanced. He expressed hope, however, that some funds may be made available for use here, and asserted he believed the fact that the city's needs were filed early would be of material benefit.

"About this going to Washington," Gilliam said. "I did go at the request of Councilman Max M. Cuba, chairman of the municipal housing authority. I think if federal funds are available, we should get what we can in spite of politicians who are trying to block us."

Other Council Action.

Among other major actions of council yesterday were the following:

1. Asked feedral aid in extending Williams street from its present terminus into Peachtree street near the Brookwood station; $230,000 to eliminate 16 dangerous railway crossings, and $400,000 for construction of an underpass at the Southern crossing on Marietta street near North avenue.

2. Voted to accept $1,500 in settlement with bondsmen of former Marshal J. Ben Daniel for shortages in Daniel's accounts.

3. Voted to allow a two per cent discount for payment of current year city taxes from May 1-15 and a one per cent discount for payment from May 15 to July 16.

4. Established another division of the recorder's court at the police station from 10:30 until 12:30 o'clock each week day to be devoted principally to trial of traffic cases.

Gas Tax Payment.

5. Agreed to pay $20,000 of the $43,000 owed the state of Georgia for gasoline tax immediately and the remainder in June.

6. Approved an ordinance setting up the newly enacted pension provisions for those in the general fund, major provisions of which follow: Retirement at end of 25 years' service with payment of one-half salary up to $100 a month maximum, payment of three per cent into the fund by the employe and four per cent if the wife is named as a beneficiary, the wife to draw a maximum of $75 a month. Employes now pay only two per cent and retire on straight half salary.

7. Set up a fund of $3,461 to enforce the ordinance requiring the licensing and inoculation of dogs against rabies.

8. Referred to the streets committee several proposals that condemnation proceedings be instituted to acquire the right of way for extension of Whitehall street into Lee street, and voted to relieve several merchants of one-third of their licenses along Peters street during the construction of the Peters street viaduct.

Fire College Fund Set Up.

9. Set up $250 to help defray the expenses of the fire college to be held here.

10. Set up $27 as expenses for the investigation of the office of Lloyd A. Walker, city purchasing agent.

11. Defeated a move to allow city employes to enter the 1927 pension fund after City Attorney Jack C. Savage ruled it was not legal, and Mayor Pro Tem. Gilliam ruled the measure out of order.

12. Elected J. W. Leitch and R. S. Lowrance as members of the Carnegie library board from the eleventh and seventh wards, respectively.

13. Asked Senators Walter F. George and Richard B. Russell Jr., and Congressman Robert Ramspeck to protest the proposal to abandon the branch postoffice in the Peachtree Arcade.

14. Voted to allow busses to stop at Cone and Walton streets, the Union Station plaza, Gordon and Lee streets, Hunter and Washington streets and Forsyth and Whitehall streets to discharge or take on passengers.

Hastings Sponsors Extension.

Councilman William G. Hastings was the author of the Williams street extension proposal and also the request for establishment of mechanical safety devices at the following intersections:

Whitehall street at the Central of Georgia; McCall's crossing and the same road; Henderson's crossing at Ridge avenue over the Southern Railway; Boulevard and Tenth street at the same road; Moreland avenue at the Georgia railway crossing; Howard street and the same road; South Boulevard, Lakewood avenue crossing at Milton avenue; Fair street and Fort McPherson at Evans drive, where they cross the A. & W. P.; Cooledge crossing at Campbellton road at the Georgia railway crossing; Sylvan road at the Central of Georgia crossing; McDaniel street, Humphries street, Wells street, Lake avenue at the Southern Railway crossings, and North avenue at Marietta street.

night that their memorandum on German rearmament would not be altered.

Foreign Minister Pierre Laval devealed that he had succeeded in gaining reluctant support from the Little Entente nations to the Stresa proposal permitting Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria to rearm. This was one bright spot in a disconcerting day for diplomats of Britain, France and Italy.

The general interpretation of Britain's readiness to join Italy in military assistance to France in case Germany violates the demilitarized zone caused the first major stir during the day.

British sources frankly admitted that England now is ready to intervene to safeguard the Rhineland zone as a buffer area against war—but insisted the declaration with Italy agreeing to the same thing was not aimed at Germany, because it also protects Germany from French aggression.

The initial day's session got off to a slow start as far as German rearmament is concerned, the council's original opening being postponed until midafternoon to let the various delegates sound each other out.

As a result, the French demand for consideration of action against Germany's denunciation of the military clauses of the Versailles treaty by Adolf Hitler's conscript army program was postponed until tomorrow.

The United Press definitely confirmed that the "big three" resolution to be set before the council in the morning will:

1—Expressly condemn Germany.

2—Establish a committee to devise measures, such as economic sanctions, to punish future treaty violators.

The council instead turned its attention to the Italian-Abyssinian border dispute in East Africa, and in a private session arranged that this should be settled only through arbitration, as requested by Abyssinia in the face of Italy's rushing thousands of crack troops to Africa. Details will be settled at the regular May council session.

large sum. I hope that this money will be spent in North Carolina and Georgia to help posterity.

Paying Our Share.

"Georgia and North Carolina are paying their proportionate shares of this five billions and I want to see it spent in our two states for good roads, bridges and other things. I am opposed to spending that money for aesthetic dancing and ballet etiquette. I am opposed to using it to survey the Caribbean sea.

"Some of it is being spent now in New York to survey the Mediterranean to compare with Roman times. It's a sin, my friends, to put a debt on posterity and throw the money away. We have a tax of twenty-one dollars and twenty-five cents on every bale of cotton and Georgia in that pays more than twenty-one million dollars one crop.

"The cotton and textile industries will not grow and flourish until this processing tax is entirely abolished. They have taught us to plow up cotton, burn wheat and kill sows and little pigs. Importations of cotton goods from Japan have increased more than 2,000 per cent. We import corn and oats from South America and when they reach our ports the tariff is almost all written off under authority from Washington. Why, we have even imported cottonseed meal from China.

Industry Holds Key.

"Real recovery and prosperity will come from private industry, from honest people at work paying taxes and not looking to the government for anything but a square deal. That brain truster crowd in Washington—some of those who ought to be out in private industry themselves—called us radicals and the last spasm we had was the spectacle Saturday night of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace speaking to farmers at the Wesley Memorial church in Atlanta, where the only farmers that ever go are those that have offices in big buildings.

"He said anybody that criticized them for killing hogs and plowing up cotton were radicals. We people in the south know you can't borrow yourself out of debt, make water run uphill and drink yourself sober. But let the picnic run on, let the follies up there go on. We are coming out of this despair. We have to get back to fundamentals, get back to the country church and brick schoolhouses."

Greeted En Route.

Governor Talmadge was cheered at frequent intervals and laughter interspersed his talk, which was delivered from a narrow platform on the side of a recreational building to the throng standing on a hillside.

The governor was introduced by D. Witherspoon, Murphy attorney. He was preceded by Chairman Capus Waynick, of the North Carolina Highway Board.

Along the route from Atlanta to Murphy today the governor was greeted in the hamlets by throngs of farmers and town folks who gathered to shake his hand.

FLORIDA SOLONS PLEAD FOR SEA-GULF CANAL

Ask Roosevelt To Route Project Through Their State Intead of Georgia.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Reviving agitation for government construction of a great Atlantic to the Gulf ship canal, over which intense rivalry has developed between Florida and Georgia, the Florida congressional delegation called on President Roosevelt in a body today to urge approval of plans for digging the canal in their state as one of the first major projects to be undertaken under the new expanded public works program.

It was at the insistence of Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, that the Public Works Administration some months ago allocated funds for a survey of the canal project at the hands of army engineers. The army engineers in their report supplied data on both the all-Florida route and the alternative route between Georgia and Florida along the St. Mary's river, suggested as the eastern terminus. While approving the engineering feasibility of the several plans the report raised questions of doubt as to the economic soundness of the proposed canal.

Calling at the White House today the Florida congressional delegation held a lengthy conference with the president. Afterwards Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, acting as spokesman for the group, said that assurances had been given them by Mr. Roosevelt that the plans already submitted to the PWA will be given early consideration.

According to Senator Fletcher, work on the canal could be initiated at once and would provide employment for upwards of 25,000 men for several years.

of the naval building program lauched by the Roosevelt administration.

Several brokers were questioned during the day regarding the battle for the controlling stock while Smith, solemn faced, sat on a spectators' bench, awaiting his call tomorrow to tell the part he played in acquiring control that was shared with the Cord Corporation.

War-Time Control

The committee plan for war-time control and taxing of industry proposes to take all industrial profits above 3 per cent; all individual earnings above $10,000, and to make industrial leaders subject to army discipline or duty in the trench if they fail to co-operate in war-time production.

Baruch asserted, however, that such drastic measures would result in disruption of the industrial system.

"It is my deliberate and considered judgment," the financier said, "that the Flynn plan would insure an exaggerated inflation far greater than if there were no plan at all, paralyze war production and render this nation practically helpless against a major attack by an enemy possessing an economic and industrial system fairly comparable with our own."

Disruption Hit.

While conceding that it may be "decried" that "ours is an economy activated by profits," Baruch nevertheless warned against disruption of the industrial system "when the enemy is at the gates."

"Plainly the result of the Flynn plan would not be merely to skim off the profits due to war," he said. "It is, with insignificant exception, to abolish the present economic system in war. I am not debating here whether the profit motive is right or wrong. I am only insisting that we recognize reality and what is here proposed."

He branded as "clearly in error" Flynn's suggestion that the nation could pay all its war costs by taxing profits and could avoid inflation merely by taxation.

"You certainly cannot pay the cost of war by taking war profits," Baruch said, "because profit is but a small part of war cost."

He attributed to Flynn "slanders" and "insinuations" against members of the War Industries Board and declared he would "stand on the record" to refute them.

U. S. To Prosecute Insull Third Time

CHICAGO, April 15.—(AP)—The federal government chose today to make one last effort to punish Samuel Insull and his colleagues for an alleged criminal transfer of the assets of Corporation Securities Company with foreknowledge of its collapse.

Acquitted of charges of embezzlement and larcency and a gigantic mail fraud conspiracy, Insull and eight others, including his son, Samuel Jr., must face trial for the alleged removal of $2,558,120 from the company treasury before they will stand clear.

The state, believing conviction impossible, had dropped its last indictment and it had been thought the federal Department of Justice would abandon its prosecution, too, for the bankruptcy indictment had been generally regarded as the weaker charge. But Attorney-General Cummings at Washington concurred in the recommendation of District Attorney Dwight H. Green that he proceed with trial.

Compromise Plan on Bonus Assailed by Belgrano Here

National Legion Commander Says Organization Against Anything But Immediate Payment

Georgia members of the American Legion last night were called upon by the Legion's national commander, Frank N. Belgrano Jr., of San Francisco, to press the state's two senators and 10 congressmen to oppose any bonus measure which does not call for immediate payment.

Without referring to the measure by name, Commander Belgrano, in an address before a meeting of the fifth district department of the Legion at the Henry Grady hotel, included the proposal which Senator Pat Harrison said yesterday he plans to introduce today as a substitute for the Patman bill, already passed by the house of representatives.

"I see by the late newspapers that there is to be presented tomorrow a bonus bill which is a sort of a compromise," Commander Belgrano said. "This is just what the Legion has feared. The leaders of the Legion want every member in Georgia to communicate with his senators and representatives in Washington and ask them not to support any measure which does not call for immediate payment."

Urges Immediate Payment.

Making his address at a dinner in his honor which marked a stopover here on his way to visit the veterans in the Augusta hospital, Commander Belgrano said that he felt that the war veterans are as much entitled to the immediate payment of the adjusted service certificates as were corporations and individuals who had war contracts with the government and whose adjustment claims were paid almost immediately after cessation of hostilities.

"It is the opponents of the adjusted service certificates who call them the bonus," the Legion chief said. "They actually are nothing but certificates to pay the men in uniform something like what he was worth to the country and they are a just debt of the nation just as are the other debts which have long since been paid."

Legion Going Forward.

Making his second speech here since his election at the Miami convention last year, Commander Belgrano declared that the Legion is going forward with its program, citing the fact that its program for national defense has just been enacted into law by congress and approved by the president.

"There are scores of activities in which the Legion is showing the way but you never hear about them because they do not make sensational news," he declared. "However, at every hand the Legion is doing things to make the nation a better nation in the years to come."

The Atlanta Post No. 1 of the Legion was in charge of last night's dinner with Kenneth Murrell, post commander, presiding. State Commander DeLacey Allen, of Albany, who is conducting Commander Belgrano and Mrs. Belgrano over the state, presented the national chief to the dinner guests, who numbered about 200.

District Commander George Beck and a number of post commanders and other Legion officials attended the dinner in honor of the national leader.

F. D. R. TO ACCEPT BONUS COMPROMISE

of non-interest bearing treasury notes or "greenbacks" for immedjate payment in full of the $2,300,000,000 in adjusted service certificates. It was reported that figures compiled by the Veterans Administration indicated that the Harrison proposal would cost the government only a maximum of $700,000,000 if all veterans took advantage of an opportunity to cash their certificates at once. The amount would be much less if the veterans delayed action until 1938.

The manner in which the $700,000,000 estimate was made could not be learned. However, senators associated with veterans' legislation said it no doubt included the amount of interest the government would save by advancing the maturity date for some and paying immediate cash to others.

President Roosevelt's willingness to compromise on the bonus issue came as a surprise to Capitol Hill. Administration spokesmen have stated repeatedly that the chief executive would stand firm in his announced position that veterans as a class have been better treated by the government than any other group of American citizens.

Harrison conferred with the chief executive at length yesterday afternoon and with Representative Wright Patman, democrat, Texas, author of the Patman bill today.

"I will introduce a bonus bill tomorrow and if it is approved by congress, the president will sign it," the Mississippian said late today. He refuted reports that the administration would accept a bonus bill which would make inflation on a large scale mandatory.

"The measure I will submit," he added, "will not require additional taxes."

The administration, it was learned, will insist upon a statement of congressional policy in opposition to extension of the present pensions system. It is known that President Roosevelt and his advisers have feared that the World War veterans would demand pensions if they succeeded in forcing immediate payment of the bonus. There is nothing in the Patman bill which closes this door.

BOARD BEGINS STUDY OF SCHOOL SALARIES

Preliminary study of school employes' salaries was begun last night by a special school board committee and it was decided that consideration of the pay of the instructional staff will be the major matter to be considered at the next meeting, to be called by W. W. Matthews, chairman.

Thomas C. Clift, school business manager, submitted several lists of salaries of employes and they were distributed to committee members. He also presented several suggested schedules for study by the group.

During the discussions, Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, told the committee that although basic salaries of Atlanta teachers in the aggregate are about 25 per cent lower than the average of other American cities in Atlanta's population class, that the cuts here have been relatively larger.

The following table of comparative percentage cuts was presented:

School—	Atlanta.	Other Cities.
Elementary	18	9.25
Junior high	22	11.5
Senior high	22	10.8

Detailed studies of the maintenance and operations department, the administrative staff and clerical help will follow the studies of teachers' salaries, and a report will be filed with the board for consideration, Matthews asserted.

Winter Will Stage Return Engagement

Winter will pay a one-day return visit to Atlanta today, to be followed by rising temperatures tomorrow, according to George W. Mindling, meteorologist here.

"Fair and colder" is the forecast for today. Chill, varying winds will invade the city, and the maximum temperature during the afternoon will be around 50 degrees. The minimum this morning was to be 36 degrees. This is in sharp contrast to yesterday, when the range was from 51 degrees to 70 degrees.

"The cold snap today is an aftermath of the storm that resulted in cold, rainy weather Friday and Saturday," Mr. Mindling said. "I expect, however, that there will be rising temperatures on Wednesday."

STRONG RULE GENEVA SAYS ROTARY SPEAKER

Powerful Nations Control League, Asserts Colonel Kelly, of Benning.

Only by being strong can a nation hope to have weight at the peace conferences, Colonel Reginald H. Kelly, of Fort Benning, principal speaker at yesterday's luncheon of the Rotary Club, declared. Colonel Kelly spoke on the topic, "The World as Is."

"Geneva," declared the colonel, "is controlled by the stronger voices of Great Britain, France and Italy. The weaker nations, for example, Albania and Luxemburg, are treated with respect and courtesy but their counsel is not listened to."

The colonel read the headlines from The Constitution in opening his address. "Everywhere," he said, "we find violation of pacts, unrest and ill will, both among nations and among smaller units at home. What is the matter?

"We may take the standards of the Rotary Club as a pattern in finding solution of our troubles and discord. There are six points in the Rotarians' standard. These are service, maintenance of ethical standards, application of these standards, acquaintanceship, recognition and the furtherment of International good will and peace. If we observe the first five points, the sixth will take care of itself.

"We must be prepared to protect our welfare in time of war by protecting our imports. Even the United States is not self-supporting. We must have, among many other things, rubber, manganese, nickel, tin and chromium. The way to protect our imports is by a strong army and navy."

The colonel was asked if he wished to make comment on the pacifist demonstration made by students of Emory University.

"I do not wish to comment," he said. "The surest way to eliminate radicalism is to refuse it publicity."

The Atlanta Rotarians were entertained by a program planned and given by members of the visiting Columbus Rotarians. Members present from the Columbus unit were Jack Key, president; Colonel Charles Weeks, vice president, assistant commander at Fort Benning; Jack Walton, Henry Trost, Frances Turner, E. Jake Knight, Milo B. Clason, James B. Key, Ira Moyer, Joe Julius, Meyer Goldstein, William J. Fielder, I. Dupont Kiryen and Colonel Kelly.

CONVICTS STRIKE FOR MORE PAROLES

1,089 cases concerning Ohio penitentiary prisoners have been considered. Of these, 262 have been released and 827 continued to some future date, frequently several years hence. Several score other prisoners have been released to federal authorities for deportation and to authorities of other states who wish them for prosecution on various charges.

The strike occurred within a week of the fifth anniversary of the Easter Monday fire in which 320 convicts died. Woodard was deputy warden in charge of the prison shops when that disaster occurred.

Woodard became warden January 26 when Governor Davey ordered the suspension of Preston T. Thomas, for 23 years head of the century-old prison. Thomas now is appealing for a removal order issued subsequently.

At the time of the 1930 prison fire, the penitentiary experienced its only previous revolt when convicts refused to enter their cells and caused thousands of dollars damage by breaking door locks and otherwise wrecking equipment. Among their demands was one for the removal of Thomas with a request that Woodard be named warden.

ECCLES' APPROVAL IS SEEN IN SENATE

Fletcher Favors Liberal as Federal Reserve Board Governor.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—The beleagured nomination of Marriner S. Eccles as Federal Reserve Board governor tonight appeared headed toward senate confirmation—despite the uncompromising opposition of Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia.

Eccles, a liberal and advocate of additional federal control over banking, was questioned for two hours today by members of the senate banking subcommittee headed by Glass.

"I think Eccles made a clean case," commented Chairman Fletcher, democrat, Florida, of the senate banking committee. "I think he's qualified."

Members of the subcommittee, which will vote on the nomination tomorrow, indicated there would be a majority favoring confirmation.

At the same time, proponents of the pending banking bill predicted they would be able to keep the measure intact, in the face of a move, backed by Glass, to strip from it the provisions increasing centralized control over the banking system.

The controversy over what the administration favors in this connection blazed anew today, with Chairman Fletcher reporting President Roosevelt against making a separate bill of the centralization section.

Glass' opposition to Eccles remained undiminished tonight after the latter had appeared to answer the Virginian's complaint that he had not completely divested himself of private banking interests and therefore was ineligible for office.

In an atmosphere the calmness of which belied the series of controversies in which Glass and Eccles have engaged in recent months, the subcommittee received from the nominee an assertion that he not only had sold his bank stocks but had lost $90,000 in doing so.

Glass, a pile of papers before him upon which he based his questions, brought out that Eccles had sold his holdings to the Eccles Investment Company, created to handle his father's estate of which he said he was "nominally an officer."

The Eccles Investment Company, he said, owned less than 15 per cent of the First Security Corporation, which controls 28 banks and branches, several of which have sold preferred stock to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

MAN LOSES BOTH FEET UNDER FREIGHT TRAIN

A train amputated both feet of a man who gave his name as John C. Remington, 37, of Jacksonville, when he was taken to Grady hospital early yesterday afternoon.

Remington was trying to board a moving freight train under the viaduct at the Union depot when he slipped and fell with his feet beneath the wheels. He was discovered by Arthur Partridge, employe of Beck and Gregg Hardware Company, and Dan McDonald, a scoutmaster, who applied an improvised tourniquet to check the flow of blood.

The man stated he was a machinist and had been staying at the transient bureau here.

WIPE EXCESSIVE ACIDITY OUT OF YOUR STOMACH!

You must do it to revive the activity of the gastric fluids that are so vitally important to digest your food and prevent gas and acid indigestion.

Excessive acidity in the stomach destroys the activity of the gastric fluids which are so essential for the digestion of food. That usually causes heartburn, sick headaches, bloating, drowsiness, nausea from gas and acid indigestion.

The gastric fluids MUST be made active again. You must FIRST wipe out the excessive acidity that has destroyed them.

Drink some water with a teaspoonful of Placidan in it several times a day, and especially before going to sleep. It is very pleasant. Does not upset you. Simply wipes out the excessive acidity, liquifies the undigested food, soothes the irritated stomach, so that the natural gastric fluids can act again. Then you will have a good appetite, no gas after you eat, and feel like a healthy person should.

WIPE OUT THE EXCESSIVE ACIDITY IN YOUR STOMACH BEFORE IT GETS INTO YOUR BOWELS. Acidity causes much constipation. Be sure to get Placidan, the excessive acid destroyer, and the gastric fluid reviver. Sold at all drug stores. Placidan is not laxative. Contains no sugar.—(adv.)

FOR THE NOSE AND THROAT

One thing that I have little to say about for the past few months has been the devastation of scenic areas. There are certain intangible assets in every state that are given too little thought. One of these is scenery, and the thing I am hitting at right now is the billboards.

It is most discouraging to drive up a long mountain road, expecting to see a magnificent sweep of mountain ranges in the distance when you get to the top, only to be confronted by a billboard advertising some sort of chewing gum or scratch feed or non-wearing automobile tires. Advertising is a necessary thing, I suppose, in a competitive age like this one, but there is no earthly excuse for fighting your competitor on the edge of the highway. If it were possible to sell it I believe the major companies of America would be cutting throats for the privilege of painting their signs on the walls of the Grand Canyon.

Billboards are a detriment to scenic attractions, but they also constitute a menace to driving. What chance has a motorist to watch the curve far ahead if the billboards are stuck on both sides of the road, going and coming? The flashy colors of these billboards take the driver's attention from the machine and the road. Accidents are actually more prevalent in billboard infested country than in places where they are not prevalent.

The supreme court of Massachusetts has set a noteworthy example in deciding a famous case against the billboard industry. This court held that billboards are offensive to good taste and fitness; that they ruin scenic beauty and property values; and that they endanger highway travel. In Massachusetts it was done by law. Down here in Georgia we can do it by another means. It is a serious step, but it could be done. I refer to the economic boycott of all companies using billboard space. If you enjoy seeing the rural sections plastered with posters, help yourself. This looks like a good conservation movement to me and I should like to see it become state-wide, with telling effect during the next two years. Whatever it takes to get rid of a nuisance, Georgia has it. The billboard is one of the worst. What is your idea about it?

A red sign on a pine tree adds nothing to my appreciation of the timber. Nor does a billboard make me feel more kindly toward the commodity it advertises. Let's do away with 'em.

Mayor Key Against Borrowing Money

Mayor Key yesterday barred borrowing of any federal funds for prosecution of local improvements.

His statement regarding his stand in the matter came during a discussion of a move to obtain $5,000,000 for schools.

"I am willing to help the schools as far as we can go," the mayor told Thomas C. Clift, school business manager, and George S. Lowman, chairman of a special school committee, charged with the responsibility of attempting to get federal funds for local improvements, "but I am not willing to pledge any city receipts to pay any of that money back. With reduced revenues and other demands which we must, we have no money with which to pay any loans."

197 Schools in State Need More Revenue

There are 197 schools and school districts in rural Georgia in need of revenue in addition to the income they anticipate from the state to keep open during the balance of the current school term, it was revealed Monday by the state department of education.

An official of the department, speaking in the absence of Dr. M. D. Collins, said "a number of these schools will be forced to close soon unless more revenue is derived."

The schools have applied to Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins for a grant of $2,500,000 and the administrator still has the application under advisement.

HAIR STYLIST JOINS VERA BEAUTY SHOPPE

Robert Collins, well-known hair stylist of Omaha and Chicago, has joined the staff of the Vera Beauty Shoppe, located at 109 West Ponce de Leon avenue, Decatur, according to announcement yesterday by Mrs. Lucile Pelot, proprietress. He is in charge of hair styling and trimming at this fashionable salon.

Mr. Collins says the fundamental basis of all good coiffeures is the way hair is shaped and trimmed and true artistry and good judgment are required to give a really smart hair dress.

Mr. Collins is an authority on modernistic styling and interpretations and, in his opinion, one's hair should be arranged to best express the individual personality.

ATLANTA ORCHESTRA GIVES CONCERT TODAY

The Atlanta Philharmonic orchestra, Georg Lindner, conductor, will be heard in concert this evening at 8:30 o'clock in Wesley Memorial auditorium. Hugh Hodgson, noted southern pianist, will be the guest soloist, playing the entire second concerto for piano with full orchestral accompaniment by Saint-Saens.

The Atlanta Philharmonic orchestra, an aggregation of local musicians, most of them amateurs, has developed into an orchestra of outstanding merit under the careful and skilful guidance of their director. It has been heard favorably in concert in Atlanta many times, each time showing marked growth in symphonic proportions.

Mr. Hodgson's pianistic successes are well known in Atlanta and his appearance with the orchestra will cause much interest in musical circles.

Numbers on the orchestral program will be three Wagnerian numbers, "Reinzi Overture," "Prelude to Lohengrin," "Prelude to Act Three of Lohengrin," and "Light Cavalry Overture," Suppe. Tickets will be on sale at the door.

DISBARMENT PETITION FILED AGAINST TWO

Disbarment proceedings were begun yesterday against Norman DeKrassner and Robert F. Turnipseed, Atlanta lawyers, both of whom were given 12-month sentences following their conviction on charges of cheating and swindling in connection with damage claims.

Judge John D. Humphries set a hearing on the petition, filed by Solicitor-General John A. Boykin, for May 6.

Two attorneys indicted Friday on similar charges, Robert McGinley and Walter M. Archer, had not made bond Monday. Their bonds were fixed at $1,000 each.

During the past seven years the Tech R. O. T. C. has been awarded the highest rating of "Excellent." $90,000 Is Involved In Realty Exchange

Two homes with a combined value estimated at between $80,000 and $90,000 were involved in a trade completed yesterday. Jesse Draper, president of Draper-Owens Company, realty firm, handled the deal.

The Shelton home at 2740 Habersham road, of three stories and basement, with six bedrooms and five baths, was exchanged for the property owned by John W. Grant Jr. at 12 Chatham road, and a cash consideration. Mrs. Nora Belle Shelton, wife of Charles B. Shelton, of the law firm of Dorsey, Shelton & Pharr, is given as the transferrer in the deed.

Mr. Grant will move into the Habersham road home at once, it was stated, while I. J. Osbun, now occupying that residence under lease, will move into the Chatham road house. This is a two-story and basement structure with four bedrooms and three baths.

The Habersham road property is 203x744 feet, while the lot on Chatham road is 150x350 feet.

CAIN HEADS EAST, WITH $5 IN HAND, HIS HOPE RENEWED

Hitch-hiking a meandering course through the Great Lakes section, Arthur Cain, Atlanta globe-trotter, on a fundless tour around the world, writes an account of his latest experiences for readers of The Constitution.

By ARTHUR CAIN.

My job in Buffalo is done and I am once more ready to hit the highway, this time with New York city and points east as my goal.

I am the proud possessor of $5, earned by performing such menial tasks as scrubbing woodwork and the like. My clothes are once more pressed in razor creases and I have lots of renewed optimism to carry me the intervening 400 miles to Manhattan Island and the 5,000 miles on to Ireland or England.

That $5, representing the fruits of my labor, was really intended for bus fare to Gotham, but realizing that I will surely need it while I am casting about for a kind ship captain to transport me across the deep blue sea, I will once more turn to the broad highway.

The longest way around is often the shortest way there, so I will hop over into Canada and thence around to New York, because the chances of obtaining a much-needed ride are much better on the other side of the line.

With limited funds—that $5, you know—I will have to work fast once in the great city of New York and if you hear of some good first mate strangely missing from a Europe-bound steamer, you will know I have tossed him overboard in order to take his place.

Seriously, however, I do not anticipate so much difficulty in landing a berth and I feel reasonably certain that the first leg of my 30,000-mile jaunt will soon be over.

Of my trials in Buffalo, the less said the better. Imagine a southern gentleman scrubbing floors and the like! However, I am in the best of shape, financially, spiritually and sartorially, so here's for New York city.

TWO SENT TO GANG FOR RELIEF FORGERIES

Two white men, James O'Shields and Ernest Rogers, were given two to three-year chain gang terms Monday in Fulton superior court, their terms fixed by juries which found them guilty of forgery in connection with Fulton County Relief Administration orders. The men are named in several other indictments on which they have not been tried.

According to the state's contention O'Shields and Rogers distributed relief orders among various merchants, obtaining merchandise on them, from a book of tickets which was stolen by one of the pair from the transient bureau, where they had applied for aid. About $160 worth of orders are set forth in the indictments.

In Judge C. J. Perryman's division of criminal court W. M. Clayton, a negro, also charged with forging relief order figures, was found not guilty by a jury.

4,000 FULTON COUNTY CASES IN DEPARTMENT

There are approximately 4,000 cases being handled by the Fulton county public welfare department, it was reported yesterday by Frank Miller, executive director.

Of the cases handled a summary of 234 white women in the Edgewood district reveals a large proportion are persons physically incapacitated. Seventy-five are more than 70 years of age.

Of 142 white male cases in the same area, 53 are 70 years and over, and 37 are between the ages of 65 and 70.

SWITZERLAND COUPLE EXPELLED BY FRANCE

MARSEILLE, April 15.—(AP)—A Swiss couple, arrested for carrying false passports, were expelled from France today.

The man was named Gundscher and the woman Eda Caroni, and were believed to be those reported as "terrorists" at Geneva. However, police said the only charge against them was that of having false passports and that they were being returned to the Swiss frontier.

GEMOLOGICAL GROUP ELECTS ATLANTA FIRM

Maier & Berkele, Inc., Made Members of Important Institute.

The Atlanta firm of Maier & Berkele, Inc., has been elected a member of the Gemological Institute of America, according to dispatches from institute headquarters in Los Angeles. Gemology is the science of diamonds and gems, introduced from Europe into America about five years ago.

Exhibits of replicas of crown jewels and collections of famous gems will be sent by the institute to the Atlanta firm for display during the year, it was said.

The Gemological Institute of America is an organization similar to the American Institute of Architects and its selective membership is confined to outstanding persons in the field.

H. A. Maier has been appointed a member of the national board of governors of the institute and will attend a meeting of the board in Philadelphia on April 17.

Lectures will be presented by gem authorities of the institute in Atlanta schools, colleges and clubs during the year, it was reported.

Wreckless Drivers To Get Tickets To See 'Reckless;' Drive Carefully

It's always worthwhile to be careful and courteous in your driving—but there's to be an extra inducement for Atlanta motorists this week.

Starting tomorrow, Jean Harlow and William Powell will take a hand. And especially careful and courteous drivers will be guests of the Constitution to see these two stars in their new picture, "Reckless," when it comes to Loew's Grand Friday as the Easter week attraction.

All over the downtown district Constitution reporters will be on the lookout for careful drivers. And, at the end of each day each reporter will report the license number of some car whose driver he has noted as being particularly careful and courteous in traffic. Ten winning license numbers will be published each day, and all drivers have to do is pull up to the city editor of the Constitution and get their tickets, two tickets for each license number.

So when you're tempted to speed, or beat that light or cut in or your neighbor . . . just remember Jean Harlow, boys—and you girls give a thought to William Powell! They're swell, and their new picture is a singing, dancing romantic hit, with music by Jerome Kern—everybody will want to see "Reckless" . . . and you can see it absolutely free, if you are one of the careful drivers picked by the Constitution reporters. Courteous drivers will be picked every day this week through Friday, starting tomorrow.

So watch your step, watch your car, and be nice to traffic policemen. You drivers can make this a banner safety week.

EXPRESS SHIPMENTS FOR EASTER GAINING

The late Easter seems to have made little difference to the regular upward turn of business experienced at this time of year for general traffic has been uniformly higher this season than last, according to L. O. Head, president of the Railway Express Agency.

While Easter does not exceed Christmas in the volume of shipments, it is looming as a closer competitor of Yuletide as years go on. Flowers, rabbits, eggs, poultry, candy and clothing particularly form the bulk of the merchandise rushed around the country by express at Easter. Fast, reliable transportation has solved the majority of problems surrounding distribution, sales and capital investment and merchants today are enabled to extend sales territory far beyond the limits of earlier days through swift express service.

BOND, SHARE FIRMS FOUND BANKRUPT

Assets of Only $80,000 Found in Probe of Two Companies.

With assets of only $80,000, and liabilities probably exceeding $1,000,000, American Bond & Share Corporation, of Delaware, and American Bond & Trust Company, an affiliate, were formally adjudged bankrupt yesterday by Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood.

American Bond & Share Corporation, of Georgia, another affiliate, was adjudged bankrupt Saturday, leaving only the American Participations, Inc., fourth of the companies set up by Benjamin R. Bradley, to be acted upon.

Included among the assets is $8,100 in bank accounts in the name of Bradley, who is a fugitive widely sought by United States postal investigators. Likewise included are the furnishings in the American Bond & Share offices in the William-Oliver building, which are valued at $10,000 by Thomas M. Stubbs, a receiver for the organizations.

Claims so far made against the four companies total around $700,000, Mr. Stubbs said, but other claims, not yet reported, will swell the total to more than $1,000,000.

Assets of American Bond & Share, of Delaware, so far brought to light amount to $12,500, and those of American Bond & Share Trust, $200. Assets of American Bond & Share, of Georgia, and American Participations, mostly in securities, will make a total of $80,000, it was said.

STRESA PAVES THE WAY

While the fire-eaters of Europe are obviously disappointed over the lack of fireworks at the Stresa conference, and while many of the knotty problems that must be solved before peace can be assured are not dealt with in the agreement reached between the heads of the British, French and Italian governments, the negotiations as a whole pave the way for a peaceful settlement of the acute situation brought about by Hitler's defiance of the military clauses of the Versailles treaty.

The conferees were in unison on France's request for a common front to the League Council; on the need of an eastern European pact; on the proposal of a defensive air pact; in "regretting" Germany's decision to rearm, and in agreeing that Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria should be permitted to increase within reason their armed forces.

There was no bitter condemnation of Hitler, no threats of war if Germany did not recede from her demands, and no iron-clad agreements tying the three great powers together in case either was attacked.

Any of these steps would have brought a tense situation in which an insignificant incident might have touched off the fireworks of another major war in Europe.

That the conference restrained itself to the reaching of full understanding of the positions of Great Britain, France and Italy and the laying of a foundation on which can be built a greater assurance of peace, is due to the calm and cautious attitude of the British. Throughout the furore created by the Hitler announcement the British diplomats have remained unruffled to an extent which called forth caustic comment by lesser officials of the French and Italian governments. Heedless of the tumult, they went about securing in Russia and the smaller powers firsthand information on the reaction to a rearmed Germany and then came to Stresa prepared to discuss the situation with Mussolini and the French.

So while there were no fireworks at Stresa, the results secured are such as to justify optimism that a new groundwork for peace has been laid.

CLEAN-UP WEEK

There should be general co-operation in the revived clean-up, paint-up campaign formerly conducted each spring by the woman's division of the Chamber of Commerce.

The campaign has been suspended for the past several years because the work has been done as one of the activities of the relief forces, but this will no longer be the case when the work-relief program of the government gets under way and the relief workers are engaged in public projects of a different nature.

In order that the accumulated rubbish and trash of the winter may be removed before summer comes along, Mayor Key, at the request of the woman's division, has by proclamation set April 22 as the date on which these annual spring rounds ups of dirt and debris shall be revived.

Directed chiefly at safeguarding the city from the threat to health and from fires, the campaign is also aimed at an increase of civic pride through making the community cleaner and its homes more beautiful.

The movement has a further advantage at this time in that it will aid to reduce unemployment and the purchase of paint and other materials in making home repairs will stimulate business conditions.

Every householder in Atlanta should make careful inspection of their premises and homes to ascertain whether they are neat and tidy, or whether opportunity is presented to participate in the clean-up and paint-up program.

An optometrist has invented spectacles which magnify things 18 times. A problem arises how to keep the same from the viewers-with-alarm.

THE PUERTO RICAN "STRIKE"

The "strike" of the Puerto Rican legislature, the members of which quit 36 hours before the time for adjournment, leaving much important business unfinished, illustrates one of the unfortunate effects of the tendency to pile everything that is to be done on the federal government—to "let Uncle Sam do it."

The island solons refused to complete their tasks, charging a "dictatorial colonial policy to Washington," not because they felt the people of the island were being oppressed but because they did not like the way relief and rehabilitation money from the American treasury was being spent.

The taxes paid by Puerto Rica are but a fractional part of the sums being sent to the island for relief and reconstruction of its agriculture, industries and business. They are straight-out gifts to the Puerto Ricans, little of which can be expected to be returned in future taxes.

Nevertheless, the Puerto Rican solons are unwilling to perform vitally important duties because they feel that they, instead of Washington, should dictate the manner in which these gifts should be distributed.

Their "strike" is similar to that staged by those on relief in Milwaukee last year, and who proceeded to terrorize law-abiding citizens and damage business plants in the effort to have their will control the size and manner of distribution of the doles they were receiving.

The old ban against looking gift horses in the face seems to be disappearing before the ever-increasing demand that "Uncle Sam do it"—and that he do it the way he is told to.

The sooner America gets back to the place where, as in former years, local communities and governments will control public affairs and care for their own unfortunates, the better it will be for the country.

In the meantime, the Puerto Rican "strikers" should be made to realize that their viewpoint is out of line with the conditions of which they complain.

AUGUSTA'S BICENTENNIAL

There will be cordial interest throughout Georgia in the ceremonies during the week of May 12 at which Augusta will celebrate the 200th anniversary of the city's founding by General Oglethorpe.

In establishing the town that was later to become not only one of the state's most important commercial and industrial centers, but world famous as a winter resort, General Oglethorpe named it for the Princess Augusta of Saxony, who in that year married the Prince of Wales and later became the mother of George III.

It soon became the chief trading station in Georgia, a position it held for a hundred years; was one of the most important military posts in the south during the pre-Revolutionary period, and was the site of many historic conferences between the Indians and the whites, the former at the conferences held in 1763 and 1773, ceding large areas of land for occupancy by the English.

When in 1778 Savannah, the first capital of the state, fell before the onslaughts of the combined sea and land forces of the British, the capital was moved to Augusta, where it remained until 1793, when it was moved to Louisville, in the heart of what was then the most thickly settled section of Georgia. One of the chief munitions works of the Confederacy was located in Augusta, some of the ruins of which are still standing.

The bicentennial will be marked by the presentation of a historical pageant in which the many outstanding events in the life of the city since its founding will be depicted.

For a half century before the Civil War the beaux and belles from all parts of the south came frequently to Augusta, giving the city wide fame as a social center. This reputation it has maintained, especially since its development as a winter resort to which tourists come from all over the world.

Augusta's sister cities in Georgia should join heartily in the celebration of the 200th anniversary of her founding.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

The End of The Universe.

Is the end of the world in sight, is the human race after its age-long upward struggle doomed to extinction without leaving a trace in a dead and inert universe? A French scientist thinks so, and he even goes so far as to say that nothing can save us. The savant is Monsieur Georges Claude, who is ready to leave for South America where he is to make a colossal experiment off the coast of Rio de Janeiro which has for object to extract enormous quantities of power and energy from the ocean. He is going to prove to the world, whose resources in coal and fuel-oil are by no means inexhaustible, that immense resources of energy still remain available in the heat, or rather in the lukewarmness of the oceans. However strange this may sound, his experiment is designed with a view to prolong life just a little longer on this dying planet of ours. For within a measurable time, he says, the earth will be exhausted and the present human race is going to disappear as so many races have disappeared before us on other planets, which underwent the same process our earth is undergoing at present.

What is disappearing from the universe is energy, said Professor Claude. There is such an enormous waste of energy in the universe that the time must inevitably arrive when the sources of life have disappeared and the universe becomes a vast dead thing, full of dead suns and planets and a dead little earth somewhere, of course. We cannot live when the sun is dead, our sun that is, and the million other suns there are.

* * * *

Insignificant Earth.

Our earth, says Professor Claude, is about the least important thing in the universe. If this is true, it ought to dispose us to a little humility. For we have a way of imagining the earth something like the hub of the universe, the center, so to speak of the cosmos, the most important spot, just because we live on it. Man has built up, says Professor Claude, systems of philosophy, he means religion, which theoretically cover all eternity. How foolish these theories are, he adds, when you begin to know something of the reality. He does not mean evolution, the mere mention of which sends cold shivers down the backs of our fundamentalists, who are forever on the alert to rush to the aid of God. As if the almighty, omnipotent deity had need of their little testimony of support. The very thought is blasphemy.

Of course there is an opposite theory. Other scientists do not think the universe will exhaust itself. They say: Somewhere in that infinite space there are bodies which have not yet reached the explosive stage, which are not a mass of flames yet as our sun, from which flames 196,000 miles high are shooting up. These other bodies will explode in due course of time, as the sun exploded once, and they will fill the universe with new energy. But Professor Claude says of these other theories that they are nothing but grandiose hypotheses, mere suppositions. The fact is that the present universe is petering out, so to speak, and that the expectation of some kind of refuelling is just a pious hope, which is not much consolation.

* * * *

Sterilization of The Cosmos.

My profound conviction, resting upon scientific observation, is that we are rapidly moving toward a time when there will be no more rise and fall in temperature on this earth. There is a big difference already noticeable now between the year 1935 and the time of the Pharaohs of Egypt. The universe is cooling off. And that process is speeding up every year. The heat and energy generated in the universe is escaping us. We cannot seize it. That's our tragedy.

This does not mean that the sterilization of the cosmos will come about tomorrow or next day. But it is drawing near. We must come to a time when there will be a dead world. Then life will disappear. Not through excessive heat or through excessive cold, although it may appear that way to human beings then living, but the death of the universe will come about through lack of change in temperature, through lukewarmness, inertia, evaporation of energy.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

A LOT OF GAS ABOUT NOTHING MUCH.

I am 28 years old and for many years past an ardent, even rabid Doc Brady disciple. Eleven years ago by following your advice I managed to put on some 14 pounds weight in a very short time—much needed weight. (Other skinny readers who want to put on weight, send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for free monograph on How to Gain Weight.)

As a second instance, I used the ointment you suggested on a 5-year-old case of Athlete's Foot. Result, complete and permanent cure in 2 weeks. I had seen many cases, but mine would have taken a prize anywhere.

If you're still listening, here comes Case No. 3. My dad, 61, had a very stiff knee from bowling. I happened to read of a cure from taking your iodin ration. After much persuasion dad tried it. Very soon he felt a general "pepping up" and complete recovery from the stiff knee. (Other oldish ones who are a bit stale and beginning to creak in the joints, send a dime and a stamped envelope bearing the correct address, and we'll mail a copy of the booklet, "Regeneration Regimen," which contains instructions).

Case No. 4 was a stubborn case of dandruff cured by your simple formula. (Others send a stamped addressed envelope for free copy of monograph on Care of the Hair and Treatment of Dandruff).

Case No. 5. I suffered greatly from armpit perspiration, or rather my companions did. I tried your aluminum chloride formula but it proved too irritating. So I switched to the alternative treatment you suggested, boric acid, and this has given entire satisfaction. (Ho-hum, folks, it's free, the monograph on control of excessive or malodorous sweating, provided you inclose a stamped envelope bearing your correct address—which is never "City" or "Local," remember, dunderheads.)

I now have a new problem . . .

(I knew it. The reader would never in the world bother his head to tell me all those things if he were not hoping for something.)

After every evening meal I get full of gas, quite uncomfortably distended. I try to eat slowly and sparingly but this accumulation of gas troubles me for hours afterward. I get plenty of oxygen on the hoof every day, exercise a good deal and do not drink or smoke. Lately, however, I am almost afraid of eating my evening meal because of the inevitable gas. I do not get along very well with certain members of my family and sometimes think these evening meals are eaten under a strain or tension which may be bad for me. Also at supper at my house there are usually seven or eight persons and the noise is terrific, everybody talking at once except myself—I say nothing. More than once I've spilled a forkful of peas by striking my teeth or mouth with the fork—in other words nervousness. (E. McA. B.)

All that is not a composite, but a bona fide letter from one individual. He'd better slip us a dime and a stamped envelope bearing his address for the booklet, "Nervous Imposition." Not that I can assure him the gas isn't from a bad appendix or gallbladder, but certainly annoyance, anger, hatred and similar bad emotions can do just that to the victim.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon

VISITING WASHINGTON, April 15.—You may have noticed that Washington was not one of the places visited by Mr. Hoover on his highly publicized tour. This was not an oversight. If he came here, he would not have many places to go.

The fact is most of the republican authorities here are irked every time they pick up a newspaper and find Mr. Hoover's name in it. They know he is not a presidential possibility and he knows it, but apparently no one else does.

You can mark it down in your little notebook that Mr. Hoover's candidate for the next republican presidential nomination is Ogden Mills, the former secretary of treasury.

You may also note that, while Mr. Mills is probably the most brilliant and capable man in the republican party, he has no more chance of getting the nomination than you have.

ONE, TWO, THREE The smartest republican authority from the midwest says President Roosevelt would carry his section today. He thinks the president has lost ground, but not enough.

Incidentally, his one-two-three pick for the republican nomination is (1) Colonel Frank Knox, (2) Senator Vandenberg, (3) Governor Landon, of Kansas.

Republican authorities here have been astounded at the amount of talk about Knox in the middle west. He is weak in Washington, but that may be to his credit.

MISTAKE The smartest republican strategists privately consider the coming Kansas City meeting a mistake.

It is always bad strategy for an opposition party to try to draw up an affirmative list of principles. The truth is that those who will meet in Kansas City are agreed on only one thing: Namely, that they are against the New Deal. If you go beyond that into a list of particulars, you will find there are as many different viewpoints among the proposed Kansas City delegates as there are delegates.

The promoters of the meeting know this now. For that reason, you need not expect much from the gatherings, despite all the ballyhoo about it

Note—The eastern wing of the party (Hilles, Rorabach, etc.) had no connection with the arrangements for the meeting, regardless of stories now going around to the contrary.

WITHDRAWAL Over at the United States Chamber of Commerce, it is no secret that the president, Henry I. Harriman, is leaving when his present term expires. An announcement will be made when the annual meeting is held here in May. This decision is at least partially based on an unwritten tradition of the chamber that no president shall serve more than three terms. Harriman is serving his third one-year term.

FIGHT Two eminent journalists are to meet this week in the office of Corrington Gill at FERA and fight out their conflicting contentions about the New Deal. The contestants are Walter Lippman and Frank Kent. The bout probably will last one round without a decision.

Kent is arguing the whole New Deal is a bust and points to the FERA relief figures as proof. Lippman says the relief figures are not a true indication and there must be other explanations of the increase in relief rolls, aside from increasing unemployment. Lippman is right, as usual. The referee will be Gill.

DRAW No sensible man would care to umpire the Hopkins-Davey row. Ohio's Governor Davey is technically accurate when he says that only one man has been indicted, and this indictment was based on a charge of plain grafting, not shaking down firms that sell to the relief administration, as FERA-er Hopkins charged.

On the other hand, the FERA gang here insists the grand jury received affidavits showing complicity of state officials in a shakedown racket, but the grand jury decided there was no law against this.

It seems to be a case of much excitement and little action. The best authorities believe Hopkins probably spoke out of turn, but they also have their fingers crossed about the Ohio relief administration.

The FERA crowd insists you have not heard the last of the forgotten sensation, but you probably have.

PEACE A confidential report drawn up by the State Department recommends the following course of action to keep us out of the next war: (a) An immediate embargo on munitions, (b) forbid American citizens to travel on any ship carrying munitions, (c) prohibit loans and credits to belligerents, (d) bar armed vessels from our ports, (e) make it a crime for American citizens to enlist in belligerent armies, (f) make it a penal offense for anyone to sympathize publicly with any belligerent.

These suggestions will be toned down plenty before the final draft is submitted to the president.

NOTES The pending proposal to rename Pickwick dam in the Tennessee valley is causing considerable inner commotion. There are some who want to call it "Quinn" dam in honor of the late representative. This is opposed by Senator McKellar's friends, who wish it to be known as McKellar dam.

SEC-er Kennedy has no idea of quitting any time soon, despite stories current in Wall Street. The stories started when a newsman misinterpreted something Kennedy said in an interview.

Assistant Treasury Secretary Gibbons takes notes of telephone conversations in shorthand.

If you consider the change in purchasing power, an ounce of silver now is worth about 95 cents, based on the 1926 price level.

Ex-Representative West may ultimately get Louis Howe's secretarial job. He is doing half of it now.

There will be no change in the existing Securities Act until the SEC has a chance to ascertain whether financing may be resumed under the existing act. If it fails, a change will be recommended.

Where Nature Provides Broad Leaves, There You Find Things That Need Shade

By Robert Quillen

Go where you will—to the mountains, the seashore, the desert or the rolling prairie—you find the work of nature has dignity, grace and beauty of line.

Do you think this beauty accidental and meaningless?

Everywhere you find pleasant odors—the delicate scent of flowers, the fragrance of trees, the wholesome smell of earth.

And everywhere you hear pleasant sounds—the ripple and splash of water, the song of birds, the majestic rumble of thunder.

Do you wonder why?

There is a "scientific" explanation—which means a truthful and logical explanation.

The sky is blue and grass is green because these colors are more pleasing and restful than others.

And when any quality or trait appears consistently in the works of nature, it appears because it is essential to the well-being of nature's creatures.

As sunshine and rain are necessary to the physical welfare of man, so beauty is necessary to the normal development and continued good of his mind and spirit.

If that is true, and the truth of it is so obvious that it isn't debatable, here is another particular in which man proves himself his own worst enemy.

For man destroys beauty and makes ugliness, and his centers of culture are uniformly hideous and full of offensive sounds and smells.

Never doubt that he pays for his sins.

His crimes against nature and against his fellows, and all of his petty meannesses and his miseries are due in large measure to the environment he has created for himself.

Do you think two children will develop into adults of equal strength of character, equal capacity for the enjoyment of life, equal poise and compassion and tolerance, if one is reared in an atmosphere of beauty and the other is surrounded by ugliness?

You know they will not.

Beauty is an attribute and an inspiration of decency.

The man who builds an ugly house injures his neighbors no less than the man who is responsible for hideous noises or offensive odors.

And when men learn the truth, the perpetrator of ugliness will be suppressed as a nuisance—as hurtful noises and odors now are suppressed.

Man is not mere meat, but a soul; and to rob him of the beauty that nature provides as fodder for his soul is to make him a brute.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Sun-Chasers Pay Away Gloom. NEW YORK, N. Y., April 15. The Florida State Hotel Commission estimates that the sun-chasers who visited the peninsula this winter spent $625,000,000. The commission exaggerates but business undoubtedly was much improved and, moreover, the people who have a stake in the state have definitely ceased to regard Florida as a fly-by-night carnival and their customers as suckers. In Miami there has been a sincere attempt to break the political power of a sort of minor league Tammy organization and scatter a settlement of gamblers and thieves from the underworld of the northern cities who have been making their winter quarters there for several years.

But Florida is still pretty much of a rich man's country and the governor, Dave Sholtz, who is out of Brooklyn, N. Y., went so far last fall as to announce that persons without visible means of support would be turned back. He was referring to people without money. With millions of acres of land which could be used for farming, they still regard a man with a roll of vacation money in the pocket of his white pants or a racketeer from the north as more desirable than a pioneer whose western farm has blown away on the wind.

The moving picture magnates of Hollywood kidded Florida for several weeks during the winter, poking around on the edges of the jungles in a pretense of inspecting sites to which the movie industry might be transplanted in the event that the California legislature didn't behave. Of course, there was no intention to move the industry to Florida but the idea was pretty anyway. Imagination drew a beautiful picture of lovely gents and ladies disporting their lithe, lean biscuit-brown bodies in swimming pools inlaid with emeralds the size of paving blocks and of Johnny Weismuller and Miss Lupe Velez lovingly punching each other's ears off in the night clubs. This was supposed to terrify the California legislature. I haven't heard whether it did but anyway, the moving picture industry is not moving to Florida.

Pioneer Project. There is some talk in Florida now of inducing the federal government to install a system by which the water level in the Everglades can be controlled and tremendous tracts opened up for homesteading or purchase on easy terms in tracts of 10 acres or more by overall farmers from various parts of the country who can't make a crop on their old land any more. This kind of pioneering will take a very game type of settler who is willing to do his farming in person, gets his hands dirty and hold still in the presence of snakes, alligators and mosquitoes by the million. However, the returns should be big because in the land around Lake Okeechobee the present population of farmers sometimes have to put weights on their beans and other garden truck to keep the stuff from hopping out of the ground, roots and all. The Okeechobee farmers take terrible risks, too, and more than 2,000 bodies were buried in one sandy trench in West Palm Beach after the hurricane which blew the lake out of its shallow saucer a few years ago. Notwithstanding this, most of the survivors went back, children and all, as soon as the water fell, because there was no such land or climate anywhere else in the United States.

Some day the whole of the Everglades will be brought to heel and the farming business will outrank the sun-tan industry of the pleasure coasts, east and west. But before that can be accomplished, Florida will have to elect a governor with another definition of visible means of support.

Real Growth. But Florida is really growing up now. There was a time a few years back when you couldn't buy space in a Florida paper to print a story about alligators or snakes. There was plenty of alligators and snakes but the chamber of commerce spirit forbade mention of them lest customers be scared off. One night a woman in West Palm Beach phoned the police to come and kill an eight-foot alligator which was eating her chickens in the yard. The police shelled it to death with a rifle and a young reporter from up north wrote a nice little piece for the local paper. He almost lost his job over that. Still, to be fair, the alligators and snakes do not run a very high score against people.

In Miami, when they had their hurricane, a press association reporter was locked up in the jail overnight so he couldn't tell the story. The local interests were trying to hold the hurricane down to a light southerly breeze. When the reinforcements arrived and heard what had happened to their boy friend they sent out descriptions of one of the worst hurricanes the world has ever known. That taught the locals something about the handling of explosives.

I don't suppose they would mention mosquitoes even now but any western farmer who might be thinking of having a look at the frontier which lies just a drive and pitch inside the coast line, a wilderness almost within sight of the tall buildings should be advised to carry a few kegs of a mosquito lotion. And he can't beat that farm land anywhere.

W. EUGENE PAGE—"Collects tax on cigarets men smoke, tax on lipsticks ladies use, and even taxes hogs. . . . Wonders why in the sketch he looks a somber man. . . . Mayhap his thoughts were on his own income tax return. . . . That's bad for anybody's face! . . ." comments Gonzalez.

By MORO GONZALEZ,
Noted Mexican Caricaturist.

He's collector of internal revenue. . . .

Any funds due the United States government in the state of Georgia figuratively pass through his hands. . . . His visage in profile passes the acid test of character. . . . Bold and forceful features one beholds. . . . So a likeness is simple problem for today. . . .

William Eugene Page is his full name . . . he collects a tax on the cigarets men smoke—the lipsticks ladies use . . . gets a tax on the processing of cotton . . . and even gets a tax on hogs. . . . Into his office every month some two and one-half millions dollars come trotting in for Uncle Sam. . . .

The way he got his job was through a friend named Franklin Delano. . . . Of all revenue collectors in the land, Page's was the first personal appointment by the president. . . .

Picture From Roosevelt.

On his office wall there be a picture of the chief executive personally in scribed to subject Page. . . . This collector has been pro-Roosevelt since the day Roosevelt indicated he had presidential aspirations. . . . There were other democratic organization heads in the state but F. D. R. designated Page as his personal representative in Georgia.

So since he be a Roosevelt booster he's asked what thinks he now of the administration as she stands. . . . He answers pronto and duoble-quick, "There's the very best evidence in the world that the present administration has brought a degree of recovery."

The pertinent thing it seems is the income tax returns. . . . These, also, Page collects. . . . Recovery, as he puts it, can very well be gauged by one sure indication that he sees himself. . . . Today there is a vast increase in the number of income tax returns. . . . The greater number is what make the rose-colored picture. . . . It shows, says Mr. Page, that many people's incomes are rising up to the tax-paying brackets. . . . That, says he, tends to show there's increased volume of business, increased salaries and better conditions all around. . . . A look to see the condition of his hair line . . . and to judge its going has reached heights, is now somewhere above par. . . .

Down in Columbus, Georgia, they call Page a "home-towner" . . . a second-degree Mason, an Elk and an Odd Fellow. . . . And, egad!—here, and once again, is another newspaper man who as carrier started on his father's daily. . . .

With newsman's interest he says he's watched and seen enormous changes in journalism since 1920. . . . He goes to movies now and then and to him "the play's the thing." . . . Cannot call the name of a single star. . . .

One more look at Roosevelt on the wall. . . . Page signs the sketch . . . and probably wonders why in the sketch he looks a somber man. . . . He's really a pleasant sort. . . . But as the pencil worked, mayhap, his thoughts were on his own income tax return. . . . And that's bad for anybody's face. . . .

'Twill do, my lads. . . . See ya. . . .

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

By MOLLIE MERRICK

(Copyright, 1935, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 15.—They call it, very simply, "going to see the flowers." It is the only event I can remember, in many years of Hollywood-ing, that completely eclipses all discussion of Garbo, Dietrich, and the rest. It is the only event that is not overballyhooed, exaggerated or travestied in this land of make-believe. And, as one of those condemned to ballyhoo, magnify and blare, I may speak without offending.

"The flowers" are, to put it briefly, nature's technicolor contribution to spring. A strip of inland California, beginning some 20 miles before you get to Bakersfield, and stretching on into the Mojave desert, has become an Arabian night's dream. A miracle has been wrought in yesterday's lush meadows—a miracle whose dramatic color effects make Robert Edmond Jones, Mielziger, and the other color enthusiasts of the stage, seem anemic craftsmen.

Here you have Gauguin, Frieseke, and the soft melting effects of the nocturnists at each separate curve in the twisting ridge route. Something for every taste. If you like drama—that flaming mountain which looms up before you as you leave Lebec; it looks like a low-running forest fire, the flame creeping slyly toward the summit and rippling in sheer ecstacy of destruction there against the sky. Poppies. Escholtzia Californica, the famous orange poppy of California. With sun and distance, they take on a lipstick red shade. The color changes as you come near, and you see the true orange of the massed flowers at the mountain's base.

"Ah, the sea!" murmured my companion a moment later as we drove through a sheer gap in the Tejon pass. There, beyond, stretching to the far horizon, lay ineffable blue. "But we are inland, we are far from the sea." It is an endless meadow of lupine. The high wind that is blowing makes it seem alive. The white tips of that amazing blue, which hits perfectly between the blue of violets and of cornflowers, give the illusion of foam. . .

Then down to the meadow flat, where Indian paint brush has spread a lake of rose madder. It throws a pink reflection against the far hills. Transforms the young spring greens into something unreal and almost sinister. It is like some hellish lighting, some infernal beauty of magic. On, where black and white cattle munch contentedly in meadows of wind poppies—white, like silken tissue paper—fragile as a bubble. All this glimpsed through the frail green lace of young cottonwood trees.

"What's new?" . . . the eternal question in Hollywood, voiced every night at every dinner table.

And the answer these days: "Who cares . . . have you seen the flowers?"

David Selznick's schism with M.-G.-M. has long been expected. Selznick and Thalberg have not been able to work together under the aegis of the roaring lion with the harmony which should characterize production for the ultimate good.

This makes the second major change on Metro's lot within a few months' time. Marion Davies' withdrawal and shift to the Warner lot began the general split-up.

It also makes understandable the statements of certain actors that they would go under personal contract to Thalberg and not accept a general contract from the studio. Charles Laughton is one of these, and I believe Brian Aherne's contract with the studio is with Thalberg.

Sunday School Values

(Editor's Note: The Atlanta Crusade for Childhood has recently concluded an informative survey of the church and Sunday school affiliations of the children of Atlanta. Presented here are statements from leaders of modern life, national and local, on their conceptions of the value of Sunday school attendance in the development of character and the making fit for good citizenship. The Constitution presents two such statements today and others will follow daily.)

All that I am and whatever I have accomplished I owe to the Sunday school.—David Lloyd George, formerly premier of England, London, S. W. 1, England.

The triune attributes of man—his physical being, mental faculties and moral nature—each requires development. The body is strengthened by exercise, the mind by study. But as Judge Bleckley said: "Where three are necessary, two equals nothing." Morals are developed by correct decisions. Mere enlistment in Sunday school work goes far in determining the side on which the child will stand; but in order for conscience to guide aright, it must be enlightened. The Sunday school both enlists and enlightens.—W. Frank Jenkins, judge court of appeals of Georgia.

'NUDE' BLACKMAIL BRINGS 2 ARRESTS

Doris Duke Is Among Wealthy Women Threatened With Faked Photos.

NEW YORK, April 15.—(UP)—A nude picture extortion ring which preyed upon society women, including Doris Duke, "world's richest girl," was revealed tonight.

Arthur Ulisse, 24, and Dominick Piletti, 25, were in jail for confessed participation in the racket. Police disguised as servants of wealthy Mrs. George Upham Harris captured them as they left her mansion with a package they thought contained $5,000.

This sum had been demanded of the young social leader on threat of showing her husband a cleverly faked photograph of Mrs. Harris, nude, in the arms of a man, likewise naked.

Doris Duke was threatened by the same gang just before her recent marriage to socially prominent, wealthy James Cromwell, police said.

A third man, thought to be an elderly photographer and leader of the plot, was sought.

A week ago today, an envelope was handed the doorman at 820 Fifth avenue, home of Mrs. Harris' parents-in-law. It contained a picture, a composite of Mrs. Harris' head on a nude body, with a nude man.

Clever Ruse.

A typewritten letter threatened that a copy would be sent her husband, George Upham Harris, of the brokerage firm of Harris, Upham & Company, unless she paid $5,000 as directed. She was told to put the money in a book from which the pages were cut out, wrap it in brown paper and leave it with the butler at her East 70th street home.

She was warned against informing police or questioning the messenger who would call for the package today. She immediately told her husband, who called police.

Lieutenant Charles J. Newman stationed himself on the roof, with field glasses. Detective Peter Hayias acted as Mrs. Harris' chauffeur. Detective George McCartney dressed as her butler. Other police, disguised as park employes, stirred the turf of Central park opposite the Harris home.

Give Them Rope.

Precisely at 1 p. m., a man appeared to claim the dummy extortion package. A confederate loitered outside.

Mrs. Harris, daughter of Leroy Baldwin, president of Empire Trust Company, was entertaining at luncheon, as she had planned days ago. The "butler" handed the messenger the package.

Police allowed Ulisse and Piletti to reach the next corner, where the plotters tore into the hollow book, before the arrest. The book contained one marked dollar bill.

Doris Duke received a four-page typed booklet a few weeks before she married Cromwell, bearing a cleverly faked photograph on the cover showing the wealthy beauty and a man, both nude. It was labeled:

"Picture and story of a former love. It will go places."

The typed demand for $25,000 in the booklet was written on the same typewriter as the Harris letter, Charles O'Malley, police expert, said tonight.

Miss Duke gave the letter to police and went ahead with her marriage plans. The Cromwells now are in the orient on a honeymoon tour.

Don't Count on Carefulness Alone To Keep You Out of Fatal Mishaps

Now it's the maker of a brand of automobiles as thick as fleas on a dog's back who falls victim to the accident wave.

If Henry Ford, with his millions to protect himself and his careful policies of personal and business conduct, can't keep out of accidents, how can you hope to avoid disaster?

In March, 1927, it was reported that even this great automobile manufacturer, who turns out automobiles by the millions, was in an automobile accident. If he cannot avoid them, can you? Then why should you figure that it is all right to rock along taking chances?

These are questions to make you pause and consider. It is an excellent idea to reflect that The Constitution offers you travel and pedestrian protection that should be taken advantage of at once.

The insurance offered you through The Atlanta Constitution is issued by the North American Accident Insurance Company of Chicago, Ill., which company has already paid Atlanta Constitution subscribers over $200,000. The insurance is offered to subscribers of the daily and Sunday Constitution and immediate dependent members of the subscriber's family between the ages of 15 and 69 on the one subscription going into the home at a small registration fee of 20 cents with application and 10 cents per month thereafter in addition to the subscription price, or $1 each per policy per year in advance to subscribers who live in Atlanta and Atlanta suburbs where we have carrier delivery. Out-of-town subscribers can have this insurance by paying $1 per policy per year in advance.

This insurance offered through The Atlanta Constitution provides for the payment of sums ranging downward from $10,000 for travel, $1,000 for auto and pedestrian deaths resulting from certain specified accidents, heavy sums for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for total disability resulting from accidents set forth in the policy, which is at the rate of $43.33 per month.

In sending application for insurance the applicant must state name in full, give name and occupation, and if beneficiary is desired the full Christian name of beneficiary must be given and relationship of same to the insured.

Do your duty! Protect yourself and family today. Tomorrow may be too late!

Rubber Firms Attack NRA Constitutionality

CINCINNAI, Ohio, April 15.—(AP) Counsel for two Akron, Ohio, rubber companies attacked the constitutionality of some sections of the NRA in arguments today before the sixth district United States circuit court of appeals.

The hearing involved the appeals of the B. F. Goodrich Company, and the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, of an order by the National Labor Relations Board for them to hold collective bargaining elections.

The companies also contended the board's order exceeded its jurisdiction.

W. B. Stewart, of Goodrich counsel asserted that as for the company unions, "there never was any adoption of the plan by the employes," calling each instead "an employers plan."

TRUCK CODE AUTHORITY HOLDS SESSIONS HERE

Chairman Rodgers Predicts Passage of Law To Regulate Interstate Operations.

Early passage by congress of a law to regulate the interstate operations of trucks was predicted last night by Ted V. Rodgers, of Scranton, Pa., chairman of the National Code Authority for the trucking industry, speaking to more than 250 leading truck operators at the Chamber of Commerce building.

The National Code Authority for the trucking industry meeting in Atlanta for the first time will conclude its two-day conference today at the Henry Grady hotel, discussing code and regulatory problems.

Going down the line for the program of regulation for trucking advanced by the Federal Coordinator of Transportation, Mr. Rodgers said the industry was in favor of reasonable regulation which would permit trucking to survive and take its rightful place in the transportation system of the country. While the industry favors regulation by a federal agency Mr. Rodgers explained that it also was insisting that the Interstate Commerce Commission be reorganized to provide a separate division to administer the proposed act. He made a strong plea to Georgia operators to support the code and the Motor Vehicle Association, of Georgia.

Warns Against Regulation.

Judge Edgar Watkins, transportation attorney, and former examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission, warned against the evils of regulation by commission. He traced the history of the Interstate Commerece Act and its application to railroad regulation, emphasizing the dangers of over-regulation. He urged the operators to "stick" to the code and the NRA because they had accomplished more for their industry under code regulation than had been possible in all the years of their prior existence.

H. D. Horton, of Charlotte, N. C., largest truck operator in the south and member of the National Code Authority for the Georgia region, urged the operators to maintain a price level above cost, as required under the code, and advised them to register, warning that failure to do so would be followed by prosecution in the federal courts.

Deliberations End Today.

The deliberations of the National Code Authority will be concluded this morning. The party, including many local operators, will be the guests of the Motor Vehicle Association of Georgia this afternoon on a tour to Stone Mountain.

Robert N. Springfield, secretary of the association, was chairman of the meeting last night and will be host to the visitors today.

Truck operators are here from Georgia, North and South Carolina, Florida, Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky, Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi.

Members of the national code authority in attendance, in addition to Mr. Rodgers, include Clinton S. Reynolds, Tacoma, Wash.; James E. Murphy, St. Paul, Minn.; Frank Flanagan, Boston, Mass.; H. D. Horton, Charlotte, N. C.; Fred O. Nelson Jr., New York; W. L. Stodghill, Louisville, Ky.; F. R. Petty, Eldorado, Kan.; Roy B. Thompson, San Francisco, Cal.; Frank Shufflebarger, Albuquerque, N. M.; Frank O. Schmidt, Toledo, Ohio; John V. Lawrence, of Washington, D. C., is secretary.

Long Halts Spending Of New Orleans Fund

NEW ORLEANS, April 15.—(AP)—Judge Michel Provosty in civil district court late today granted a temporary restraining order applied for by Governor O. K. Allen to prevent the city of New Orleans and the sewerage and water board from disbursing $1,800,000 in public works administration loan and a grant for Board improvements.

The judge set April 22 for date of arguments on a temporary injunction asked by the governor.

Allen's petition charged that if the city board expends the money it would be done in "extravagant" style and that "henchmen" of the Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley administration would benefit from it.

Counsel for the city argued that if the restraining order was denied "it would be a powerful blow struck in behalf of democratic government in Louisiana."

The temporary victory was in favor of the Huey P. Long forces as against his enemies, the city administration.

Wheeler's Bill Asks U.S. Ownership of Rails

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, introduced today his bill which would provide for government ownership and operation of railroads beginning January 1, 1936.

Wheeler, chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee, said in an interview that unless the bill was approved many roads would face financial collapse within a few months.

NEGRO IS BOUND OVER FOR SHOOTING 2 BOYS

Henry Smith, negro, was bound over under $300 on a charge of assault with intent to murder by Judge A. W. Callaway in recorder's court yesterday afternoon.

Smith fired at two white boys, Paul Allen, 14, of 12 Porter place, N. E., and Mark Wood, 14, of 596 Piedmont avenue, when they hammered on the door of his home, at 4 St. Charles way, N. E., Sunday afternoon. Smith said he thought the boys were robbers. Each was shot in the left foot and both were dismissed at Grady hospital after treatment.

Charles Dooley, negro janitor, who lives in the rear of 761 Boulevard, N. E., told the boys Smith had an air rifle he would sell for 35 cents, they told the court, and said they were merely trying to attract Smith's attention when he fired on them through the door.

Dooley was bound over under $100 bond as an accessory before the shooting.

Spring's Spirit Invades Cop's Poultry Yard

City Patrolman R. L. Mosley, who lives at 1233 McPherson avenue, S. E., has a pet rooster. For three years the chanticleer has comprised the entire Mosley flock.

But spring is in the air. Yesterday morning when Patrolman Mosley went to feed "Bill" the rooster, he found his pet had acquired a companion. A most-alluring little hen was clucking and scratching dirt alongside Bill.

Unless the owner of "Mrs. Bill" puts in a claim, it is possible, in the natural course of events, that the Mosley home will eventually boast a real flock of chickens.

TWO SUBURBS ADOPT DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME

East Point and College Park Vote To Set Up Clocks on April 28.

East Point and College Park adopted daylight saving time last night by order of their city councils.

In both suburban cities, clocks will be set up one hour at 1 a. m. on April 28, which is the time Atlanta's daylight saving ordinance goes into effect.

City Attorney Harold Sheats presented the resolution in East Point council for the change in time this summer and it was adopted unanimously. Mayor E. D. Barrett reported that council of College Park also voted favorably on it.

College Park council will hold a special call meeting tonight to consider requests to the FERA for several thousand dollars with which to erect gymnasiums for the use of children and for public occasions.

Plans for a May Day festival, in which all civic organizations in College Park will take part, also will be discussed tonight. Last night the College Park council heard the juvenile drum and bugle corps of the Lyle-Brewster post of the American Legion in concert. It was the first children's corps to be organized in this country.

Anti-repealists appeared before East Point's governing body and asked that places selling beer be padlocked. Their appeal was tabled by council until after the general election on May 15.

SENATE TO TAKE UP REGULATION OF BUSSES

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—The senate agreed today to begin consideration of the controversial and long-pending bill for regulation of trucks and buses.

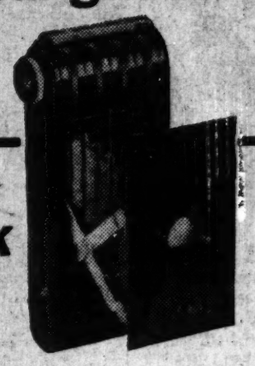

The measure was called up by Chairman Wheeler, of the senate interstate commerce committee. Debate was temporarily postponed, pending consideration of minor bills.

For many years legislation has been pending in congress looking to regulation of interstate highway traffic.

There is Service ON THE CORNER!

How easy it is to accept service. No habit grows more quickly among us humans. I thought of this the other day as I drove away from a filling station.

The automobile has become an essential part of our modern civilization. But in accepting it, we owe much to our great oil and gasoline distributors—the companies which give us—Service On The Corner.

"But"—you reply—"that is their business. They have placed those stations there because it is profitable to do so." Not always. A franchise to serve people in any capacity carries with it certain obligations. The very word "service" is defined as "duty appropriately performed." And many of these service stations are established so that a duty may be performed appropriately for our benefit.

Yes—I think it is proper to make due acknowledgment for good service delivered to us by the distributors of gasoline and oil. We hold no brief for these companies—we have none of their products for sale. But we serve more than 120,000 customers in our bank and anything which contributes to their well-being or convenience is of interest to us.

On this basis we salute the men of the filling stations—the men who give us—Service On The Corner.

The Beautiful Derelict

BY CAROLYN WELLS

INSTALLMENT III.

"Yes, of course. There are the large fingerprints of a man on the silver frame. While everything else is spick and span clean. Our young captain wouldn't pick up the picture of anyone but his sweetheart, to look at closely. Not his sister or cousin."

"That's what I meant, sir. And if you look close on the glass, you can see where he kissed it."

"Zeb, you're an able seaman, but I vow you'd make an abler detective!"

Back came the lifeboat from the Nokomis, bringing Captain Gregg, a prominent medical man who was one of his passengers, and Jamison, the third mate.

"Discovered anything?" Gregg said to Stone, and his snappish tone disclosed his resentment of this unwelcome intrusion which was so upsetting to his own plans.

Dr. Harmer at once went to the huddled figure on the deck and began to examine it. He soon came to a conclusion.

"There is no visible wound on this man," he said. "I see no reason to suggest murder. An autopsy must be made, if we want to learn why he died, but except for poison, no means of death are as yet indicated."

"Do you see any indication of poison?" Fleming Stone asked.

"Not precisely. Symptoms often disappear after death. A slight occlusion of the glottis is indicated, but until a post-mortem can be held I prefer to make no statement. Where is the other dead man?"

Dr. Harmer went down the hatchway, followed by Captain Gregg. The horrified exclamation of the latter proved that his peaceful job as captain of a steamer had not inured him to the sights he was seeing now.

When they returned, the doctor reported that the young man had obviously been felled by a terrific blow on the back of his head. He had fallen forward, not, however, scarring his face badly, and it was the doctor's opinion that death has ensued instantly. There was no more to be said as to this death.

The captain then assumed direction of affairs.

"I deeply regret," he said, "the inconvenience to which I shall have to put my passengers, but my duty is clear. Having found this yacht, derelict, on the high seas, I am obliged to report to the federal authorities as soon as possible. I must also report to the line and the owners of Nokomis, and ask their orders for my personal procedure. The first step is to communicate with the nearest coast guard station, which is New London."

"There's a wireless set on this dinky craft," Jamison informed him.

"Better to send the message from my own ship," Gregg said, "and receive returns there. If the coast guard take over entirely, I can go on my way and reach New York not so very much behind time. I wish we hadn't sighted the thing. We saved no lives, and the yacht will get back to her owner anyway, or to his estate."

"Well, of course—" Jamison began.

"Yes, I know what you mean," the captain grinned. "Salvage. And a swanky little piece of property, like this, would divvy up some coin. Not like the days of old, when a salvor would receive half value of a craft he towed in. But a purse, all the same. That, my owners may insist upon. But I'd rather make port on time than—"

"Now, now," said Stone, quizzically, "are we to believe that?"

"Yes," Gregg asserted, gravely, "personally, it's true. But the Yarmouth line, a corporation and therefore considered soulless, might feel differently about it. The salvage award would be a goodly sum."

"And you'd get a good slice of it," observed Jamison.

"Most likely," agreed the captain. "But action other than this I propose might involve hostile public criticism, than which there is no more fearful wild fowl."

"Right you are," declared Jamison; "go to it."

Captain Gregg went back to his steamer, leaving Jamison in charge of the yacht, with Fleming Stone, who preferred to stay on board.

"Salvage varies, I suppose," Stone said, "with the value of the saved craft."

"More than that," Jamison told him; "all the circumstances must be considered. Hazard, time involved, effort expended, value of equipment used, and in this case the possibility of a federal crime having been committed. But Captain Gregg's the man to do it all up proper. He's quick-witted and intelligent, more'n most, and he'll follow the rules."

"All interesting to me," Stonesaid; "I've never had just this experience before, and I'd like to take up the case, though no one knows as yet whose case it is."

On the Nokomis, Captain Gregg at once got in touch with the coast guard base at New London, that being the nearest. He was advised to proceed to that port, taking the yacht, and keeping the vessel, her equipment, and the bodies as nearly as possible in the condition found. He was informed that the department of justice representative would be notified and would take action.

The United States Attorney would co-operate with the coast guard, and would have investigators board the yacht, perhaps before it reached the port of delivery, via a coast guard craft. This, in order to get all the evidence available as soon as possible.

Obeying these unwelcome but imperative orders, the Nokomis towed the Mad Anthony to the port designated and gave the yacht over to the federal authorities.

Meantime Fleming Stone made arrangements to leave the steamer, and stay by the mysterious craft which so absorbed his attention.

He had never before been brought into contact with the coast guard in action, and he was deeply interested in the proceedings. Efficiency and quick action seemed second nature to this federal agency. Soon the ownership and status of the derelict was established.

It was a private yacht, of great value, belonging to Barry Wayne, of the Nantucket Yacht Club.

Barry Wayne, thought Fleming Stone when he heard this. B. W., of course. Wonder who the other man is—Mr. Elkins Van Zandt.

That was not so easily discovered, though his personality would doubtless soon become known. Probably a guest of the owner.

The final result was that the United States Attorney's office communicated with the residence of Barry Wayne at Nantucket, and talked with Mr. Daniel Webster Wayne, father of the young man whose body was found in the hold of his yacht.

Mr. Wayne, senior, agreed to go to the coast guard station at New London immediately. He flew over and later joined the group who were still uncertain whether or not murder had been done.

Captain Gregg, inwardly fuming at this further delay, United States Attorney Demarest and Fleming Stone, were discussing the situation cautiously with the coast guard authorities, for an entirely parallel case was not known to them.

Who could say whether these two men, if they were killed, had been murdered outside the three-mile limit or not? True, the yacht was found on the high seas, but the deaths may have occurred within the jurisdiction of a particular state.

While waiting for the arrival of Mr. Wayne Fleming Stone and Mr. Demarest, the district attorney, fell into conversation concerning the possible happening that brought about the deaths of the two men on the yacht.

"Could they have been killed elsewhere and carried to the yacht?" asked Demarest, who looked on Stone as a past master in a matter of this sort, he himself having little experience with mysterious cases.

"Not likely," Stone told him. "At least, not Mr. Wayne. He was positively at work on the engine, and struck down by some terrible blow. As to the other man, think it could be possible that he was brought there dead, but we have no definite evidence."

"Perhaps Wayne brought the dead man there, or perhaps he was only ill, and then perhaps Wayne went down to see about the motor, and—someone else came on board—"

"You're getting in deep water, Mr. Demarest. There is not a scrap of evidence of a third man on board."

"Must there be—always?"

"I think so. Where was the yacht when the third man got on board—"

"Oh, he went on with the other two. At the yacht club, I'd say."

"And then they started"

Demarest looked up quickly, fearing a trap.

"Yes, started to sail."

"And the wind gave out."

"Yes, so Wayne concluded to start the motor. You see, Mr. Stone, he was leaning over—"

"And your third man came down and whacked him over the head with a blunt instrument."

"Looks like it."

"Why didn't he put up a fight? He was facing that way. Why didn't he see or hear him?"

"That's what I can't understand."

"I can't understand any of it. That is why I want to take over the case. Do you think it could be managed? There'd be no charge."

"It's up to me, and I'll say right now, I'd be glad to have you help us. Are you at leisure?"

"I can make myself so. I want to work with you and with the police. It's the strangeness of the affair that intrigues me. I don't understand it. I can't see how its conditions are possible. Yet they are right there."

"Perhaps the father of the unfortunate young man can throw some light on conditions."

"Let us hope so. Those two deaths seem to contradict each other. I can't reconstruct the crime."

"Always remembering that there may have been no crime."

"That condition would be harder still to reconstruct. Young Wayne couldn't have dealt himself that fatal blow."

"He could have fallen, accidentally."

"But he didn't. He was attacked, and with force. His position shows that."

"Then there must have been a third man. That lightweight Mr. Van Zandt couldn't have walked down the steps and smashed Wayne and then calmly walked up again."

"When do you think the thing happened?"

"This morning, didn't it?"

"Not in my opinion I think the murders, if they are murders, took place about 20 hours or so before the bodies were discovered."

"Is that so! Why do you think that?"

"Principally because Mr. Van Zandt had been reading yesterday's paper; and there was no paper around of today's date."

"Well, we'll know a lot more now, for here come the men from Nantucket."

In a few moments more, Fleming Stone was looking at two men, whose fine faces were drawn by distress and grief.

JUST NUTS

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph.D.

Although there is apparently a pair of horns on the head of a giraffe, the facts are that there are really no horns there at all. The two projections are merely tufts of fat and skin and there is not the slightest trace of horn there. Horns grow like hoofs and nails from the skin and are very hard. These so-called "horns" of the giraffe are soft.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

HISTORY'S FASHION PARADE.

VII—Cavaliers and Puritans.

During the reign of King Charles I. two great parties in England came to blows. On the one side were the Cavaliers, on the other the Puritans.

A Cavalier and a Puritan.

The name "Cavalier" came from a French term meaning "horseman" or "knight"; and the Cavaliers of England were in general of the more well-to-do class. They were friends of the king.

The Puritans were English Protestants who believed that the form of worship should be more simple than that of the Church of England. They were enemies of the king; and under the lead of Oliver Cromwell, they fought and defeated the king's soldiers.

The Cavaliers were the men of fashion in England. They wore felt hats, often with large plume stretching out behind. They let their hair grow long, or else wore wigs; and their long curls hung down about their shoulders.

When riding (and sometimes when not riding) a Cavalier wore high boots, fitted with spurs. At other times, he wore low square-toed shoes and tight silk stockings. His shoes might be adorned with bows, or with roses made of ribbon. His breeches were not padded (like those of gentlemen in the time of Elizabeth), but they were colorful; and so was the rest of the costume.

The Puritans did not like the ways or dress of the leader of fashion. Instead of bright colorful costumes, they had dark-colored garments—except for wide white collars. Over their shoulders, they wore capes. No jaunty plume was set in the hat of a Puritan!

Puritan men cut their hair short, and this led a Cavalier to ask, "What creature is this with his short hair, and huge long ears?"

Puritan ears were no longer than those of other men; but they could be seen, for they were not covered by long curls. The nickname "Roundhead" arose because of the Puritan custom of cutting the hair.

When King Charles and the Cavaliers were in power, thousands of Puritans left England to settle in the New World—in the part of the United States now known as New England. After the Roundheads gained control of England, a large number of Cavaliers crossed the Atlantic and settled in Virginia.

RUN OVER BY TRUCK, NEGRO GIRL IS KILLED

Bell Street Fatality Is 15th Auto Accident Death Here This Year.

Crushed under the wheels of a heavy truck yesterday afternoon on Bell street near Pratt, Julia Mae Kemp, 13-year-old negro girl living at a Bell street address, died shortly after 7:30 o'clock last night at Grady hospital.

H. B. Burgamy, of 1364 Iverson street, driver of the truck, told police that he was traveling on Bell street and had slowed to about 10 miles an hour near the intersection when the Kemp girl, who was crossing the street with two other girls, suddenly turned back and ran in front of the truck.

The girl was knocked down and before Burgamy could come to a stop one of the wheels had passed over her body. The fatality was the 15th death from auto accidents within the city limits during the year and the first to occur this month.

A technical charge of reckless driving was booked against Burgamy, the case to be heard at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

2 Trolley-Auto Crashes.

Two street car-automobile accidents appeared on police records yesterday. The first occurred at 5:30 o'clock in the morning at the intersection of West Hunter and Ashby street, when a West Hunter Street car, operated by O. D. House, of 1577 Archer street, collided with an automobile driven by G. T. Lewis, of Route No. 1, Atlanta, with T. B. Hugguns, of 1225 Hill street as a passenger. Lewis and Huggins were treated at Grady hospital for lacerations about the head and dismissed.

The other accident involving a street car occurred shortly after noon on Whitehall street between Hunter and Mitchell. Mrs. Oscar F. Allen, of 1226 Indale place, suffered a minor foot injury when she pulled away from the curb in her automobile and collided with a street car operated by E. H. Hopkins, of 788 Jett street.

Truck Turns Over.

C. L. Price, of 483 Windsor street, driver of a vegetable truck, and his helper, Walter Brown, of 22 Georgia avenue, S. W., received cuts and bruises about the face and body yesterday when Price, the driver of the truck, struck the curbing and turned over at the corner of West Peachtree and Sixth streets in an effort to avoid hitting another car at the intersection.

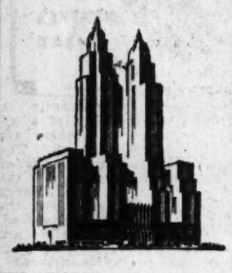

Ernest Chandler, 14-year-old negro boy living at 58 1-2 Flat Shoals avenue, received a slightly injured right arm yesterday afternoon, when, according to police reports, his bicycle collided with an automobile driven by J. S. Ellis, of 67 Spruce street, at the intersection of Edgewood avenue and Waddell street. Ellis said that the boy struck his right rear fender.

Knocked down by a hit-and-run driver yesterday on Hilliard street near Auburn avenue, Zebedee Turner, negro, of 229 Jackson street, N. E., was treated at Grady hospital for cuts and bruises about the head and body and dismissed. He told police that the car which hit him was driven by a young negro man.

William Martin, 22, son of Henry C. Martin, of 863 Courtenay drive, N. E., laboratory director of the city health department, was slightly injured yesterday when his automobile was struck at the corner of Glen Iris drive and East avenue by a truck driven by Y. J. Porterfield, of 848 Norcross street, S. W. Martin suffered lacerations about the head and a wrenched back.

MAN IN THE STREET—A new feature in radio broadcasting over WGST will be heard again this afternoon at 12:15 o'clock as Tom Jackson buttonholes passers-by to get their comment on the opening ball game today. Mr. Akerson, advertising manager for WGST, has brought this novel program to WGST listeners in order to obtain first-hand information from people in general on current problems, principally in Atlanta. Tom Jackson is especially adept at asking questions. These queries are of interest to all because he is, so to speak, feeling the pulse of Atlanta's public.

CARAVAN—Gangway for another Caravan, with Walter O'Keefe, his Broadway hill-billies, Annette Hanshaw, Ted Husing and the Cass Loma orchestra in a broadcast over WGST from 9 to 9:30 o'clock tonight. There will be plenty of amusing antics featuring "Snake Eyes" O'Keefe with Pretty Boy McGilliecuddy—Louis Sorin to you, folks—ably assisted by the charming Miss Frost as Machine-Gun Gertie and Jack O'Keefe as Tongue-Tied Tetley. The musical setting will feature Annette Hanshaw singing "My Heart Is an Open Book" and "March Winds and April Showers." Pee Wee Hunt will offer his version of the recent song hit, "I Won't Dance," and Kenny Sargent will sing "Life Is a Song."

DRAMATIZATION—A dramatization of the history of the National Tuberculosis Association's work will be broadcast over WGST this afternoon at 4:15 o'clock.

The program will be heard from New York and has been arranged in conjunction with the association's annual "early diagnosis campaign." The association's present slogan is "Fight Tuberculosis With Modern Weapons."

A group of prominent physicians from the New York Academy of Medicine will attend the broadcast.

'OFFICE EYESIGHT' PREVALENT HERE

Optometrist Warns All Who Neglect Their Eyes.

"Office Eyesight," a condition, peculiarly enough, not confined to those who do office work, has been the source of much physical discomfort and business inefficiency, according to the statement of a prominent Atlanta optometrist.

The condition is very prevalent here, he said, resulting from concentrated use of the eyes without giving them proper attention.

It is most prevalent among those engaged in such work as bookkeeping, typing, close reading of small print, watchmaking, engraving, reading or working under poor artificial light, in fact all manner of eye concentration for long periods at a time impose an unnatural strain upon the eyes that often proves very harmful.

Those whose daily work or habits require long hours of application should consult an optometrist at least once a year, he said. If so, one is apt to avoid what otherwise might develop into a serious condition.

A complete service for the examination of the eyes and fitting glasses, all at one cost, is available at A. K. Hawkes Co., 67 Whitehall St.—Atlanta's oldest and best known optical house.—(adv.)

Dr. Kracke Speaks To Alabama Society

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 15—(AP) Gradual decrease in the number of cases of agranulocytosis, destruction of the white, or disease fighting corpuscles of the blood, as a direct result of public recognition of the danger of using "pain killers" containing amidopyrine was reported to the Jefferson County Medical Society here tonight by Dr. Roy R. Kracke, professor pathology at Emory University School of Medicine, Atlanta.

Dr. Kracke, discoverer of the connection between the use of amidopyrine and the debilitating disease and who was awarded the gold medal of the American Society of Clinical Patholoists and a certificate of honor by the American Medical Association for his work along this line, said that two thousand persons had died in the United States from this disease. He declared that the white race was especially susceptible to it, and that the ravages of the disease were confined almost exclusively to the better classes.

As the reason for the decrease in the toll of life he gave the widespread knowledge of the danger of the drugs containing the compound and the added reason that persons now familiar with the danger, more often consulted physicans when they were distressed or made uncomfortable by pain.

He said many hundreds of drugs contain amidopyrine.

Pact To Save Art Is Signed by U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—North and South America joined at the White House today in signing the Roerich pact, designed to preserve the culture of the new world through joint protection in times of war of artistic and scientific institutions and historic monuments.

Choosing Pan-American Day—anniversary of the birth of Bolivar, the liberator—for promulgating the treaty, President Roosevelt said the pact possessed a "spiritual significance" far deeper than the text of the instrument itself.

Calling for a rebirth of Pan-Americanism, Mr. Roosevelt, addressing the assembled plenipotentiaries of the 21 American nations, said:

"On the occasion of this celebration of Pan-American Day let us again dedicate ourselves to the task of translating into deeds the essential unity of interest of the nations of this continent.

"Let us also bring renewed allegiance to those high principles of international co-operation and helpfulness which, I feel assured, will be a great contribution to civilization by the Americas."

'Soil Service' Bill Approved by Senate

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—A house resolution providing for co-ordination of government soil erosion activities under the department of agriculture to halt the ravages of dust storms was passed today by the senate by unanimous consent.

It would set up a "soil conservation service" which would conduct surveys and authorize preventive measures on land owners by the government and on private land provided consent of the owner was obtained.

Sales Tax Decision Appealed in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 15.—(AP)—The test case of the new Arkansas 2 per cent sales tax which resulted in a holding of unconstitutionality in Pulaski chancery court last Saturday, was formally appealed to the state supreme court today and set for submission six weeks hence. The action automatically postponed collection of the tax for at least a month after May 1, its intended effective date.

ARMY PILOT JUMPS FROM BURNING PLANE

ASHLAND, Ky., April 15.—(AP)—Sergeant William McDonald, flying to Montgomery, Ala., was forced to bale out of an army plane when it caught fire from leaking gas or oil line at the edge of Ashland today.

McDonald was slightly hurt in the leap. The plane hit in a street, glanced, hit a tree and burned on a hillside on Beech street near the city limits. The plane was of the two-seated pursuit type, but it could not be learned what place it came from.

Big Atlanta Plant Damaged in Spectacular $150,000 Blaze

Five thousand persons watched flames do damage totaling $150,000 to the Warren company refrigerator plant at 905 Fair street, S. E., last night. Here are spectators thrilled by the blaze as firemen battled desperately to control the two-alarm fire. The machine shop, the foundry, the planing room, the wood kilns and the reconditioning department of the Warren company were destroyed but will be rebuilt immediately. The loss was not covered by insurance. Staff photo by Turner Hiers.

SPECTACULAR FIRE CAUSES BIG LOSS

tive, he declared. That section of the building the flames did not enter is insured, however, he said.

He said that steps would be taken immediately to rebuild the burned building, and that in the meantime the company would continue to manufacture refrigerators with supplies on hand in the main building.

It was the second time in five years that the foundry, woodworking shop and dry kiln have been destroyed by fire. That portion of the structure was burned in 1930 with a loss of $63,000.

Included in the loss was lumber for a baseball backstop and bleachers, which Mr. Warren had just purchased to establish a baseball field for his employes on company property. The lumber for this purpose was stored in the woodworking shop.

Bryant said that he was just leaving work for the day and stepped into the foundry. He saw flames shooting from the oil tanks and ran to the nearest telephone and called the fire department. It was believed that sparks from the furnaces in the foundry set the oil tanks on fire.

Firemen battling the blaze were handicapped by dense clouds of smoke pouring from the building. A high wind fanned the flames, this rendering the task of the fire fighters even more difficult. Several drums containing paint and oil exploded, endangering the lives of those fighting the fire.

It was reported that the west wall of the building had collapsed, burying five firemen beneath it, and a number of ambulances were hurried to the scene. A small portion of the wall did fall, but a hurried checkup revealed that no one had been injured and the ambulances were sent away.

"I feel confident that most of the four departments housed in the one-story building would have been saved had the fire department responded to the alarm with sufficient fire-fighting equipment, and if rotten hose had not been used," Mr. Warren said.

"I do not wish to seem unduly critical, but I saw at least a dozen sections of fire hose that burst as soon as the water pressure was stepped up. Had better hose been used this would not have happened and I think the building would have been saved.

"At one time during the blaze a line of hose owned by the Warren Company was the only one shooting water into the rear of the building, where the fire was the heaviest."

Spectators who crowded along the railroad tracks adjoining the building were forced to beat a hurried retreat on several occasions when a sudden shift of the wind showered them with sparks from the fire.

Nazis Refuse Return Of Kidnaped Reporter

BERLIN, April 15.—(AP)—In spite of a diplomatic protest from the Swiss government, Germany announced today that it declines to return Berthold Jacob, German newspaperman, assertedly kidnaped from Swiss soil, branding him as a "traitor" who must submit to the course of justice.

The government informed the Swiss ministry that it could not grant the request to return Berthold to Swiss jurisdiction. A German news bureau communique said Jacob "came within German jurisdiction without action by an official German department and he is a traitor by word and thought who frequently before has been sentenced, nothing else can be done by Germany except to let justice take its course."

The news bureau issued an earlier statement declaring it had determined that Dr. Hans Wesemann, a German citizen under arrest in Switzerland, acted on his own behalf and without orders from the German government in Jacob's alleged kidnaping March 9.

ROOSEVELT TO RECEIVE TEXTILE PROTESTORS

WASHINGTON, April 15.—(AP)—Thinly veiled threats of refusing to pay the cotton processing tax echoed through the textile centers today as arrangements were made for a mass interview late in the week between the president and some 50 house members interestd in the present mill situation.

Representative Martin, republican, Massachusetts, was assured by Marvin McIntyre, secretary to the president, that Mr. Roosevelt would receive the house textile bloc, probably on Friday or Saturday, to hear their arguments for administration action to assist the industry.

C., April 15.—(AP)—More than 100 cotton dealers from Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Virginia and the Carolinas heard criticisms of the government's attitude toward cotton production at the twelfth annual convention of the Atlantic Cotton Association, which opened here today. The convention will end tomorrow.

William P. Jacobs, secretary of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of South Carolina, assailed the cotton processing tax and restriction of production as stifling the textile industry and encouraging competitors against American cotton.

Bradstreet Retracts Recovery Statement

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP)—Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., in a statement issued today over the signature of A. D. Whiteside, president, characterized as "inadvertent and unauthorized" the highly optimistic business forecast which appeared in its weekly trade review of last Friday.

While Whiteside's statement did not specifically name the subject matter which the firm wished to retract, it was assumed that he was referring to the following paragraph in the review:

"During the week there was a complete transformation of sentiment, as the hopes for a rather far removed improvement were replaced by a realization that the immediate future is to bring the sharpest rise that has been witnessed in business in the past quarter of a century."

In his correction Whiteside said: "No significant information justified the inadvertent and unauthorized departure from our policy of not making predictions as to the future business trend which was evidenced in our 'weekly review of business' released under date of April 12, 1935."

Birmingham Officer Dies of Gun Wound

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 15.—(AP)—Patrolman J. M. Early died here early today of wounds received in a battle with a confessed burglar, also critically wounded, who barricaded himself in a garage and fought it out for more than an hour with officers who came to arrest him yesterday.

Benjamin H. Gilham, who admitted looting a grocery, was given a "fifty-fifty chance" for life. He was wounded four times in the fusillade of bullets which officers directed against his stronghold after Early was shot down.

TEXAS CONVICTS TELL OF SELF-MUTILATION

ANGLETON, Texas, April 15.—(AP) Convicts on crutches hobbled before legislative investigators today with gruesome stories of having maimed themselves to escape the alleged brutality of guards at the Retrieve state prison farm near here.

The session, in which a special prison committee of the Texas house of representatives interviewed some half-dozen prisoners in launching a probe of the brutality charges, was closed to outsiders.

Farm officials said one of the convicts questioned had injected kerosene into an injured leg to cause infection and that others had cut themselves about the legs.

The investigation was ordered after two state prison board members had reported prisoners mutilated themselves by cutting off their legs and in other ways because they feared guards would kill them if they went into the fields to work.

Captain I. K. Kelly, head of the farm for the last six years, said the convicts merely were looking for sympathy. He said a score had maimed themselves during the last two years—several since talk of a legislative investigation was heard.

CCC Work Lauded by Herty As Statesboro Unveils Tablet

STATESBORO, Ga., April 15.—(AP) South Georgia Teachers' College and the Statesboro Chamber of Commerce today paid tribute to Dr. Charles H. Herty with the unveiling of a bronze tablet on the college campus at the spot where the noted chemist hung his first turpentine cup.

Distinguished Georgians from all over the state attended the exercises which were divided into four parts, opening with an assembly program in the college auditorium this morning.

President Marvin S. Pittman, of the college, presided and introduced Dr. Herty, who has become nationally prominent through his experiments in the production of newsprint from southern pine pulp.

In an address Dr. Herty praised the work of the Civilian Conservation Corps, describing it as a "remarkable conception by President Roosevelt."

"The constructive thought of the president is daily proving through this channel a greater and greater blessing to the nation," he said.

Dr. Herty told of his observations on a recent trip to wooded land near Savannah, where he said he had seen evidence of the work of the CCC in aiding timber protective organizations.

After the meeting at the auditorium the students, faculty and guests assembled in the woods on the southeastern edge of the campus where the tree upon which the original Herty turpentine cup was placed now stands.

Guy H. Wells, former president of the college here and now head of the Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville, gave a background of the occasion and Frank Klarpp, of Macon, who was associated with Dr. Herty in his work here, re-enacted the placing of the first cup.

The tablet honoring Dr. Herty then was unveiled by Mrs. M. E. Judd, former president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. Dr. Herty made a short response.

The christening of the college forest formed the third part of the day's program. A trio including Mrs. W. S. Hanner, Miss Newell Deloach and Mrs. Z. S. Henderson sang to open this ceremony. Dr. R. J. H. DeLoach, a former pupil of Dr. Herty, christened the large pine forest in front of the campus, "The Herty Pines."

The Statesboro Chamber of Commerce was host at a luncheon for Dr. Herty at noon. Hinton Booth, president, extended greetings to the guest of honor and brief talks were made by a number of prominent Georgians.

Liquor Tax Violators Fill U. S. Courtroom

Jamming federal court to overflowing, more than 100 persons accused of violating the United States alcohol tax law appeared yesterday to enter pleas of guilty or not guilty to charges against them.

Trial of the defendants pleading not guilty will be held during the week before Judge E. Marvin Underwood. Those who entered pleas of guilty will likewise be sentenced this week, it was announced.

Judge Underwood's docket listed 35 cases yesterday, while the federal grand jury at noon returned 20 more indictments against various individuals, swelling the total to more than 100.

The deluge of liquor cases is the result of the intensive drive carried on by alcohol tax unit operatives under W. K. Jonston, chief investigator in this area. Most of the defendants are charged with the manufacture and possession of alcohol on which the federal tax was not paid.

79,000 FAMILIES ON RELIEF ROLLS

Miss Shepperson, at Columbus, Says 400,000 Georgians Are Receiving Aid.

COLUMBUS, Ga., April 15.—(AP)—The task of providing adequate and permanent care for an increased number of handicapped persons still faces federal, state and local authorities, says Miss Gay B. Shepperson, administrator of the Georgia Emergency Relief Administration.

On tonight's program of the convention of Georgia Social Workers, Miss Shepperson said that while many people are working out their economic recovery, there is also a large percent, who because of overage and physical and mental handicaps, are not likely to compete again successfully in the commercial market for work.

She said "we are yet in mid-stream with the 79,000 families, or 400,000 people on relief today."

400,000 Get Relief.

"Insecurity, as we have found it in this state," she declared, "has not been confined to any one class of people. The educated, the young and old have suffered, along with the thousands of skilled and professional workers who have been dislocated as the result of a national economic condition . . ."

She outlined in detail the various phases of the relief program in Georgia and said $48,961,183.02 had been spent since July, 1933, with more than $7,000,000 spent on health and recreation and over $6,000,000 on education.

Employment and relief were given to 136,792 breadwinners in February, 1934, through the CWA and GERA; in October there were 99,551 cases; in February, 1935, there were 79,583.

Of those on relief rolls in February, there were 5,945 construction workers; 561 auto mechanics; 3,957 textile workers; 2,434 seamstresses and garment workers; 10,273 domestic servants; 17,731 farmers and farm hands; 27,390 laborers; unclassified, 3,497.

Others included: 416 teachers; 537 salesmen; 1,583 bookkeeers and accountants; 379 nurses. For medical care, the relief administration has spent $35,000 to $40,000 monthly.

From November 1, 1933, to December 31, 1934, relief workmen constructed, repaired and renovated 335 public buildings; constructed and improved 751 playgrounds and 113 city parks; constructed 127 new school buildings; repaired or altered 682 school buildings; installed 38 water supply systems; repaired, graded and improved 1,500 miles of streets and roads; built 22 airports.

Relief nurses administered 184,343 typhoid inoculations; 14,441 diphtheria inoculations, and vaccinated 5,591 persons against small pox, and made more than 115,000 visits to members of relief families.

Last year they produced in excess of 29,000,000 pounds of vegetables from which they canned 544,607 cans. In addition, they canned 8,303,301 pounds of beef; built 46 community canneries; built 228 pens and chutes for testing cattle.

The program has cost $48,961,183 since July, 1933.

After picturing the rural rehabilitation program, and other measures, Miss Shepperson said:

"It is our responsibility to assist the leaders in this country toward discovering new bases of economy—facing about with an open mind—not looking back to the old, accustomed ways, which have failed."

Urges State Program.

E. M. Kahn, of Atlanta, director of the Jewish Federation of Social Service, today told the social workers of Georgia in convention here it was the state's duty to lead the social program despite the attitude of state officials on the question.

He said institution of an effective social program in the state had been blocked by the governor's veto on all but six bills which had been passed and which would have made possible the creation of an adequate social program.

Mrs. Armand Wyle, of Atlanta, director of the children's service bureau of the Hebrew Orphans' home, was on the program as the speaker on child care. In her address she said "no service is comparable in satisfaction to that which permits people in trouble to work out their own salvation."

J. Arthur Flynn, of Atlanta, state director of transients, in his address said "transiency is something to be understood rather than condemned as a nuisance."

The principal causes for transiency were described by Fynn as unemployment and seasonal work, industrial inadequacy of individuals, defects of personality, crises in the life of the person, racial or social discrimination and wanderlust.

Miss Lottie Ramspeck, chief probation officer, Fulton county juvenile court, Atlanta, on the section program for a discussion of probation stands, said in her address that "probation is not a sentimental work, but a work that calls for sound judgment, common sense and understanding."

TENANTS' INTERESTS TO GET CONSIDERATION

Interesting Articles Are Collected By Many Well-Known Atlantans

By Sally Forth.

EVERYONE has the collector's instinct. Sometimes it's wives, as in the case of that old rascal Henry VIII. Or perchance it's snakes and toads, like Tom Sawyer. Or one might have an urge for exquisite Dresden china, polo ponies, first editions, signatures, antiques, gin bottles, paintings, horseshoes, and a perfect array of other things. Things are useful, beautiful and ornamental, or are merely collected to satisfy people's craving to collect.

Mrs. Albert Thornton, noted for her artistic taste, has collected antique objects for several years. A rare assortment of old china, silver, glass, furniture and priceless copies of hitsoric books adorn her home on Fifth street. She owns an entire dessert service of Spode china and a dinner service of Royal Darby.

Frances Weinman Latimer's admiration for exquisite Dresden figures inspired her to collect the dainty china figurines adorning her beautifully furnished apartment on Peachtree street. A rather far cry is Carroll Latimer's hobby from that of his bride. He collected a closet full of golf balls gathered from links on which he has played.

Mrs. Emory Cocke delights in assembling Dresden china dolls of every type. Mrs. Claude McGinnis Jr. prefers figurines of horses. Perhaps this choice is due to the fact that the Junior League president is an accomplished horsewoman and a great admirer of blooded horseflesh. Alongside her array of miniature horses she placed a small white china mule. Wearing an expression of rage, the three-inch mule kicks up his legs at an imaginary foe. Rebecca McGinnis declares that when she becomes cross or fretted she finds great relief in gazing at the vengeance depicted on the face of her little mule. It somehow provides an outlet for her anger.

Louisa Robert displays the affectio she holds for her beloved Scotty, "Alex," by collecting figures of this particular type of dog. The popular president of the past season's Debutante Club possesses countless wooden and china Scotties. She often wears a pin or some other piece of jewelry on which is carved the head of her favorite canine.

Colonel Ralph Glass, U. S. A., owns an interesting collection of stamps. Some are of great value, and are neatly pasted into an album. Sally has promised him the first tin-can mail stamp she finds among her letters.

Miniature crystal bottles form the attractive collection of Betty Taylor, lovely schoolgirl daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Taylor Jr. In bright array they adorn her dressing table and among her favorite gifts are tiny crystal flasks. One friend of Sally's has a perfectly insane way of saving his empty tobacco cans and his de. is ornamented with hundreds of Prince Albert tobacco cans, greatly to the despair of his wife.

Angela Campbell, beautiful Spanish wife of Edward Campbell, has a number of glass bottles at their Fourth street residence. There are wine red bottles with slender tops, crystal bottles, and squatty glass jugs. Mrs. Campbell has become quite an authority on glassware and talks convincingly about the strawberry pattern and sandwich glass.

Stacy Ernest Hill, because of her love for animals, stages a parade of miniature china dogs at her Juniper street home. Her hobby is quite fitting, for everyone knows Stacy is forever rescuing sickly stray dogs and rushing them hospital-ward to give them aid. Ernest E. Dallis has a score or more of big and little elephants in his downtown office. Ann Pappenheimer shares Stacy Hill's enthusiasm for small china dogs, and possesses an attractive collection.

WHEN the train from Washington, D. C., rolls into Brookwood station on Wednesday morning, Eleanor and Boline Spalding will detrain. They are students at the Visitation convent, and are coming here to spend their Easter vacation. They are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Spalding.

When Sally telephoned to ask Mrs. Spalding if she had planned any parties for her attractive daughters, she replied:

"Oh, no. I expect to take them to the doctor's for typhoid shots znd to the dentist to have some teeth extracted."

Sally hopes that Eleanor and "Bobo" will find something more pleasant to do while on vacation. By way of explanation, the typhoid shots will be given preparatory to the North Cape cruise to be taken by Eleanor and Bobo immediately after their school closes in June.

ATLANTANS who met Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Gwalthney, of Short Hills, N. J., at the week-end social gayeties were charmed with the attractive personalities of these important visitors. As guests of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Sullivan at their handsome Valley road home, they are receiving a cordial welcome here. It seems that Mr. and Mrs. Gwalthney are just as delighted with Atlanta's springtime beauty and hospitality as their friends are with their presence. Each visitor declares that the dogwood blooms now enshrouding the city's residential section make it one of the most beautiful sights he has ever witnessed.

Although the visitors have made their home in the east for a number of years they claim the south as their native land. Both belong to prominent families in North Carolina, where they were reared in Wilmington. Mrs. Gwalthney is the former Miss Octavia Boatwright, of that city, and it was during her girlhood days that she became a close friend of Mrs. Sullivan, who was Miss Annie deResset, also of Wilmington.

"YOU are crazy,' said Sybilla Pringle to Medora Fitten, out at the seminary last week.

"No, I'm not. To be great is to be misunderstood," retorted Medora, thereby furnishing the seminary girls with their current retort proper.

Medora, it seems, is faithfully studying her essay on "Self-Reliance." She uses the wordly wisdom of Emerson on frequent occasions, which gives her an air of savoir-faire.

Mrs. George Beattie was elected president of the Kappa Delta Alumnae Club at the meeting held Saturday at the Tavern tea room. The meeting followed the luncheon given by the alumnae in honor of Miss Faith Kuter, national inspector of Kappa Delta, who was in the city on official business Weathers, editor and publicity chairman. Monthly reports from the officers were another interesting feature of the meeting.

Miss Mabel Louise Bales Weds Mr. Clark at Church Ceremony

Miss Mabel Louise Bales became the bride of William Young Clark, of Shelter, Long Island, at an impressive ceremony taking place Monday evening at the West End Church of Christ on Gordon street. Rev. J. D. Bales, brother of the bride, performed the ceremony at 7:30 o'clock in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends of the young couple.

Palms, ferns and tall baskets of calla lilies were used in effective and beautiful arrangement as the decorations throughout the church. Pews reserved for members of the family were marked by clusters of calla lilies tied with white satin ribbons.

Wedding Party.

Wallis Keckley and Clayton Bales acted as ushers and Mrs. R. H. Brannon acted as matron of honor for her sister. Misses Mildred Bales and Dorothy Massey, of Fitzgerald, were the junior bridesmaids. Mrs. Brannon was becomingly gowned in light blue mousseline de soie cut along bias lines and fashioned with a deep V-neck and large, full sleeves. She carried a large shower bouquet of roses showered with lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids were dressed exactly like the matron of honor and wore pink and carried arm bouquets of garden flowers. Little Helen Spradlin was the flower girl and wore a pink mousselline de soie and carried a colonial nosegay of roses and lilies of the valley.

Lovely Bride.

Entering with her brother, R. H. Brannon, by whom she was given in marriage, the bride was met at the altar by the bridegroom and Richard Ames, of Hartford, Conn., who acted as best man. She was beautifully gowned in soft white satin fashioned along princess lines, the floor-length skirt widening to form a long train. An illusion tulle wedding veil was caught to the bride's soft hair by clusters of orange blossoms and fell in graceful folds over the long train. The veil was the same worn by the bride's sister, Mrs. R. H. Brannon, the former Miss Mary Bales, and also by their mother, the late Mrs. Benjamin Bales, who was Miss Ethel Davis at her marriage in Coal City, Ind. The bride carried a large bride's bouquet of white roses showered with lilies of the valley.

Reception at Home.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Brannon entertained at a reception at their home on Pine View terrace complimenting their sister and Mr. Clark. The occasion also marked the second wedding anniversary of the hosts and also the anniversary date of the marriage of their parents.

Spring flowers were used in attractive arrangement as the decorations throughout the home. The hosts, the bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. C. Y. Clark, of New York and Coral Gables, Fla., parents of the bridegroom, and members of the wedding party formed the receiving line.

Mrs. Clark was gowned in wine-colored velvet and wore a shoulder bouquet of gardenias. Mrs. J. S. Davis, of Fitzgerald, Ga., maternal grandmother of the bride, wore black lace with gardenias. Mrs. W. M. Powers presided at the punch table, Miss Helen Wilder kept the bride's book and Miss Shirley Fergerson assisted in serving. During the evening Mr. Clark and his bride left for a wedding trip to Coral Gables and upon their return will make their home in Shelter Island, Long Island, N. Y. The bride traveled in a navy blue crepe trimmed in peach, and her hat, purse, shoes and gloves were in navy.

Among out-of-town guests attending the marriage were Mr. and Mrs. C. Y. Clark, parents of the bridegroom; Misses Martha, Barbara and Doris Halsey, all of New York and Coral Gables, Fla.; Mrs. J. S. Davis, maternal grandmother of the bride; Mrs. J. M. Massey, aunt of the bride, and Donald Massey, cousin of the bride, all of Fitzgerald, Ga.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

A correspondent writes of a neighbor: "She was always a sweet tempered, soft-spoken woman, an adoring mother to her ony son. He fell in love with a fine young woman whom she didn't approve and no sooner were they married than she turned into a tigerish female, fierce and sharp tongued." And so it often happens—one of the mysteries of life! A mother centers her whole life's affection on her child, divorces herself from every other interest and when nature takes its course and the son falls in love, gets married and leaves her she can't take it. An angel from heaven wouldn't please her as a daughter-in-law. One might suppose that her chief concern would be to see her son happily settled in life, building his nest with his mate to rear his family and lead a normal life. But no, that fierce animal jealousy, that possessive maternal spirit has consumed her. She will fight to the teeth anybody that threatens her position as sole claimant of her son's affection.

In a free-for-all fight for a man's affection a mother hasn't a show to win against his wife and this is as it should be. "A house divided against itself shall fall." No matter what sort of woman a man marries, the supposition is that he married her because she suited him, because he loved her and wanted her to be the mother of his children. From that time on his own mother has one chance to keep her place in her son's affection; it is to take the daughter-in-law to her heart and make her feel that she is not outlawed for having married her son. Otherwise she is forever butting her head against the stone wall of an ever present barrier, a barrier that won't come down however hard she butts, for the wife is on the ground, whispering every grievance in her husband's ears, inviting him to protect her and fight off the enemy that attacks her. Everybody is embittered or embarrassed by the experience. The man himself is afraid to throw wife and mother together for fear of a scene. He is always being torn between doing his duty by his parent and catching fits at home, or neglecting his parents and feeling like a renegade. If he is very brave and independent he hews his way the best he can and lets the chips fall where they may but if he lacks courage he ends by choosing the easiest way out. In any event life is poisoned for the three of them and when the children come they inhale the poisoning atmosphere of the unhappy relationship.

Mighty few young women can endure the injustices of a jealous mother-in-law and keep sweet and smiling under it. To be treated like an interloper and a thief because she has married the man she loved is a pretty stiff dose to swallow and unless she is wise beyond her years and as sweet as molasses the young wife won't submit to such treatment. She will fight back with what ever weapons she finds and the chief one is of course her husband's affection for her. If the mother-in-law won't accept her sweetly, the war is on.

Here they are, the three of them, bound to each other in one of life's closest relationships and at daggers' points. No wonder the mother who was soft-spoken and sweet-tempered becomes tigerish when she surveys the havoc that is wrought in her family. But she doesn't hold herself responsible. She holds that poor daughter-in-law responsible and hates her with a hatred we always hate those whom we have cruelly wronged. She refuses to see or to acknowledge that it was not the girl on whom her wrath should have fallen. She refuses to acknowledge that jealousy prompted her ugly attitude. She has picked a thousand flaws in the girl's character and persuaded herself that nothing about her is right, and so has she justified herself for her meanness.

But it is she who must suffer. The chance to placate the daughter-in-law and make friends with her is past. The children, when they come, will never be close to her in the sense that they would have been had she taken their mother to her heart. They may be brought to see her semi-occasionally and taught to call her grandmother. When they are grown they may be respectful to her as befits her age and grant her the deference their father's mother is due. But she will never be to them what she might have been—a real grandmother, loved and adored, because they will resent her treatment of their mother and hold her accountable for the breach.

How can a woman be so foolish as to set up the barrier between herself and her only child and mark out for herself an old age of loneliness and bitterness? But many do and all because they are not willing to release their strangle hold on the lives they have brought into the world. It is a case of love turning and devouring itself.

In-law relationships bring out the worst in women. Wives, mothers, sisters fine in all the other relationships of life frequently haven't the self-control and the self-discipline to maintain friendly, even decent, attitudes to in-laws.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Shading the Bid.

The 1935 streamlined version of the approach-forcing system has reduced the requirements for biddable suits. Nevertheless, there still must be a limit. For instance, it is unwise to open the bidding with a major suit or make a first round response in a major suit when holding something like four to the ace without any other honor. There are certain situations, however, in which shaded suits must be bid. When making forced responses in the later rounds of bidding or when trying for a slam, very often the best call available to the player is to show his skimpy suit, particularly when it is headed by the ace.

On the hand below, Waldemar Von Zedtwitz and Samuel Fry Jr., of New York, got to slam in the only suit in which it could be made, despite considerable nuisance bidding by their opponents. Neither player had a strictly biddable spade suit, and yet six-odd in spades was reached and five-odd was the limit of the hand in any other suit.

South, dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ K 7 5 3 ♡ A K Q 6 2 ◇ 7 4 ♣ A 8
♠ J 8 ♡ 8 ◇ J 10 5 2 ♣ K Q J 10 7 5	N W E S	♠ Q 10 6 ♡ 10 9 7 4 3 ◇ 6 3 ♣ 9 4 3
	♠ A 9 4 2 ♡ J 5 ◇ A K Q 9 8 ♣ 6 2

Waldemar von Zedtwitz

The bidding: Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1◇	3♣(1)	4♣(2)	Pass
4◇	Pass	4♡(3)	Pass
4♠(4)	Pass	5♠(5)	Pass
6♠(6)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A nuisance jump overcall inserted merely to make the North-South task more difficult.
2—The overcall in the opponents' bid suit. North cannot raise diamonds and feels three hearts would not be strong enough. He consequently temporizes by forcing another response from his partner.
3—North naturally shows his own suit, having already hinted at a slam by the previous four club bid.
4—South heeds his partner's strong bidding. Having much more than a minimum hand himself, he shows his shaded spade suit, knowing his partner will not raise him without good support. He cannot support hearts and does not wish to bid diamonds a third time, and in addition, he wishes to suggest the spade suit is controlled.
5—North's natural bid. Four trumps to the king should take care of even a very weak spade suit.
6—South shows faith in his partner's bidding soundness by contracting for the slam in spades. He knows that since he himself has not shown spades until the third round, his partner has made allowances for a very weak suit before raising it to five. North must have as good as four to the king. South cannot give his partner a guess by bidding six diamonds, as North might then suspect that South was merely showing an ace instead of an almost biddable four-card suit.

The Play.

There is nothing to the play of the hand. The trumps broke three and two and a spade trick was all opponents could get when West opened the singleton heart, rather than the king of clubs. Six hearts, six diamonds or six no-trump are not makable.

Comment.

When eight trumps are held in the combined hands, even though the intermediate honors are missing, the hand should be played in that suit if the partners can possibly get together on it.

How should the North-South hands be bid to arrive at a satisfactory result. The answer will be shown here tomorrow.

Double Irish Chain Scores More Than Redoubled Hand

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

"Oh goody, I am so glad you have given us one of the Irish chain patterns."

"I have been planning to do that for some time, because after all, there are few patterns that stand the test of time like this old one. It comes in one of three variations. You may have the single, the double, the treble or triple Irish chain."

In the first variety there are nine square patches in the block. In the double there are 25 squares and in the triple there are 49 squares. In each case the finished block represents the mathematical square of the number of blocks in any one row of that block.

The pieced squares are set together with squares of white which have additional small squares appliqued in the corner, or—as given in today's pattern, attached to rectangles which are in turn pieced to the completed pieced square and white block square.

In the picture given in the direction leaflet for this pattern note that the outer lines of the leaflet pattern are needed to give the size of the white block.

When I spoke of the small squares being appliqued or pieced onto the plain white squares I was referring to the pieces which carry the chain idea across the quilt. These chains cross every so often and give, in effect, the larger pieced squares. These quilts are frequently made up in white and one color. Say red or green or dark blue.

In the triple chain the large square may be white. The pieced block may have a square of one color for the very center. This color may be repeated in the two squares shown in the direction leaflet as "a" and "b." Then the quilt top is said to be the "jewel" pattern. That is, the plain color used in these three places throughout the quilt sets the color or kind of jewel. Red for ruby, green for emerald and so forth.

This quilt depends on careful cutting and piecing for its good effect. Be sure to allow one-quarter inch on all sides for seams when cutting the pieces.

The actual pattern for "Double Irish Chain" quilt design may be obtained by sending three cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Nancy Page in care of The Atlanta Constitution. Back patterns may be secured by sending an additional three cents for each pattern requested.

Fire in Casket Fails To Delay Interment

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 15.—(UP)—Pallbearers were carrying the body of Michael Budnik into Queen of the Peace church today when a scream from a startled onlooker halted the procession. Smoke was pouring from the casket.

The lid was hurriedly raised and water poured over the corpse. After a short delay the services were resumed. As the procession moved down the aisle, wisps of smoke again curled upwards. The casket was lowered again, the lid raised and once more water was poured over the dead man. The procession was then continued to the cemetery and Budnik was buried without further interruptions.

It was believed a spark from a cigaret of a person who had viewed the corpse just before the casket was closed ignited the shroud.

YOUTH CONFESSES KILLING, BURNING MOTHER, FATHER

WOODWARD, Okla., April 15.—(AP)—Russell Boley, 18, was said today by G. C. Davis, of the State Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation, to have confessed he shot and killed his mother and father, whose bodies were found in their burning farm home near here February 5.

Davis said Boley, former student at the Northwestern Oklahoma Teachers' College, had signed a confession admitting he shot this parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Boley, both 43, poured gasoline on their bodies, and then set fire to their home.

"I don't know why I did I—I feel better now," Davis quoted the youth as saying.

Although it was not mentioned in the purported confession, Davis said he and Ben Swagger, deputy sheriff, had learned young Boley had been in love with a girl and that they had wanted to get married, but the youth's parents objected.

Boley, who had been living at the place since the death of his parents, was taken into custody Saturday night.

MISSING DETROITER LOCATED IN FOREST

CLARE, Mich., April 15.—(AP)—John Gillespie, former millionaire Detroit politician, found today in a backwoods hunting lodge after an 11-day search, said he would shun "civilization" until a dispute with Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald is settled.

The quarrel with the governor grew out of the executive's assertion that Gillespie was attempting to exert undue influence upon employes of the state liquor control commission.

"I ordered Gillespie thrown out of the Detroit office of the commission," Governor Fitzgerald said today upon being informed that Gillespie had demanded he either prove or retract his charge; "I did the right thing. I stand by it."

Unshaven and disheveled, Gillespie was discovered by a searching party headed by his 24-year-old son, John P.

Kelley To Oppose Blethen in Crackers' Opener Here Today

I do hope that one and all had their spinach for dinner last night and face the day well supplied with iron.

Because today is the day that 18,000 of us are going to surge into Ponce de Leon park and watch our noble lads take those Knoxvilles apart.

It will be a bit cruel, which is why I hope that one and all had spinach last night. It will be cruel but then it is just too bad. They are scheduled here and while it is considered unethical to take candy away from the baby and then boot the infant in the heel of his pants, that is exactly what we must do.

Climax Blethen, they say, is to hurl for the Knoxvilles. That is too bad. Climax is one of my favorite people. I like him. But today he is on the other side and all our noble lads can do is to let themselves go and murder Climax, methodically and thoroughly.

So great is this massacre likely to be that I must urge ambulances be placed at the exist into which the limp frames of the Knoxvilles may be placed when they fall from the fray.

For years now we have greeted the visitor within the gates with words of praise and of good wishes. And we have gallantly turned the other cheek and taken it with a smile.

But this year it is different. I am out for blood. My idea of a perfect game today would be for the Crackers to score nine runs in the first inning and increase the lead substantially each succeeding inning.

Pay no attention to the weatherman. He is a splendid gentleman, fond of his family and a good man. But he is wrong. It will not be cold this afternoon. It will be a bit brisk this morning but by afternoon it will be balmy and warm. Nothing can stop us. We are going to murder those Knoxvilles this afternoon. There must be no mercy shown. We must forget this turning-the-other-cheek attitude. Give them the steel. And give no quarter.

(If I have to eat these words it will be done with cream and sugar at 12:59 a. m. at the home plate at Ponce de Leon park.)

Meanwhile, guerre a mort.

THE ANNUAL GUESSING GAME.

With collar loosed and the soon-to-be-balmy breezes whistling outside the window, it is an easy matter to gaze into the crystal-like dome of the office boy outside the door and come up with the answers to the 1935 Southern association baseball race.

In the first place I do not think there is a team in the league which has the power that Nashville had last season before William Terry took away Phil Weintraub and Hank Leiber.

And I do not think there is a team in the league with the pitching staff which New Orleans had at the close of the 1934 season. Unless it be the Atlanta staff. It is the only one which is potentially as strong.

The Atlanta club of 1935 has quite a lot of power. As it stands today there isn't another team as powerful. Nashville is considerably weaker than last year.

The Cracker infield looks good and will look better as soon as Eddie Moore gets into shape, the cracked rib having delayed him. He seems, however, to have picked up a real find in Johnny Hill, from Douglasville, who has played good baseball during the spring training.

The outfield looks good enough and should contain three .300 hitters. I doubt if any of them go up toward the .370 mark which two of the Nashville outfielders had last season. But at least two of them should hit around .340, the other slightly less.

THE LINE OF STRENGTH.

It is an old baseball theory that a ball club is built on the "line of strength" from catcher to center field, inclusive.

We find the Crackers in possession of Joe Palmisano as first-string catcher. He is a splendid defensive catcher, fielding bunts well, handling his chores on plays at the plate with exceptional skill and throwing to second on steals with more than passing accuracy. He hits well, especially during the early months. He was one of two Crackers to finish with an average of better than .300 for the 1934 season.

At shortstop there is the veteran Buster Chatham, still fast and possessed of a great throwing arm. He hits and fields well. Paired with him in the second-base job is a rookie, Nig Lipscomb. It is an important spot. Not for nothing is second base known as the keystone bag.

But Lipscomb has played well all spring. He fields with speed. His hitting is yet to be tested, but the boy shows lots of promise.

In center field is Prince Henry Oano, one of the greatest fielders in the minors and a major league prospect; possessed of unusual speed and one of the best throwing arms in baseball. He always has been a .300 hitter, last year being his first failure in years. He is expected to have a great year.

The Crackers seem to stack up well in the "line-of-strength" theory from catcher, through second base and on out to and including center field.

In other departments the Crackers look good. There is nothing super about the situation, but at present the team does look to be well-balanced, possessed of better than average power, good pitching and a smart defense.

Nashville, Chattanooga and New Orleans are the three next clubs which look like first-division contenders. Each has a major league tie-up, the Giants, Senators and Indians being the respective supply sources.

New Orleans is selected on "futures" since the Pelicans not yet have received their "help."

LET'S BE THERE TODAY.

You will, of course, be present today. Seventy-five cents will buy several loaves of bread, but man cannot live by bread alone, and if the populace is not there today then the ball players will have no bread. So it is one of those cycles.

Going to a ball game is good medicine. The lungs will be shocked by fresh air. The stomach may be punished with delightful peanuts, hot dogs, hamburgers and drinks. The throat may be reduced to a raw state, thus causing druggists to sell gallons of throat tonics, lozenges and so forth. Come to think of it, maybe the opening of the baseball season means the beginning of prosperity.

So do not disappoint this corner by failing to be present. We want 18,000 people out there today. There are seats for 17,000. The idea is to get there early and see the really beautiful and charming Miss Louisa Robert throw the first ball at which Governor Eugene Talmadge, former University of Georgia ball player, will take a swing.

ROSS RESIGNS AS LIGHTWEIGHT BOXING RULER

Champion, Too Big for Class, Vacates His Title.

By Edward J. Neil.

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP)—Barney Ross, the little fellow who has ruled the lightweights for the past two years, decided he was too big for them today and so he turned in his resignation as champion of the 135-pounders to the New York State Athletic Commission.

This sudden move, first of its kind in lightweight title history that goes all the way back to 1868, when Abe Hicken beat Pete McGuire in Perrysville, Mo., brought several swift developments.

First it relieved the dapper little Chicago walloper of the necessity of fighting Lou Ambers, a tough, rubber ball sort of warrior, who has been pestering him for a chance at the lightweight crown for months, and who is designated as the No. 1 title challenger here.

BIG MONEY BATTLE.

It paved the way for another really "big money" battle between Ross and Jimmy McLarnin, the welterweight king, whom Barney outpointed last May to become a double champion, and then bowed to him in a return engagement in September. Mike Jacobs, promoter of the newly formed Twentieth Century Sporting Club, has their rubber duel all arranged and will ask the boxing commission tomorrow for permission to stage it May 28 in the Polo Grounds.

This left the way open for Ross, one of the brighter of the leather slingers, to discover after he has fought McLarnin again that by superhuman methods he can get down to the class limit of 135 pounds.

Finally it brought forth a thundering herd of aspiring lightweights. Pending serious consideration of the situation at tomorrow's meeting of the commission, when outdoor dates will be awarded, Brigadier General John J. Phelan, chairman of the commission, said a match between Ambers and Tony Canzoneri, former titleholder, probably would get title recognition here.

In addition, such lightweights as Davey Day, Chicago, stablemate of Ross; the Italian veteran, Cleto Locatelli; Franklie Klick, of San Francisco, who has fought Ross twive, once to a draw, and Leonard Del Genio, belting New York youngster, all prepared to move in on the commission bright and early tomorrow with their claims.

JOHNSON BUSY.

As soon as he heard the news, Jimmy Johnson, matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, got the managers of Ambers and Canzoneri together and came so close to an immediate agreement that he promised to have their signed contracts before the commission tomorrow.

Jacobs said if the commission wants to let everyone get into the fray in an elimination tournament, he'll stage it and turn all the profits over to the

INTEREST HIGH AS SOUTHERN SEASON OPENS

Great Race Looms; Martin To Attend Opener Today.

By Kenneth Gregory.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 15.—(AP)—Baseball's zero hour—that long-awaited signal for the opening of another season in the Southern Association—approached today amid plans for gala celebrations and belated preparations for the annual show.

Tomorrow afternoon, in the cities of Birmingham, Atlanta, Little Rock and Chattanooga, the fanflock will gather to inaugurate the 1935 pennant race, a 154-game struggle through summer's months that looms as a "wide open" battle and loaded generally with hopes and enthusiasm all along the line.

At no time in recent years has interest existed such as prevails on the eve of the pending campaign, with confident predictions heard on every camp that "this is going to be a great year" equally interesting from the standpoint of competition to the spectators and the pleasing outlook for the clubs in the matter of attendance.

MARTIN HERE FOR GAME.

President John D. Martin, of Memphis, has sounded a keynote of optimism, with the remark:

"I'm genuinely optimistic for 1935. I sincerely believe that the public's interest in the game is greater than I have observed in many years." And, the Memphis attorney has held the presidential seat for 16 years.

For the first time since the league was organized nearly two decades ago, the clubs will enter the fight with hopes of a first division berth, rather than pursuit of the top post, for this season's play is under the Shaughnessy system and at the end of the campaign the four teams out in front engage in a playoff for the pennant.

As the clubs awaited only the lifting of the barrier, Atlanta was down as the favorite, with New Orleans, winner of the last two pennants, Nashville, Memphis and Chattanooga looming as strong contenders. The other teams—Knoxville, Little Rock and Birmingham—while not considered as well fortified as the "big five," have improved considerably since last summer and may prove "dark horses" in the race.

PELS FACE BARONS.

Besides the opening assault between Knoxville and Atlanta in the Georgia city, the getaway schedule calls for New Orleans at Birmingham, Nashville at Chattanooga and Memphis at Little Rock.

Advance sales of tickets were reported as the heaviest in years and lively competition appeared in store for the two attendance trophies offered by President Martin for the Class A. and Class B cities for the largest opening day crowds.

Atlanta, which has won the Class A trophy the last three years, is going after the fourth by staging a parade and providing pre-game festivities hoped to attract more than 15,000.

She'll Try To Strike Out the Governor Today

Miss Louisa Robert, president of the Atlanta Debutante Club, member of the 1932 Olympic swimming team and Atlanta's most popular young lady, will help out the old, old, ritual of opening the baseball season today by throwing the first ball to the plate. Governor Eugene Talmadge will be the first batter with Richard West, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, as the first catcher. In Washington the president of the United States, Franklin D. Roosevelt, the greatest president we've ever had, will start the Senators on their way. The game with Knoxville begins at 3:30 o'clock.

shafts, will swing the hickory as the first batter and is foresworn not to let Miss Robert strike him out. Richard West, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, a visitor here, will be Miss Robert's catcher.

Parade Scheduled.

Added to all this is the downtown parade, which forms at Trinity avenue and Whitehall at 12 o'clock and proceeds to the ball park, led by three bands, the Tech High, Boys' High and police, the American Legion drum and bugle corps.

Emergency seat sections have been built at Vice President Mann's orders to take care of the overflow. "We expect to be able to seat 17,000 persons comfortably—somthing we have never been able to do before this year," Mann said.

He also pointed out that tickets would be on sale at the ball park offices as early as 8 a. m. today and repeated an admonition to the public to buy early to avoid congestion at the gate. The downtown booths at Marshall & Reynolds, Atlanta Athletic Club, Elks Club and Capital City Club will remain open until noon.

Crackers Are Favorites.

But back to the ball game itself, which after all is the most important item on the program.

The Crackers, with the cool and crafty Kelley, veteran of ten campaigns as a top-flight star in this league, pitching against the ageing Blethen, are admittedly the favorites, but there is always the old axiom that "anything can happen in baseball." The man may bite the dog and the Smokies may win.

The game marks the start of quite an adventure for Eddie Moore, 34-year-old skipper of the Crackers, who is inaugurating his first year as a manager after 14 seasons as an infielder in the majors and faster minors.

Last year, Moore took charge of the club late in the season as successor to Spencer Abbott, lifted it out of the doldrums and led it to a driving finish of nine victories in 10 games, which feat subsequently won for him the 1935 manager's job.

GREAT CHANCE FOR MOORE.

If he can produce a winner for the eager thousands who have supported baseball so loyally through the drab era of the last nine years, the city is his, in so far as the fans are concerned. If he should fail, he will of course, be relegated to the Elba's and the St. Helena's along with the six or seven others who found the managerial path here thorny and hazardous.

But there is no reason why Eddie Moore should fail. He has the experience, most valuable of all, knows the game and possesses the qualities of leadership. And he has the ball club to succeed with, one which boasts decidedly more power and pitching than any Atlanta has had in a decade.

"I won't make the ball club—the club will make me," Eddie said with becoming modesty on the eve of the opening. He hopes to get off to a running start in the first six games, all with Knoxville.

TO START AT THIRD.

Moore, who will be a playing manager, yesterday announced that he had recuperated sufficiently from a painful rib injury which kept him out of most of the exhibitions here, to start today's game at third base. This is good news to those who admire Moore's ball playing as much as they have admired his managing thus far.

This means that young Johnny Hill, who has been playing third, will sit on the bench, but the rookie from Douglasville, who seems to be a natural hitter, will be kept ready for pinch-hitting duty if he is needed.

Several new players will be introduced to the crowd today.

They are young Gerald Lipscomb, 22-year-old second baseman from Charlotte, of the Piedmont league, who cinched his position on the club; "Sheriff" Dave Harris, the slugging right-fielder, and Paul Easterling, the long hitting left fielder from the Texas league.

These men all have made an excel-

Meet the Crackers As They Appear Today

GERALD (NIG) LIPSCOMB, Second Baseman—Youngest and least experienced of the Crackers in the lineup today but a coming ball player, is the husky boy from a North Carolina mill town. Twenty-two years old and possessed of strength, a fine arm and ability to hit, he has fitted into the spot left vacant by the departure of Byrne James, a last-year favorite at the position. Johnny Dobbs signed him for Charlotte in 1933 and last year, his first full season, finished with a stick average of .309. He would have hit more than that but for an injury which befell him when he was hitting .327 with a week to go. Has made hit with fans and Manager Moore. Looks like best of club rookies right now and has hit it off with Chatham on the double plays in fine fashion.

EDDIE MOORE, Manager and Third Baseman—No stranger to the Atlanta fans First a Cracker in 1922 when he came here from St. Petersburg in Florida. Stuck in league. Played shortstop here that season and sold in 1923 to Pittsburgh, where he participated in 1925 world series. Later member of Boston Braves, Giants, Brooklyn Dodgers and Cleveland. Crackers purchased him from latter club last year. Took over managership of club last season on September 8, relieving Spencer Abbott and leading it to eight straight victories.

HARRY TAYLOR, First Base—Now there is a ball player for you. As nifty a fielder as you want to see and a dangerous hitter. The Crackers got him in the winter of 1934 from Albany of the International league for $8,000 and two ball players, Sington and Susko. Fritz Knothe, the third baseman, who was to be part of the bargain with Taylor, did not report, but Harry did and played a bang-up first base for the club most of last season. He hit above .300 until the last month of the season and at one time his batting average was .340. Still a young fellow of 27 and with a real future, Harry has looked better than ever this spring. He was up with the Cubs for a big league trial three years ago, that club paying Seattle a fancy price for him. He is one of those players on the club with major league ambitions. When it comes to fielding Harry is a big leaguer right now, for few men can beat him at coming up with those hard-hit grounders or the low throws.

DAVE HARRIS, Rightfielder—Meet the "sheriff," from Greensboro, No'th Ca'lina, suh. And what a big bat he wields! Former Boston Brave, Chicago White Sox and Washington Senator, there are few better hitters in baseball today than the Sheriff. It will be recalled how he hit Chattanooga into the 1932 pennant and then returned to Washington to help Joe Cronin's Senators win the 1933 American league pennant. Still in his early thirties, the Sheriff has plenty of good ball playing left in him, as evinced in the spring exhibitions. Visiting major league players here, including Jimmy Foxx, of the A's, declared that Harris is as good a hitter as most of the outfielders up there now and there are at least four clubs in the American league who could use him. The "Sheriff" clinched the clean-up position down in Florida and along with Oana, is considered the most dependable of the Crackers in the clutch. The fans will like the "Sheriff."

HENRY (THE PRINCE) OANA, Centerfielder—A major league outfielder in the making if there ever was one, the fans say. They consider the tall, handsome larruper from Hawaii the best all-around outfielder in the league right now. When it comes to hawking the ball, roaming to his left and right, forward and back, he has few equals. And as for his throwing arm, Manager Eddie Moore calls it the best possessed by any outfielder in baseball. The fans have seen plenty of proof of this, namely when the "Prince" was shooting them out at third and home last season. Ty Cobb, the original Georgia Peach, "discovered" him playing ball in Japan and recommended him to San Francisco along about 1929. He was among the Coast league's star hitters for two seasons, at San Francisco in 1931, where he batted .345, and batted in 161 runs with 23 home runs thrown in, and in 1933 at Portland, where he hit .339 and socked 31 home runs. The only Hawaiian in baseball, he possesses plenty of boxoffice color and would be a big gate attraction anywhere. He started slowly with the Crackers last summer, but finished with a .296 average, led the league in home runs with 17, and ranked second in runs driven in with 102. A mighty valuable man, the Prince, and one of the real prospects on the club. He's been looking great this spring.

PAUL EASTERLING, Leftfield—They say of this stocky gentleman that he won't always hit .300, but he'll come near leading any club in runs batted in—a very important item—that he will steal his share of bases and surprise you with his fielding and throwing. Thus far, Paul hasn't been able to prove this, but there are no worries about him. Manager Moore knows he will hit and point out that he usually waits until the season starts to begin showing it. At any rate, Paul, a native of Reidsville, Ga., has always been a dangerous long-distance hitter and is an ideal man for the spot he occupies in the lineup. He had a trial with Detroit in 1925, and for six weeks set a terrific pace, leading the league in homers for awhile. At that time, Easterling couldn't hit a curve ball very well and had to come back to the minors to learn. But he can hit a curve now. Only 30 years old, he should be good for a long time yet and the Cracker fans welcome this Georgia boy back to Georgia. He played on a pennant-winner at Beaumont, in the Texas league, in 1932, along with Schoolboy Rowe, Hank Greenburg, Ival (Pete) Fox and other stars now with Detroit. The Tigers owned him until last year, when they sold him to Tulsa, where he hit 29 home runs. The Crackers acquired him in a winter deal. He is one of the club's "big three" power trio.

JOE PALMISANO, Catcher—Need much more be said? The fans all know the ability of the peppery little Italian from West Point, Ga. They knew him when he was the star catcher for Georgia Tech back in the twenties and they followed his career with Montgomery, Ala., in the Southeastern in 1928, Memphis in the Southern in 1929, Portland in the Coast league in 1930 and With Connie Mack's Athletics, where he was third-string catcher in 1931 on Mack's last pennant winner. Joe got a tough break there. All he had to do was to beat out Mickey Cochrane, Cy Perkins and Joe Heving on the catchers' staff and so he had to be content with third-string. But he is a great little catcher for the Crackers, as proven last year when he led the club in hitting with .307 and gave the gamest exhibition of catching in the league for four weeks with a busted hand.

CHARLES (BUSTER) CHATHAM, Shortstop.—"Hustling Buster" they call him. Oldest on the club ranks in point of service and starting his third season as captain of the Crackers. A great favorite with the fans, who like his hustling, his spirited playing and general "heads-up" conduct on the playing field. There are better hitting shortstops than Buster in the minors, but few better all-around shortstops and certainly no better on the club. Chatham first became a Cracker in 1932 when Bobby Jones bought him from the Boston Braves, and has been one ever since.

HARRY LEROY KELLEY, Pitcher—This brings up to the bottom of the lineup, but by no means to the least important figure in today's game. For 10 years Harry was the scourge of the Crackers until Spencer Abbott bought him from Memphis late last summer to end that particular "jinx." He finished up with the Crackers and led the Southern league's pitchers with 23 wins and 11 lost, most of his games being with Memphis, and had the admirable earned run average of 3.39. There is no better pitcher in the minor leagues, no smarter and more consistent pitcher anywhere than Kelley. It is a mystery to many why he didn't stick in the majors in two trials with Washington and the Giants. But the fact that the big leagues are still interested were shown last fall when Cincinnati had its Toronto club draft him with the obvious purpose of using him itself. Atlanta fought the draft, took the case before Judge Landis and the judge, with typical shrewdness, uncovered enough shady evidence and conniving on Cincinnati's part to send him back to Atlanta. It was a fortunate day for Atlanta when this happened. Kelley, who isn't old by any means, despite his long experience, figures to win 25 games for Atlanta this year and hasn't given up his ambition to have one more fling in the majors. He is the ace of the Cracker staff, which is a very good staff. This explains why he is pitching today. He was the "Boy Wonder" of the Southern for years, having been a star at Memphis in 1924 when he was only 17 years old. FINIS.

GRANT PASSES PINEHURST PLAY

PINEHURST, N. C., April 15.—(AP)—Bryan Grant, little Atlanta court marvel, today decided to pass up the North and South tournament this year and wired a first-round default to the tournament committee.

The Atlantan, who was seeded second, advised that he was unable to take the time for the tournament, his work necessitating his remaining in Atlanta.

As a result of Grant's withdrawal, Barney Welsh, of Washington, the national public parks champion, was added to the seeded list at No. 4. Wilmer Allison, Austin, Texas, is top-seeded. J. Gilbert Hall, Orange, N. J., took over the second seeded post and Hal Surface, Kansas City, was advanced from No. 4. to No. 3.

Allison and Welsh will arrive tomorrow. The Texan was given a first round bye while Welsh received a default for the opening round from George Taylor, University of North Carolina.

Hall and Surface launched tournament play for the seeded entries by polishing off two University of No. h C.rolina students. The New Jersey veteran defeated William Coxette, 6-0, 6-0, and Surface trounced Sidney Weinstein, 6-0, 6-4.

Two other college youngsters furnished mild upsets. Nick Ashby, of Duke, defeated F. C. (Pop) Baggs, former national veterans champion from Forest Hills, L. I., 6-1, 6-2, and John Foreman, of North Carolina, eliminated Herbert Vail, of Pinehurst, who has had considerable success in tournaments here, 6-4, 6-3.

Summaries of the first round:

President Martin Unable To Appear

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 15.—(AP)—John D. Martin, president of the Southern Association of Baseball Clubs, issued the following statement tonight:

"It is a matter of exceeding regret to me that I will be unable to leave Memphis and attend the opening game in Atlanta tomorrow."

Morrison Addresses Vandy Alumni Here

Ray Morrison, head coach of the Commodore football squad, will address the annual dinner meeting of the Vanderbilt Alumni Association of Atlanta at 6:30 o'clock Monday, April 22, at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

The occasion will be Mr. Morrison's first visit to Atlanta since his election as head of the coaching staff at Vanderbilt and all alumni in Atlanta are urged to make reservations through William Beauchamp, at Walnut 3850. Mrs. G. A. Fisher, president of the local alumni group, will preside.

Miss Robert Believes She'll 'Fan' Governor

Charming President of Debutante Club Borrows Baseball To Practice for Game Today.

By Ralph McGill.

She was practicing with an apple until yesterday afternoon when she received a real baseball with which to practice in the last hours before the game today.

The baseball club gave Miss Louisa Robert the baseball. The club does not know it yet. They lent the ball for a picture and Miss Robert expressed a desire for the baseball and so, quite naturally, the ball club gave it to her. I was merely the agent.

She is to pitch the first ball today as the Atlanta Baseball Club, following a parade and other celebrations, begins the 1935 baseball season with the Knoxville team as opponents.

Governor Eugene Talmadge is to be the first batter and Miss Robert said yesterday, "Well, I'll bet he doesn't get a hit tomorrow."

OUTSTANDING.

Miss Robert is one of Atlanta's finest young girls and probably its most popular one. She is president of the Debutante Club this year and all her honors are deserved. Her natural charm and beauty have made her an outstanding personality.

She is one of the finest swimmers in this country, having won the junior national backstroke championship and a place on the last Olympic swimming team. She is an excellent bowler and is active in other sports.

She is the first girl selected to pitch the first ball who has taken the job seriously. "I don't know where the ball is going but everyone has told me not to throw it like a sissy and so I am gonig to practice," she said.

RITUAL.

The ceremony of throwing the first ball on opening day and the seventh inning stretch are two very American customs. It is fitting that the game should be started with a ritual because, after all, it is the real American game.

In Washington the president of the United States will toss the first ball to start the team from the nation's capital on its way.

In other cities mayors and governors will pitch the first ball. Atlanta has chosen well in selecting Miss Robert to do the honors. Here Mayor James L. Key will toss the baseball from his box in the stand. It will be delivered to Miss Robert. The governor of the state, who used to play baseball at the University of Georgia, will take his place at the plate. Richard West, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will don the windpad and mask and become the catcher.

TO FAN GOVERNOR.

Miss Robert will strike out the governor and then will come the real game.

It is a great occasion, this opening of the baseball season. The same old ritual that never grows old; the bands, the crowd, the peanuts, hot dogs, the yells and the game on the field—all of it go to make up a great Ameri-

THE LONG HIKE.

The long hike from April to October is on again. And this double march for a pair of pennants is a record hike in sport.

Two boxers or fighters decide a heavyweight championship. A thousand golfers try to qualify for the open, but only some 160 make the grade for three days of play. There are more big-time teams in football, but the gridiron fandango lasts only a trifle over two months, with an average of eight games for each team.

In baseball, close to 400 picked men, gathered in from coast to coast, battle every day for six months to bring about the final answer. They actually start in late February and two are still left to fight it out in October.

Outside of 20 or 25 exhibition games each team faces 154 contests, with all intermissions covered up by doubleheaders.

There is no other sporting contest that even approaches this for the number of men engaged over such an extended period.

And don't overlook the fact that a daily competitive grind of six months takes its toll. This goes for any game you care to tackle. The strain and drain of championship competition is

And whether Atlanta wins the championship or not, the team will have had a championship start when Miss Louisa Robert throws the first ball to the plate.

Some 18,000 people are expected to be there today at 3:30 when the two teams meet. There is an added contest—the four major cities in the league, Atlanta, New Orleans, Birmingham and Memphis, contending for the attendance cup, a cup which Atlanta has a habit of winning.

COLD WEATHER FAILS TO CURB FANS' INTEREST

Snow Slated To Greet Clubs as Curtain Is Raised.

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP)—Despite the threat of being given a cold, wintry shoulder by Old Man Weather, major league baseball will take-off tomorrow in mass formation on a 154-game flight calculated to develop extraordinary competitive excitement and designed to recapture old-time prosperity.

The warm rays of a flirtatious spring sun today lifted the hopes of the faithful for a balmy setting for the opening ceremonies, at least in the east, but this proved quickly to be just another false start. The forecast is for a much colder turn of weather overnight along the eastern seaboard, with a parting salute from winter in the middle west

A snow storm forced the champion Detroit Tigers to cancel their final workout. Cincinnati reported snow flurries but a sellout, nevertheless, for the opening game at Crosley field between the Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates. Chicago's forecast alone was of the welcome "fair and warmer" variety for the opening which will pit the mighty Dizzy Dean of the World Champion Cardinals against the great Lon Warneke of the Cubs.

OVERCOAT WEATHER.

Skies promise to be clear but overcoats will be necessary in the east for those who expect to turn out for the big day, either to join President Roosevelt in the send-off at Washington or to witness the debut of Babe Ruth as a National leaguer in Boston against the opposition furnished by the celebrated Carl Hubbell and the New York Giants.

As part of the super-charged send-off, high officials of the two major leagues, headed by President Ford C. Frick and Will Harridge, along with a group of ranking club managers, combined tonight in a nation-wide broadcast (NBC). They joined not only in predicting close pennant races —an old baseball custom—but in forecasting bigger and better things for the game and its followers.

Meanwhile latest reports from the scenes of the impending championship action indicated an aggregate turnout of at least 200,000 for the eight opening games listed for tomorrow afternoon. National league estimates were for a total of 125,000 at the contests scheduled in Boston, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Chicago. The American league's openers in New York, Detroit, St. Louis and Washington figured to attract less than 100,000.

42,000 AT CHICAGO.

Chicago topped the list with 42,000 predicted for Wrigley field, where the Cubs and Cardinals will renew their old rivalry. The Braves hoped to draw at least 35,000 for their opener with the Giants, despite the frigid weather. The Yankees expected another 35,000 to see the first "Ruthless" New York club in 15 years, with the Boston Red Sox furnishing the opposition. Predictions were for 30,000 to see the Tigers start the defense of the American league title against the White Sox, a similar turnout for the Cincinnati opener and a crowd of 25,000, including the nation's chief executive, at Washington.

No matter how chilly it may be for opening day, the roar of the crowds seems certain to warm the hearts of the club owners, who look forward hopefully to reaping the benefits of the winter's trading harvest, satisfying the popular appetite for spectacular competition and experimenting with night baseball in the National league.

From now on, however, the standing of the clubs and the game's crop of vital statistics will replace the dope-sheets and guesswork of the

Bill Schroder Here; Sees Better Irish Team

Atlanta Boy Likely To Win End Berth If Bad Luck Doesn't Hold.

By Ralph McGill.

Notre Dame is on the way back to the top under Elmer Layden, one of the "Four Horsemen" who made history a few years ago.

And Bill Schroder, of Atlanta, will be back there next fall doing his bit to help out.

Schroder arrived in Atlanta yesterday, coming home to visit his parents for the Easter holidays. He looks to be in great shape after a year of unusually hard luck.

His bad luck bowled him over year before last in the form of illness and bad knee. And last year just before one of the big games Schroder was moved over to the varsity.

BAD CUT.

There was a final scrimmage and in making a tackle the heel of the runner struck Schroder's face and cut a long gash beneath his eye which endangered the sight of one eye. It was impossible for him to continue and he was in the hospital during the big game.

His bad luck held all year and he played but little football. He is considered one of the better end prospects at South Bend and next year is expected to play regularly.

"We lose some good man but we have some good material returning," he said. "I don't know what my chances are but I am crazy to go back and try. There will be an opening at one end and I'd like to try and fill it but the competition, of course, is very keen.

LAYDEN FINE.

"The boys think Elmer Layden is the finest ever. He has a great spirit and looks after each man personally. He is the nearest thing to a replacement for Rockne we could have had and Notre Dame has a magnificent spirit under him."

Schroder and all Notre Dame were saddened by the loss of the captain-elect, Joe Sullivan, who died in New York a few weeks ago.

By a strange twist in fate Sullivan became ill the night of the football dinner. It was at the football dinner years ago that George Gipp became ill from a throat infection and pneumonia and succumbed. Sullivan succumbed to pneumonia. He was a close friend of Schroder's.

Schroder has many friends in Atlanta who will welcome his return here during the holidays. His career has been followed here with a great deal of interest.

DOWN The ALLEYS

Nine more teams entered the City Duckpin tournament Monday that will be bowled at Blick's Bowling Center the week beginnig Monday, April 22, in which players may compete in one of the many classes according to their own averages and roll with a team, singles and doubles.

Western Presbyterian Lowlanders, Sigma Chi, Belle Isle Garage, Walter A. Guest, Model Laundry, Dixie Specialty Company, National Oil Company, Agoga Class, the Journal News were the teams to file entries last night. A record entry list is forecast in this big meet.

Barnett, Fowler, Crouch, Banks, Klier and Davis made up the crack Peachtree Christian team that won the third-round championship in the Bible Class and Sunday School Duckpin league last night. Westminster Presbyterian Lowlanders won the first and second rounds.

The Amateur Duckpin league will bring its schedule to a close with some fiery scoring this evening as the leaders vie for the second-half title and the right to bowl against the General Electric Company, first-half winners, for the league championship.

$1,000 Ronch Killers play the United Motors Service; Railway Mail and General Electric Company will be paired; Curtiss Printing Company and S. A. L. Railway are matched; Power Club and Aristocrat Dairies are opponents.

Motion Picture Duckpin league bowlers are scheduled as follows: M.-G.-M. vs. R.-K.-O.; Theatrical Printing Company vs. Fox Film; Columbia Pictures vs. Theatrical Service Company; National Screen Service vs. Paramount.

In the Georgia Tenpin league, Hartford Fire Insurance and Davey Plumbing & Heating are matched; Anderson's Flower Shop and Armour & Co.; Porky's Grill and Gaylord Container Company; Aces and Knights of Columbus will be scheduled.

'Steamer' Arrives; Likes New Partner

Harry (Steamboat) Johnson, the Southern league's most colorful and popular umpire, arrived in the city last night to work today's ball game between Atlanta and Knoxville.

The Steamer, as brisk as ever and in fine physical trim after umpiring 31 spring games, most of them between Cleveland and the Giants on their barnstorming tour, expressed himself as being well pleased with his new partner, Claude Bond, the Atlanta boy President John D. Martin assigned to him.

"Claude's a fine boy and is going to make a real umpire," Johnson stated.

The Steamer left New York night before last after umpiring the 10-inning final game between the Indians and Giants which ended in a 1-1 tie, at the Polo Grounds. It was to be the "rubber" game, each team having won seven.

He says to keep an eye on both clubs this year for both are real contenders. He added that both Roy Hughes, the ex-Pelican who has replaced Knickerbocker, still out from an appendicitis operation, at shortstop and "Boze" Berger, the second baseman, were playing regularly and probably would make the Cleveland squad.

SMITHIES MEET MARIST TODAY IN PREP FEATURE

Game Begins at 3 O'Clock On Ivy Street Campus; Typists Play Purples.

By Roy White.

Two outstanding games in the fifth round of the city prep baseball league will be played at 3 o'clock this afternoon when Tech High plays at Marist and Commercial plays at Boys' High.

Boys' High and Tech High are undefeated, and tied for the league leadership. Marist has won one and lost two and is in second place with a fine chance to upset some of the leaders before the week is out.

Jim Bagby Jr., who has pitched the Purples to three victories, will hurl this afternoon. Doug Ivy will start for Commercial High. The game will be played on the Henry Grady field, and stands out as a real feature of the first half of the pennant race. First place in the standings will be the reward for victory.

In the other game, Cook, who struck out 15 Monroe batters last Tuesday, will hurl for Marist, with Pelham hurling for Tech High. The game will be played on the Ivy street diamond and promises to be the best pitchers' battle of the season thus far.

In other games, Monroe and Riverside will put on another of their battles at Gainesville, with Columbus playing the G. M. A. Cadets at College Park.

Smithie Golfers Meet Athens Today.

Tech High's undefeated golf team will journey to Athens today for a match on the Athens Country Club course with Athens High. The Smithies won an 18-to-0 victory over Athens last week on the Ansley Park course.

Those players making the trip are Kid Brown, Ralph Barnes, Bill Hutchinson and Jack Cook.

Tech High will enter two teams in the state competition early in May. One of the teams will play at Athens and another will be entered in the G. I. A. A. tournament at Augusta.

Boys' High Swims Tech High Today.

Boys' High and Tech High will continue their athletic wars at 4 o'clock this afternoon in a dual swiming meet in the Y. M. C. A. pool.

It is the first of a series of three athletic events between the rivals this week with a track meet scheduled for Thursday at Grant field and a baseball game on the Henry Grady filed Friday afternoon.

Both teams have been entered in the annual Southeastern prep swimming meet Friday and Saturday in the Y. M. C. A. pool, when the Boys' High will defend its 1934 title.

BOUSSUS WINS.

ROME, April 15.—(UP)—Christian Boussus, top-ranking French player, defeated the American, Henry Culley, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4, today in the international tennis championships.

Eddie Is Optimistic On Opening Day Eve

Cracker Skipper Plans Active Season As Player; Moves Lipscomb To Lead-off Post.

By Jimmy Jones.

"It'll be mighty nice to win the silver, but our job is to win that ball game."

Eddie Moore, who starts his first season as manager of the Crackers today, spoke thusly when asked for a final just-before-the-battle statement last night.

"Yessir, I hope we win that attendance cup again, but if we don't win the ball game out there on the field, it won't mean a thing," added the business-like young man who caught the falling baton from Spencer Abbott's gnarled hands early last September and steered the demoralized ball club into a tie for fourth place—the best finish an Atlanta team has made since 1925, exclusive of a similar windup in 1930, Johnny Dobbs' first year.

In recent years Atlanta has carried off a lot of silver—attendance trophies—but nothing resembling a pennant as spoils of the league campaigning. New Orleans, Memphis, Birmingham and Chattanooga, inferior clubs at the gate, have been winning those.

Eddie Moore isn't promising a pennant this year, but he does promise something better than a tie for fourth place.

ONE OF FOUR.

"I'll promise that we'll be one of the four in that Shaughnessey whatever-you-call-it playoff, and that's all," he added.

Moore's worries as a manager really will start today at 3:30 p. m. when his club goes out to play Knoxville. In fact, they started yesterday when the club's new uniforms failed to arrive. They are due to reach the ball park at 10:30 o'clock today, just in time to allow the players to dress for the downtown parade.

But Eddie Moore is a levelheaded little cuss with a lot of common horse sense, the best kind a baseball manager can have. He will have no complex training rules or intricate signaling system.

THEY'RE "LOOSE."

"They can go up there and feel loose, pick out the ball they like and hit it—just as I would want a manager to let me do," declared this man who has always been known as a "manager's ball player," which means that he is heads-up on the field.

Playing under a great variety of managers, from dignified Bill McKechnie, his first boss at Pittsburgh, on down the line to the exacting Rogers Hornsby when he had the Braves, the fiery John McGraw with the Giants and the benign Wilbert Robinson at Brooklyn, Eddie has learned a lot about the business.

There are a lot of "don'ts" to managing, as well as every other executive job, and Eddie knows most of them. He knows when to be firm and when

By FRANK MacMILLEN.

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP)—The market see-sawed today, but was tilting upward toward the close of trading. Advances, while generally small, well outnumbered declines at the finish.

Failure of the supreme court to render its long-awaited decision in the railroad pension cases, caused some disappointed liquidation in the carrier shares around mid-day, and the first setback in over a fortnight in the price of bar silver prompted some selling in the non-ferrous metal group. Even in these divisions, however, the closing tone was improved over the lowest for the day.

Bonds and commodities failed to lend much encouragement to equities, and their resistance to early pressure was rated in some Wall Street quarters as the more encouraging for this reason. The bond market was a little wobbly as secondary rail issues weakened moderately, but at the finish the tone was about steady for industrials and utilities.

Staples Give Ground.

Leading staples showed some tendency to give ground. Wheat was 1-8 to 5-8 of a cent a bushel lower, while corn was down 1 3-8 cents to up 1-8 cent. Losses in cotton were 10 to 15 cents a bale.

The government bond market accepted calmly the announcement of the treasury over the week-end of its call of the remaining $1,933,000,000 of First Liberty Loan bonds. The action had been generally anticipated. The Liberty issues were a shade easier today, while other direct government loans advanced minor fractions. Guaranteed issues eased slightly.

Stock market turnover picked up moderately to pass the 1,000,000-share mark for the first time in some 10 days, at 1,107,030 shares. A good part of the increased turnover came in early dealings when the market, especially in the specialty group, was finding takers at moderately advancing levels. The Associated Press average for 60 stocks was .1 of a point higher at 38.6, despite a decline in the 15 rail stocks of .5 of a point to 20.8.

Chemicals Higher.

A number of chemicals had advances of 1 to 2 points or so, including Allied Chemical, du Pont, Atlas Power, Monsanto, Westvaco and United States Industrial Alcohol, while specialties advancing roughly as much included Auburn, General Cigar, Ingersoll-Rand, Union Bag and White Motor. Some of the aircraft shares found a following, led by a 4-point lift in Wright Aero to 49 1-4. The latter is traded in 10-share units and volume today was not especially heavy.

Rubber shares attracted some attention at rising prices, especially the preferred issues, as word came from Washington over the week-end that the labor difficulties at Akron appeared to have been ironed out and a strike averted. Steel news was mildly encouraging, with the Steel Institute estimating current operations at a small advance at 44 per cent, compared with 43.8 per cent in the previous week. The magazine Steel took an optimistic view regarding rising production later in this quarter.

A. T. & T. Unaffected.

American Telephone finished even at 107, unaffected by the announcement of earnings of $1.61 a common share in the first three months of this year, compared with $1.77 in the same period of 1934. Higher wage costs were mentioned officially as one of the leading causes of the lower profit.

The market appeared indifferent to the dropping of the official call money rate to the lowest point on record at 1-2 of 1 per cent. Many Wall Street houses declared the lowering of the already small cost of collateral borrowing was not likely to be important so long as trading volume remained restricted. Business and political trends, they reported, were still acting as restraining influences on the market which easy money alone could not be expected to offset.

A few tobacco shares were able to rise more than a point, including Liggett & Myers B at 100 7-8, and R. J. Reynolds B at 47 1-4, but most of the usual market leaders confined their advances to fractions. In this class were United States Steel at 32 3-8, Woolworth at 55 7-8, International Harvester at 38 1-4, Radio at 5, Standard Oil of New Jersey at 40 1-4 and National Biscuit at 25 1-8. Some of the rails lost a point or so, including Union Pacific at 89 1-2 and Santa Fe at 39 1-4, but most declines in the group were fractional, as in Pennsylvania at 20, Southern Railway at 10 1-2 and Baltimore & Ohio at 10 1-2.

VALUES ON CURB TURN IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP)—An irregular tone prevailed on the curb market today, with trading generally maintaining its recent moderately active pace. Some of the utilities showed improvement, while mixed tendencies persisted in metals, oils and specialties.

Advances of fractions to around a point occurred in Commonwealth Edison, American Gas & Electric, Dow Chemical, Bunker Hill & Sullivan, New Jersey Zinc, Pan-American Airways, Gulf Oil and International Petroleum. Greyhound Coropration got up nearly 3 points in a large turnover, while heaviness was shown by Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Fajardo Sugar and Aluminum Company of America. Small declines appeared in Creole Petroleum, Lake Shore, Newmont and Hiram Walker.

By FRED G. WILLIAMS.

NEW ORLEANS, April 15.—(AP)—Cotton declined slightly today.

Price recessions were limited, however, and the close found active positions from 2 to 6 points below Saturday's final prices.

The market held in a 10-point range for the entire session, and while business was comparatively active, there was no determined attempt to move prices in either direction.

With the news background failing to produce any influences, and the internal factors of the trade lacking in both bullish and bearish potentialities, traders were content to let the market idle along throughout today's dealings.

The opening was steady, although declines were shown by most positions. Liverpool reported a small market, with little business being done, and at the first call price changes were nominal.

Dull Movement.

Dull and uncertain movements continued until the close with May ending at 11.59, July at 11.66, October at 11.38 and January at 11.48. Spots lost 3 points with middling at 12.10 on sales of 308 bales.

The textile situation continues to be the main question overhanging the market.

Some members of the trade have interpreted as a gleam of hope the statement by President Roosevelt that the processing tax could not be paid from the relief bill. Informed quarters point to the fact that this might mean the bonuses to farmers could be paid through some other medium, exclusive both of the relief bill appropriation and the processing tax.

Uptrend Checked.

After a week of steady price improvement that carried futures back within striking distance of the 12-cent a pound price level, the market appeared to be meeting more resistance. Offerings of cotton on the uptrend served to check any attempt today to extend last week's advance.

Washington still continues to be the dominating influence in the market and a sideline position is being maintained by most traders.

The exchange announced today that Good Friday will be a holiday on the market, and that it will also be closed on Saturday.

The exchange also stated that beginning April 29, trading will begin an hour earlier, at 8 a. m., C. S. T., so as to conform with the daylight saving time in effect on the New York Cotton Exchange.

Liverpool is due to open on New Orleans tomorrow unchanged.

Port receipts 4,699; week 8,111; season 4,137,703; last season 7,012,904. Exports 14,976; week 15,158; season 3,720,706; last season 6,190,964. Stocks on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston were 80,542; last season 107,887. Spot sales at southern markets totaled 1,979 bales; 6,294 last year.

NEW YORK FUTURES HOLD IN NARROW RANGE

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP)—Cotton moved within a 12-point range today and closed net 2 points lower to 3 higher.

There was some buying at the start on relatively steady Liverpool cables and favorable features in the general business news, but reactionary sentiment was in evidence following recent sharp advances and prices soon eased.

Offerings were absorbed on declines of 10 to 12 points and prices firmed up during the afternoon. Closing quotations were within 2 or 3 points of the best.

The late buying became more active following reports from Washington intimating that legislation for continuation of crops control for 1936 might be necessary before a loan would be announced for this year's production.

Exports today, 14,505, making 3,870,585 so far this season. Port receipts, 3,865. United States port stocks, 2,164,938.

By G. A. PHILLIPS.

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP)—The corporate bond market fell back on utilities and industrials for leadership today when railroad loans reflected further profit-taking and slipped backward. United States governments fluctuated in a narrow range and ended unchanged to a trifle lower.

Quiet accumulation of leading power and light bonds gave this group a uniformly steady appearance with advances of a point or so made by such issues as Abitibi Paper & Power 5s, Laclede Gas 5 1-2s, Montana Power 5s and North American 5 1-2s. International Paper 5s continued a favorite, advancing 3 1-2 points to 70. The Associated Press average of 10 utilities gained .4 of a point at 90.3, a new 1935 high.

Best showing among the industrials was made by some of the medium-priced issues, including Manati Sugar 7 1-2s, up 2 points at 22; Goodrich 6s, up 1 1-8 at 94 3-8; General Steel Castings 5s, up 1 at 72, and Warner-Quinlan, up 1 1-4 at 28 3-4. Others improving included obligations of Container Corporation, Penn Dixie Cement and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

Although the trend in railroad issues was not uniformly downward, recent leaders were subjected to considerable profit-taking and drifted fractionally lower. Among these were Delaware & Hudson 4s at 79 3-4, Great Northern 4 1-2s at 68 1-4, New York Central Consolidated 4s at 78 3-8, and New Haven collateral 6s at 52. Exceptions were Western Maryland 4s, Northern Pacific 5s, and Erie 4s.

The week-end redemption call for the balance of the fourth Liberty Loan bonds brought out only a small amount of this issue and trading elsewhere in the government department was extremely light. Most of the Treasury loans yielded 2-32nds to 4-32nds and indirect obligations were about even. The 4th, 4 1-4 Liberties ended 1-32nd lower at 102.18, while the 3 1-2s were unchanged at 101.4.

The foreign department was especially bright as the result of developments at the political conference in Stresa. Gains of 1 to 2 points were made by obligations of the government of Italy, Austria and Belgium, and private obligations were almost as much higher. German government loans sagged a trifle but South and Central American bonds were steady and Japanese government loans improved slightly.

Transfers aggregated $9,487,000, par value, compared with $11,997,000 last Friday. The Associated Press averages were unchanged to .5 of a point higher.

Rate Reduced.

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP)—The New York Stock Exchange today cut its official call money rate to 1-2 of 1 per cent, a new record low. These funds have held at 1 per cent since December 8, 1933. The previous record low was 3-4 of 1 per cent.

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN.

CHICAGO, April 15.—(AP)—Wheat scored a brisk upturn of prices late today, but reacted on account of heavy sales to realize profits in the final dealings.

The advance of wheat values was stimulated by sensationally bullish crop news. R. O. Cromwell, a leading unofficial crop expert, telegraphing today from Salina, Kan., said: "Of 12,000,000 acres of wheat west of the 100th meridian, 90 per cent has been wiped out completely."

Wheat closed nervous, 1-8 to 5-8 under yesterday's finish, May $1.00 1-4 to $1.00 3-8 corn 1 3-4 lower to 1-8 advance, May 88 5-8 to 88 7-8, oats 3-8 off to 1-4 up, and provisions unchanged to 15 cents down.

Contributing as an incentive to desire to seize profits on price bulges was announcement of a large purchase of red winter wheat to come to Chicago from St. Louis. On the other hand, Cromwell's report said high winds and dust southwest had been killing wheat more quickly and over wider territory than ever before seen. A reduction of 2,280,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply total today was also a transient bullish factor.

Unexpected downturns of wheat values today at Liverpool weakened the Chicago market at the outset, and led to an abrupt tumble that temporarily carried all futures to below $1. Acting likewise at times as a drag on values was confusion over effects that appeared likely regarding a decision by Comptroller McCarl at Washington implying difficulties would be met in augmenting domestic spring wheat acreage. He ruled that allotment payments can not be made to wheat growers who do not qualify by reducing acreage.

Corn and oats averaged lower, influenced a good deal by an unofficial estimate that the new Argentine corn crop would establish a top record as to volume of exportable surplus.

Provisions sagged with hog values and with corn.

RICHMOND, Va., April 15.—(AP)—The Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad Company had a net income of $324,271.39 for 1934, an increase of $31,951.12, or 10.93 per cent as compared with 1933, it was reported to the stockholders in annual session here today.

Northwestern Mutual Shows Gain in Quarter

Substantial increases in new life insurance sold by the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company throughout the country during the first quarter of 1935 indicate further improvement in the buying attitude. This company's new paid business increased 10.51 per cent over the corresponding period of 1934, and was 41.25 per cent greater than the first quarter of 1933, according to a report received by Luther E. Allen, general agent for Georgia.

Encouraging figures submitted by President M. J. Cleary to the Board of Trustees at their quarterly meeting held Wednesday, April 10, at the home office in Milwaukee, showed a total of $65,865,424 new business, including $2,688,950 of annuities.

Dividends paid to policyholders during the quarter amounted to $8,065,515 and death payments totaled $11,859,341. The total of all payments made to policyholders and their beneficiaries during the first quarter in 1935 was $31,599,683, exclusive of payments under installment and option settlements, aggregating $2,074,430.

As a further indication of nationally improved financial conditions, here was a falling off in requests for surrender values, this item declining 27 per cent from the same period last year. Policy loans also decreased $17,000,000.

Gross assets on March 31, 1935, reached the stupendous sum of $1,030,287,797, an increase of more than $29,000,000 since a year ago. The total bond holdings of the company were $86,000,000 greater at the end of the first quarter than a year ago. The investment portfolio included: Cash, $10,726,046; U. S. A. government bonds (direct or fully guaranteed), $123,811,061; all other bonds, $290,894,127; mortgage loans, $314,822,866; policy loans, $213,834,131.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We regard Monday's trading as furnishing an encouraging indication as to the stamina of the secondary upward movement, particularly since the failure of the rail pension decision to materialize provided an immediate obstacle for the market to hurdle. Nevertheless stocks have advanced at a fairly sharp rate and appear vulnerable for corrective movement of trading proportions.

COURTS & CO.—It looks as if the market will move higher in the immediate future, and we think that as the spring progresses the market can be bought when it is weak.

DOBBS & CO.—The market behaved unexpectedly well Monday in view of the failure of the supreme court to give a pension decision, but it is quite possible that weakness in the rails will check the upward trend for the time being.

BEER & CO.—Basing our opinion on the course of the market during the past several weeks, we would judge that a period of consolidation is in the offing.

COTTON OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We look for cotton to work higher if stocks continue to improve.

HUBBARD BROTHERS & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—We are inclined to look for a trading market pending the Easter holidays, and tive opening up of May contracts in preparation for possibly first notices a week from next Thursday. May Liverpool due 6.48.

BEER & CO.—We continue to favor the long side on recessions.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We believe the combination of strong old crop conditions and damage to winter wheat will justify purchases on setbacks.

COURTS & CO.—While speculative interest in wheat has been increasing of late, if it is not yet sufficiently broad to warrant purchases on sharp bulges, but so long as conditions in the southwest show no change for the better, the long side on reasonable setbacks during foreign price firmness seems to be logical.

DOBBS & CO—The market is a weather affair ad if there is no change in the southwest outlook and warm weather is not experienced in the spring wheat territory, new buying could easily be attracted.

BEER & CO.—We believe both wheat and corn are good buys on reactions for the next six weeks.

Market Outlook

by MAX BUCKINGHAM

(Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.)

NEW YORK, April 15.—(UP)—Sentiment in the stock market today continued favorable.

A little unsettling influence appeared today, but even it had a brighter side when the supreme court failed to reach the railroad pension act case. A two weeks' recess was ordered which means at least that length of time before this trouble problem is settled.

Recent buyers of rail shares slipped out of the market when the lack of a decision became apparent, making the list a little nervous and resulting in lower prices for rail shares. But there was no wide selling move and that was considered important. In addition, industrial stocks recovered, which was more significant, and trading ran over a million shares.

HOPEFUL FEELING.

There was a feeling tonight of hopefulness with some brokers predicting 2,000,000 and 3,000,000-share days before the end of the month. They are not certain when the drive will begin or what reason will be behind it. But they point to these possibilities:

Reduction of call money on the New York Stock Exchange to one-half of 1 per cent today, generally the forerunner of improved volume.

Government $5,000,000,000 works relief spending. Regardless of whether the financial interests approve, they admit this flow of money will have an effect.

INFLATION SENTIMENT.

Inflation sentiment continues to prevail. No official announcement has come regarding any government monetary policy but the virus of inflationary sentiment is growing. It is noticeable in some of the commodity markets now. Some stock buying in the past week has been of the "inflationary hedge" type. This warns investors not to be without common stocks. It is noticeable that the indices for wholesale commodity prices is showing an upward trend.

Trade news is not uniform. Dust storms in the west are likely to retard retail buying. Rainy, cold weather in the east had an adverse influence.

Some of the heavier industry reports are picking up. The American Iron and Steel Institute announced ingot production at 44 per cent of capacity, a rise of 1-2 of 1 per cent. Continued bright reports of pickup in heavier machinery trade forecasts further improvement when the government works relief spending gets under way. Steady near-capacity operations of the motor car industry continues and is reflected in tire sales.

Market Holiday.

NEW YORK, April 15.—(AP)—The New York Cotton Exchange and most other leading commodity markets here will be closed on Good Friday and Saturday. New York Stock Exchange governors voted to suspend the trading session on Good Friday and members are now circulating a petition for holiday on Saturday. It is expected this will be acted upon by the governing committee on Wednesday or Thursday.

"77B" Does Not Worry Our Policyholders

More and more distressed debtor corporations are seeking and receiving relief under the Amended Bankruptcy Act. Fine for them — hard on their creditors, unless the latter are protected by Credit Insurance.

As one policyholder puts it: "It is satisfying, in these times when the threat of '77B' hangs over the business of the country, to have your insurance on our Accounts Receivable."

Credit Insurance is the only sure method of safeguarding the creditors' interest under "77B." We are bound, by the terms of our policies, to protect you absolutely on your coverage.

American Credit Indemnity Co. settles promptly, courteously, satisfactorily. A recent large payment brought this comment from a policyholder (name on request):

"We wish to commend those members of your staff whom we contacted, for the very prompt, courteous, and efficient manner in which they disposed of our claim."

Another policyholder (name on request) writes: "We are pleased at this settlement which was made to our entire satisfaction, and we wish to thank you for your promptness in disposing of it."

Many new American policies are now available — more simply written — broader protection — more liberal Collection Service than ever in our history—and the efficiency is even greater.

TARZAN AND THE FIRE GODS No. 44

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

As the two girls were pulled toward the fatal column, Niarchus, the high priest, was stirred to a frenzy of excitement. He stood close to the edge of the balcony, crying fervent, fanatic prayers to the bloodthirsty god Baal. Then, suddenly, he screamed and collapsed.

Arbela turned and saw Niarchus topple from the balcony to the court below. It was the ancient cure of epilepsy which had come down through the ages from that first Niarchus who had founded this strange tribe. But now Arbela was quick to seize the opportunity.

"Behold!" she cried. "It is a sign that Baal is displeased with this sacrifice. You, Elder Zidon, release us now and win merit in the eyes of Baal." Suddenly the tug of the rope slackened, and the elder Zidon came forward bewilderedly and released the two girls.

Now Lady Beth indicated by gestures that they must flee, but Arbela shook her head. Then the English girl realized why—there was no exit from this mountain-circled crater of the Baalites. So, she thought, this was only a temporary respite from pagan cruelties.

BRAZIL FORESEES GAIN IN EXPORT OF COTTON

SAO PAULO, Brazil, April 15.—(AP)—The ministry of agriculture revealed tonight that exports of cotton from Sao Paulo are expected to go over 1,000,000 kilos (nearly 4,408 United States bales) for the month of April, with 70,000,000 to 80,000,000 kilos (308,560 to 352,640 United States bales) seemed as likely to be the export total for the ensuing four months.

"Our export horizons are widening," an agricultural ministry official said, pointing out that sales abroad for the first three months for 1935 were 2,000,000 kilos (8,816 bales) compared with 500,000 kilos (2,204 bales) for the same period of 1934.

In the exchange commodity directing classification and export sales for Sao Paulo, the report is being contemplated against the background of Brazilian and American cotton sales in England during January, 1934, and January, 1935. These are the figures in pounds sterling:

Expor'g Country	Jan. 1934	Jan. 1935
United States	1,519,824	1,476,383
Brazil	177.469	335,504

Germany took 10,308 bales of classified cotton from Sao Paulo up to mid-March this year, it was said at the exchange. A year ago, it was not a purchaser. Considerable amounts of raw cotton have been shipped this year also to Turkey.

In the far east, Japan this month is sending a commercial mission to this country and one of its aims is to buy raw cotton and sell textiles.

Finance Minister Arthur De Souza Costa brought back from London an impression that British interest for Brazilian raw cotton is intense. With all Brazil's 20 states planning to increase planting this year in a bid for markets abroad, the chief financial delegate on a recent mission to Washington, New York, London and Paris said on his return that British mills were very curious regarding this country's possibilities.

He quoted some that "If Brazil continues to produce the present types, it may easily place with us four times its present sales."

ENGLISH TEXTILE INDUSTRY BENEFITS BY QUOTA SYSTEM

MANCHESTER, April 15.—(AP)—England's cotton goods industry, sorely pressed a year ago by Japanese competition, is beginning to feel the beneficial effects of the quota system clamped on her colonies.

The full benefit to Lancashire has not yet been felt, owing to the huge stocks of Japanese goods which had been accumulated, but the improvement has been reflected to some extent in the increased exports to British Malaya, Ceylon and the British West Indies.

Progress in West Africa was checked somewhat by the large quantities of low-priced cotton goods being imported from Russia.

British trade with Egypt and the Sudan is threatened with virtual extinction by intense Japanese competition, the league declared.

Dixie Howell Off To Join Detroit

LYNCHBURG, Va., April 15.—(AP)—Dixie Howell left here this afternoon for Detroit to join the baseball squad of the Detroit Tigers. He had been out of the ranks since last Tuesday when he was struck and injured by a batted ball in a practive game here between the Tigers and Cincinnati. He was dismissed from the hospital today, with Dr. John W. Devine saying he "is all right now."

lent impression on the fans in the exhibition games. And they are the only new faces on the squad with the exception of Jimmy McCaskill, young ex-University of North Carolina football star, who has won the second-string catcher's job.

All the others either started or finished with the club last year and most of them are fixtures, not only on the team, but in the affections of the spectators.

These include Henry Oana, the crack center fielder, a really great outfielder; Joe Palmisano, the peppery little catcher; Harry Taylor, the skillful fielding first baseman, who is looking much better at the plate this spring; Captain Buster Chatham, the old favorite, at shortstop, and Bill Schmidt, Lynn Nelson, Kelley, Thomas, Williams and Martin on the pitching staff. Bobby Durham, rookie relief pitcher, had a trial with the club two years ago.

Moore trimmed his roster down to 18 players Sunday to meet the league limit for the first month. After then, he must prune it down to 16 players. The cast-offs will go to Portsmouth in the Piedmont league, where the club has a working agreement.

The Knoxville club, headed by Manager Lee Head, also its star catcher, arrived last night for a good rest before the game. Head likes his club this year, pointing out that it has been bolstered since last season by a half-dozen players sent down by the Boston Red Sox.

These, along with the holdovers from last year and new players acquired in deals such as Max Rosenfeld, the outfielder; Lee Stebbins, first baseman; "Foots" Blair, the second baseman; Novak, etc., gives him a fairly capable lineup.

Head said he would start Blethen today and that if he should need help, Roger Hanlon, sent down by the Red Sox, would relieve.

"Blethen looked great against the Yankees the other day," Head revealed.

Following are the opening day lineups:

Army and Navy Clash in 4 Events

PHILADELPHIA, April 15.—(AP)—Army and Navy meet in four events in the University of Pennsylvania relay carnival on Franklin field April 26 and 27.

With the receipt of Navy's official entry—one of the latest for the 41st annual Penn relays—it is noticed that the two service institutions have entered teams in the 440-yard, 880-yard, two-mile and distance medley relay events.

Navy also has entered a strong one-mile quartet, which should furnish considerable opposition for the favored Pitt, Michigan and Ohio State combinations.

Individuals from the Naval Academy will compete in the sprint, hurdles, hop, step and jump, broad jump, javelin, discus and pole vault.

INTEREST HIGH AS LOOP OPENS

From Birmingham came word that a program designed to outshine anything in previous years has been arranged for an expected crowd of 10,000.

Joe Engel, president of the Chattanooga Lookouts and the association's celebrated ballyhoo artist, refused to disclose his "surprises" for the opening there, but the fans as usual will flock to the stadium in anticipation of plenty of side attractions. Chattanooga won the Class B trophy in 1934.

"PACK THE PARK."

"Pack the park for Prothro" is the clarion call at Little Rock, where Doc Prothro, veteran league pilot transferred to the Travelers bailiwick after years of success at Memphis. With the Chickasaws furnishing the opposition, the Little Rock Young Business Men's Association is driving hard for 10,000 fans.

While Atlanta, Little Rock, Birmingham and Chattanooga are hopeful of outdoing the other clubs, the civic organizations of New Orleans, Memphis, Knoxville and Nashville are pushing plans for celebrating their openings later in the week.

At New Orleans the program has reached large proportions, with organizations working along with three slogans: "Kop the Kup," "Pack the Park" and "Lead the South." The Pelicans open at home with Birmingham Saturday.

Members of the Knoxville Junior Chamber of Commerce have been touring East Tennessee for several days working up interest for its opening against Atlanta Wednesday. A half holiday will prevail for many Memphians when the Little Rock Travelers appear there Thursday. Little pregame ballyhoo has existed at Nashville, where Chattanooga is the opening "home" opponent Friday.

Among the Class A cities, New Orleans holds the record for the greatest turnout on opening day, having attracted 18,244 in 1931, while Chattanooga set a mark for other Class B cities to shoot at by drawing 17,043 the same year.

entirely different from the friendly joust, where the popping pulse and the fluttering duck-fit are missing.

The Passing Parade.

This parade of the 400 now under way represents every state in the Union, with ages ranging from 20 to 41 or 42. Unless you take in managers, and then you move up to Mr. Connie Mack's 72 summers and winters.

They come from the smallest of the tank towns and from the largest of the cities. Lou Gehrig, of the Yankees, and Hank Greenberg, of the Tigers, two of the game's leading sluggers, report from New York.

But the great majority comes from the smaller hamlets—Dizzy and Paul Dean, Carl Hubbell, Pepper Martin, Schoolboy Rowe—the cottonwood trail, running through Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas, has furnished most of the color in the last few years.

The widest contrast in baseball concerns the Yankees and the Cardinals. Most of the Yankees are college men, while the Cardinals are composed largely of a rip-roaring young bunch that never bothered about campus life or had any interest in Calculus, Plato or Virgil.

Their salaries range from $3,000 to $25,000 a year, with the average pay not so far from the $7,000 mark for the regulars.

Babe Ruth, with his percentage cut on profits added to his salary, should again be the 1935 leader in the way of high finance. The Babe will tap some figure between $50,000 and $60,000 if he is able to play from 75 to 100 games.

Lou Gehrig and Dizzy Dean lead the other ball players, but Mickey Cochrane, of Detroit's Tigers, and Bill Terry, of New York Giants, on the combined manager-player jobs, move up into the $30,000 class, with Joe Cronin not so far behind.

BLUEBEARD FAST IN DERBY TRIAL

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 15.—(AP)—Bluebeard's Kentucky Derby stock took a decided jump today after Mrs. R. B. Fairbank's colt turned in the fastest work of the training season at Churchill Downs yesterday.

The little roan rattled off seven-eighths in 1:31 3-5 and toured the mile in 1:46 1-5 on a heavy track. He was under a snug hold the last eighth and merely galloping at the mile.

The Catell stable's Manners Man was the only other Derby eligible called on for speed. Cal McFerran, trainer, tabbed the colt in :25 for a quarter and :42 3-5 for a half mile.

St. Bernard and Finance were given their first airing since their transfer from the Coldstream farm at Lexington.

Atlantan Second In Bicycle Race

The Atlanta Bicycle Club made a fine showing in the 22 1-2-mile race at Savannah recently. Cecil Hursey, of Savannah, state champion, won, with Joe Gluck, of Atlanta, second.

Other finishers included Fred Johnson, of Miami; Charlie Lynn, Marion Wakefield, Billy McAdams, Mike Valdez, Leslie Seawood, H. B. Brag and Joe Graf, all of Atlanta.

Council Urges Good Attendance

City council yesterday by unanimous vote called on Atlantans to attend the opening of the Cracker pennant drive at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Ponce de Leon park.

The resolution, offered by Alderman Frank H. Reynolds, was received with enthusiasm, and passed without a dissenting vote. It praised prospects, and commended the Crackers to the people.

EDDIE MOORE IS OPTIMISTIC

PLAYING MANAGER.

And another thing. Moore's the first playing manager the Crackers have had since "Red" Barron in 1932, and the first infield playing manager since Bert Niehoff cavorted at second base. This seems to be the era of the playing pilot with Bill Terry, Frankie Frisch, Joe Cronin and Mickey Cochrane producing results in the big show. The good thing about Moore's playing, however, is that he can play anywhere in the outfield and infield and do a good job of it.

"Everything seems to be all right. Kelley's all right and ready; Easterling's going to hit, don't worry about that, and I'm going to play pretty regular. My side is still a litle sore but I can throw and swing a bat and that's the main thing," Eddie stated.

He has Johnny Hill ready if anything should happen.

The skipper thinks he has a real ball club, and he has. He has three hitters who will lay them in the aisles every other inning or so in Harris, Easterling and Oana, and Harry Taylor, the first baseman, seems to have joined the run-getting brigade by cracking a few up against the signs.

"If we get the breaks we ought to go places," Eddie concluded optimistically. He hopes to start on the Knoxville Smokies today and take a majority of the six straight games with that club.

Incidentally, Moore will bat in second place today instead of leading off, with Lipscomb hitting first, according to his latest plans.

MIZE RETURNED TO CARDINALS

CINCINNATI, April 15.—(AP)—Cincinnati's Reds decided today not to gamble $55,000 on Rookie Johnny Mize.

Though Manager Charlie Dressen has called the youngster "the greatest rookie first baseman I have ever seen," they turned him back to the St. Louis Cardinals because of an injury he suffered while playing with Rochester last year.

"All of the specialists who examined the player agreed that an operation undoubtedly was necessary to remove the growth from his side," General Manager Larry MacPhail explained, adding it "would prevent Mize from playing for us this season." Thus, he concluded, "there was nothing we could do under the agreement except to return the player."

An option on the youngster expired today.

The decision cut down the "kid infield" Dressen has been building up, but it assured Jim Bottomley of his job at first.

Even with Mize gone, though, the team taking the field against the Pittsburgh Pirates in tomorrow's opening game will have five rookies or near-rookies on it.

Hamby, Drake Win Matches

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 15.—(AP)—Handicapped by a blasting "fish-tail" wind, expert small-bore rifle shots opened a four-day competition here today.

Fred Kuhn, Stratford, Conn., former United States international small-bore team member, won the 200-yard match with 186 out of 200. Charles C. Hamby, Atlanta, member of the international team for the last three years, won the third match in which telescopic sights were permitted with 393 out of 400. Hal Drake, also of Atlanta, won the Wimbledon event, last of the D-6, with 185 out of 200.

ROSS RETIRES AS LIGHTWEIGHT

National Sports Alliance fund for needy fighters. Johnson is secretary of the alliance and has charge of disbursing the funds, a unique angle of the liveliest promotional war New York has seen since Tex Rickard's days.

Ross, who won the lightweight championship from Canzoneri in Chicago, June 23, 1933, and defended it only once against Tony here the same fall, weighed only 136 1-2 pounds for his non-title match last Tuesday with Henry Woods in Seattle. His managers said, however, he was weak even at that weight, and so they decided he must never try to make 135 pounds again.

Lightweight champions in the past, such as Jack McAuliffe back in 1893 and Benny Leonard, in 1924, retired while still leading the division, but both quit the ring entirely and neither gave weight as the reason for stepping down. Leonard tried a comeback as a welterweight a few years ago and was knocked out by McLarnin.

MAJOR LEAGUES TO OPEN TODAY

spring. The fans will find out for themselves whether Babe Ruth can come back to damage the ramparts again, as a National leaguer; whether the fmous Dean brothers can duplicate their incredible feat of winning 49 games for the Cardinals; whether the New York Giants can fight their way back to the top, after their 1934 debacle in the stretch; or whether the Detroit Tigers have the stuff to withstand the challenges from such powerful clubs as Cleveland and New York and prove their conquest of the American league last year was not a fluke.

RUTH HOLDS INTEREST.

Ruth will be the main focus of interest for at least the first few weeks of the National league campaign. The 40-year-old Bambino, slow in the field, nevertheless packs the old punch and all will be forgiven if he can find the old range again. He helped the Braves break attendance records throughout the "Grapefruit League" and he will likely pack 'em in for at least one swing around the National league circuit, where he will have a flock of inviting right field targets. If he can play in as many as 100 games, the Babe's power may be sufficient to keep the Braves in a contending position.

BENTON SIGNED.

BOSTON, April 15.—(AP)—Larry Benton, veteran right-hander who has been a free agent since being cast adrift by the Cincinnati Reds, today was signed to a Boston Braves contract. Benton worked out with the Tribe at St. Petersburg. He played with the Braves from 1923-27.

Lions Club will meet at 12:30 today for luncheon at the Henry Grady hotel. The speaker will be M. F. Pixton. Program will be conducted by Fred Hollingsworth.

Bullet from his own gun caused a compound fracture of the right leg, below the knee, of William H. Mitchell, of 479 Willard street, he told attaches at Grady hospital yesterday afternoon. Mitchell, who is connected with the city tax collector's office, said he was stooping to place a tax notice under the door of a house on Northview avenue when his gun fell to the ground and was discharged.

Wiley Crumbley, 24, of 318 Central avenue, S. W., was admitted to Grady hospital yesterday afternoon suffering from a dose of poison. He was said by friends to be despondent because he had been out of work for some months.

Clubhouse at Piedmont park was broken into by burglars some time Sunday night but nothing of value was taken, it was reported to police yesterday.

Eight chairs comprised the loot of burglars who entered, through a window, the Mount Vernon church on Mangham street, S. W., early yesterday morning, according to reports to police.

Cigaret tossed into a pile of linter cotton is believed to have started a fire which did damage estimated at $25 by fire department officials to the Henry Chanin Cotton Waste Corpora-tion at 1088 Murphy avenue Sunday afternoon.

Screams routed a negro when Mrs. L. D. Awtry, of 838 DeKalb avenue, N. E., awoke and saw the man going through her husband's pockets at an early hour yesterday morning she told police. The negro fled with $7.25, she stated.

Expenses of operating the state library for 1934 totaled $21,036, it was reported yesterday by State Auditor Tom Wisdom. Operating expenses of the library commission were $7,600, while the publication of court reports cost $9,900. During the year the library earned $3,840 in fees for commissioning of notaries, the audit showed.

Court of appeals yesterday reversed the Hall superior court's action in dismissing on demurrer a petition for damages filed in behalf of David Harrison, who brought suit against the Neel Gap Bus Company to recover for personal injuries allegedly received in an accident while riding in a car driven by one of the company's drivers. The lower court held there was no cause for action but the high court ruled the case should have been laid before a jury.

W. Carlton Mobley, executive secretary to Governor Talmadge, yesterday received a request from Solicitor-General John A. Boykin asking the governor to post a reward for alleged "kidnapers" of Miss Ethel Hand, 16-year-old school girl, who has been missing from her home since February 8. It was understood the solicitor acted on request of the girl's mother, Mrs. B. B. Hand.

WHEN Father complains that he's too "fed up" to step out and go places . . . you might give a thought to the kind of cigarettes he's smoking. It's just possible that harsh tobacco is an accessory to the crime.

Tactfully suggest that he swing over to Old Golds, a cigarette of exceptionally smooth and mild tobacco, without a trace of harshness in it. This stimulating smoke will pleasantly stir Father's thoughts and senses. And maybe (it has happened!) he'll get young ideas again!
